Luzerne County will use paper ballots in primary

By Jennifer Learn-Andes
jandes@timesleader.com

Starting with the May 19 primary election, Luzerne County voters will mark their selections on paper ballots rather than touchscreen ballot-marking devices. Voters will still be required to feed the hand-marked ballots into a tabulator to be cast, as they did with the ballot marking device printouts. An electronic ballot-marking device will still be set up at each polling place for voters with disabilities. The change to hand-marked paper ballots is part of the switch to new leased voting equipment from Hart InterCivic. County Election Director Emily Cook detailed what voters should expect. As in the past, voters will sign in at their polling place using electronic poll books. Once their sign-in is processed, voters will be issued a paper ballot with a blue label on top for Democrats and a red one for Republicans. Color coding was added to provide clarity for voters, poll workers, and poll watchers, she said. Voters will be directed to a table with a privacy

Local mom supports others in motherhood, medical journeys

Gina Dewald's unique experience as a mother helps her connect with families expecting medically complex children. After adopting a daughter with a genetic epilepsy disorder, the mother of six now supports families facing similar challenges as program manager at Geisinger's Center for Prenatal Pediatrics. Dewald serves as a liaison throughout pregnancy, until birth, and beyond for women experiencing high-risk pregnancies in the Wilkes-Barre and Danville areas. "Every mom deserves to be seen, to feel heard, and really truly supported through their journey," she said.

A personal connection to work new program manager position, advertised as supporting mothers of medically complex children, for a personal reason. Finding out a child may be born with a defect or abnormality can be one of the hardest moments of a parent's life, she said. "This job called to me on a personal level because I have experienced those moments," she said. "I feel like I can connect with them on a different level because I experience it from a personal level." Dewald adopted Katrina, lovingly called "KK," two years ago when she was 9 months old. The hospital recommended alternative care arrangements for KK, who has PCDH19 epilepsy. Already raising a blended family of five children, she said she faced a learning curve navigating care for a child who may experience 30 seizures a day. See CELEBRATE | 2A

Cancer center's 30th annual walk breaks record

By Marcella Kester

A little rain didn't stop Paige Makarewicz and her family from walking two miles to support a local nonprofit that was there when her family needed support most. It also didn't stop the Cancer Wellness Center of NEPA from holding a record-breaking event throughout its 30-year history and announcing funding for a new initiative. Makarewicz said her family walked in honor of her mother, Kathleen, who passed away last year after an eight-month battle with lung cancer.

The family utilized some of the many free services the center offers cancer patients and their families during her fight. "In that time, she was

'World-class, locally rooted'

Penn State WB commencement celebrates about 40 grads

By Sydney Allabaugh
sallabaugh@timesleader.com

LEHMAN TWP. — Penn State Wilkes-Barre held its penultimate Spring Commencement ceremony Saturday at its Athletic and Recreation Building.

The approximately 40 graduates who received associate and bachelor's degrees are among the last to graduate from the satellite campus, which is scheduled to close after the spring 2027 semester.

Jill Schwartz, chair of the Penn State Wilkes-Barre Advisory Board, told graduates during opening remarks that they had learned how to be world-class while remaining locally rooted.

"More importantly, it comes with a story," Schwartz said. "A story about being a part of something during uncertainty, about showing up even when the future of this place wasn't guaranteed, about choosing to build friendships, chase goals, and create meaning anyway."

Penn State Wilkes-Barre, the oldest institution of higher education in the Wyoming Valley, tracing its history to 1916, is among seven

Beyond the Byline

Happy Mother's Day!

WILKES-BARRE — For 58 years, Mother's Day has been a difficult day for me to get through.

Because on the day before Mother's Day in 1968, my mom — Elizabeth Kraszewski O'Boyle — was called to heaven — she was 42 years old.

Dad and I were devastated — our lives were changed forever.

My way to deal with it was simple — remember Mom and call on her whenever needed. And it has worked.

Not one day has gone by in the last 58 years that I have not thought about or called on her, and she has always been there for me spiritually. The same goes for my dad, who was called to heaven in November 1995.

That's why I caution you who have your parents still around. Cherish all of these days before and enjoy each and every second of them.

Don't complain when they ask you to do this, or go there, or take them wherever they ask. Just do it. And do it with a smile on your face and joy in your heart.

I know I have said this before, and I'm sure it is true of all who have lost a loved one — they have remained with me always and, in many ways, I find comfort in that.

Sure, I would prefer to have them here with me. I wish I could call them and hear their voices again. I long to be able to take them to the grocery store, the doctor's office, or to a baseball game.

On this day, remember my story of the day before Mother's Day. Cherish your days with your mom and dad and make every "day before" count.

I draw strength from remembering my Mom and Dad. Like most of you, I feel I had the best parents I could have asked for, and they taught me everything I needed to know just by being who they were, so I could become who I am.

It's a strange, hollow feeling when you realize that both your parents are gone and all you have left are memories. One thing that never comes back is that feeling of security — the feeling of safety found

Workers set up temporary shelters in the area where passengers from the MV Hondius cruise ship are expected to arrive at the port of Granadilla in Tenerife, Canary Islands, Spain, on Saturday.

‘Not another COVID’

WHO head seeks to reassure residents of Spanish island where hantavirus-stricken ship is headed

By Iain Sullivan And Elena Becatoros
The Associated Press

TENERIFE, Spain — The head of the World Health Organization sought Saturday to reassure residents of the Spanish island where passengers of a hantavirus-stricken cruise ship are expected to be evacuated, issuing them a direct message that the virus was “not another COVID.”

The Dutch-flagged MV Hondius, with more than 140 passengers and crew on board, is headed to Spain’s Canary Islands, off the coast of West Africa, and is expected to arrive at the island of Tenerife early Sunday.

WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus, along with Spain’s Health Minister Monica Garcia and Interior Minister Fernando Grande-Marlaska, arrived on the island Saturday to coordinate the disembarkation of passengers and some crew.

“I know you are worried. I know that when you hear the word ‘outbreak’ and watch a ship sail toward your shores, memories surface that none of us have fully put to rest. The pain of 2020 is still real, and I do not dismiss it for a single moment,” Tedros said in a statement to the people of Tenerife.

“But I need you to hear me clearly: This is not another COVID. The current public health risk from hantavirus remains low. My colleagues and I have said this unequivocally, and I will say it again to you now,” Tedros added.

The WHO, Spanish authorities and cruise company Oceanwide Expeditions said nobody on the Hondius is currently showing symptoms of the virus.

Hantavirus can cause life-threatening illness. It usually spreads when people inhale contaminated residue of rodent droppings and isn’t easily transmitted between people. But the Andes virus detected in the cruise ship outbreak may be able to spread between people in rare cases. Symptoms usually show between one and eight weeks after exposure.

Three people have died since the outbreak, and five passengers who left the ship are infected with hantavirus.

Some Tenerife residents say they don’t want the ship there

Some on Tenerife say they are worried. On board the cruise ship, some Spanish passengers have voiced concern about being stigmatized.

“I tell you, I don’t like this very much,” said 69-year-old resident Simon Vidal. “Anyone can say what they want. Why did they have to bring a boat from another country here? Why not anywhere else, why bring it to the Canary Islands?”

Others said they empathized with the boat’s passengers, but were still concerned.

“The truth is that it is very worrying,” said 27-year-old Venezuelan immigrant Samantha Agüero. She added: “We feel a bit unsafe, we don’t feel as there are 100% security measures in place to welcome it. This is a virus after all and we have lived this during the pandemic. But we also need to have empathy.”

Passengers can take only limited belongings and will be isolated

Garcia said passengers and some crew would disembark in Tenerife “under maximum safety conditions.”

The ship will not dock but will remain at anchor, with people ferried off in small boats. Everyone disembarking will be checked for symptoms and won’t be taken off the ship until a flight is already in Tenerife waiting for them, Garcia said during a news conference in Madrid. There are currently people of more than 20 different nationalities on board.

Authorities are aiming to complete the evacuation flights on Sunday and Monday, the director of the WHO’s Department of Epidemic and Pandemic Management, Maria Van Kerkove, said in a briefing Saturday.

Both the U.S. and the U.K. have agreed to send planes to evacuate their citizens. Americans are to be quarantined at a medical center in Nebraska.

All Spanish passengers will be transferred to a medical facility and quarantined, Garcia said. Oceanwide has listed 13 Spanish passengers and one Spanish crew member on board.

Those disembarking will leave behind their luggage, Garcia said, and will be allowed to take only a small bag with essential items, a cellphone, charger and documentation.

Some crew, as well as the body of a passenger who died on board, will remain on the ship, which will sail on to the Netherlands, where it will undergo disinfection, the minister added.

A medical evacuation plane will be on standby

According to a letter sent by the Dutch foreign and health ministers to parliament late Friday, Spain has activated the EU civil protection mechanism for a medical evacuation plane equipped for infectious diseases to be on standby in case anyone on the ship becomes ill. That person would then be transported by air to the European mainland.

The Dutch government will work with Spanish authorities and the ship company to arrange repatriation of Dutch passengers and crew as soon as possible after arrival in Tenerife, subject to medical conditions and advice from the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control, the letter said.

Those without symptoms will go into home quarantine for six weeks and be monitored by local health services.

As the ship is Dutch-flagged, the Netherlands may also temporarily accommodate people of other nationalities and monitor them in quarantine, it said.

Countries scramble to track passengers who disembarked

Health authorities across four continents were tracking down and monitoring more than two dozen passengers who disembarked before the deadly outbreak was detected. They were also scrambling to trace others who may have come into contact with them.

On April 24, nearly two weeks after the first passenger had died on board, more than two dozen people from at least 12 different countries left the ship without contact tracing, Dutch officials and the ship’s operator have said.

It wasn’t until May 2 that health authorities first confirmed hantavirus in a passenger.

Dutch public health authorities have been monitoring people who were on a flight that was briefly boarded by a Dutch ship passenger who later died and was confirmed to have hantavirus. Three people who were on the flight and had symptoms have all tested negative for hantavirus, Dutch National Institute for Public Health spokesperson Harald Wychgel told The Associated Press on Saturday.

Iran warns the US against attacks on its oil tankers

Ceasefire appears to hold

By Adam Schreck and Samy Magdy
The Associated Press

DUBAI, United Arab Emirates — Iran’s Revolutionary Guard navy on Saturday warned that any attack on Iranian oil tankers or commercial vessels would be met with a “heavy assault” on one of the U.S. bases in the region and enemy ships, even as a tenuous ceasefire appeared to be holding.

Iranian state TV reported the warning a day after the United States struck two Iranian oil tankers, casting doubt on the month-old ceasefire that the U.S. has insisted is still in effect. The U.S. military said the tankers were trying to breach its blockade of Iran’s ports.

Meanwhile Bahrain, which hosts the U.S. Navy’s regional headquarters, said it arrested dozens of people it alleged had links to Iran’s Revolutionary Guard.

Washington awaits Iran’s response to its latest proposal for a deal to end the war, reopen the Strait of Hormuz to shipping and roll back Tehran’s disputed nuclear program. And Russian President Vladimir Putin said Moscow’s proposal to take enriched uranium from Iran to help negotiate a settlement remains on the table.

Bahrain says arrests were linked to Guard funding attempt

Bahrain said it had arrested 41 people it said are part of a group affiliated with the Revolutionary Guard. The interior ministry said investigations confirmed they were in contact with the Guard and collected funds “with the aim of sending them to Iran” to support its “terrorist operations.”

The small Persian Gulf island is led by a Sunni Muslim monarchy but, like Iran, has a majority Shiite population. Rights groups have said the kingdom has used the war between Iran and the U.S., which bases its Fifth Fleet in Bahrain, as an excuse to crack down on dissent.

Iran issued a warning to Bahrain: “Siding with the U.S.-backed resolution will bring severe consequences. The Strait of Hormuz is a vital lifeline; do not risk closing it on yourselves FOREVER,” Ebrahim Azizi, head of the national security commission of Iran’s parliament, said on social media.

Iran has mostly blocked the critical waterway for global energy since the U.S. and Israel launched the war on Feb. 28, causing a global spike in fuel prices and rattling world markets.

The U.S. has imposed its own blockade of Iran’s ports. U.S. Central Command said on Saturday its forces had turned back 58 commercial ships and “disabled” four since the blockade began April 13.

A cleric speaks on his cellphone, holding an Iranian flag for a pro-government campaign in downtown Tehran, Iran, on Friday.

Britain deploys warship to the Middle East

Britain’s defense ministry said it was deploying a warship to the Middle East to join a potential mission to protect commercial ships in the Strait of Hormuz once hostilities end.

The ministry said the HMS Dragon will “preposition” in the region, ready to join a U.K.- and French-led security plan. France announced this week it was moving its aircraft carrier strike group into the Red Sea in preparation.

Britain and France have led meetings involving several dozen countries on a coalition to reestablish freedom of navigation in the strait. But they stress it won’t start until there is a sustainable ceasefire and the maritime industry is reassured ships can go through the strait safely.

Diplomacy continues ‘day and night’

U.S. President Donald Trump has reiterated threats to resume full-scale bombing if Iran doesn’t accept an agreement to reopen the strait and roll back its nuclear program. On Friday, Iranian foreign ministry spokesperson Esmail Baghaei said the country was not paying attention to “deadlines,” according to state-run IRNA.

Diplomacy continues. Pakistani Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif said his country has been in contact with the U.S. and Iran “day and night” in an effort to extend the ceasefire and reach a peace deal.

Russia’s foreign ministry said that it, as well as Saudi Arabia, was calling for diplomatic efforts to reach a “sustainable, long-term agreement” to end the war.

Separately, Putin told reporters in Moscow that taking enriched uranium from Iran to help negotiate a settlement would allow everyone to see “how much of it there is, and where it is located,” and “all of this would be placed under the control of the IAEA,” the U.N. nuclear watchdog.

Egyptian and Qatari top diplomats reiterated that diplomacy is the sole path to a solution, according to a readout of a phone call between the two foreign ministers.

Still publicly unseen and unheard since the war began is Iran’s new Supreme Leader Mojtaba Khamenei, fueling speculation about his status.

On Friday, a top Iranian official said Khamenei was in “complete health” and eventually would appear in public. Mazaher Hosseini, affiliated with the office of Iran’s late supreme leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, who was killed at the start of the war, made the comment at a pro-government gathering. Hosseini said Mojtaba, Khamenei’s son, had knee and back injuries in the war’s opening attacks but they’ve largely healed.

Person fatally hit by plane taking off in Denver

By Michael Casey
The Associated Press

A person who jumped a fence and was on a runway at Denver International Airport was struck and killed by a Frontier Airlines plane during takeoff, airport authorities said. The collision sparked an engine fire and forced passengers to evacuate.

The plane, on route from Denver to Los Angeles International Airport, “reported striking a pedestrian during takeoff at DEN at approximately 11:19 p.m. on Friday,” according to a post on the airport’s official X account.

A spokesperson for the airport said the person, who jumped a perimeter fence, has died. They said the unidentified person was hit two minutes after entering the airport. The person is not believed to be an airport employee.

“We’re stopping on the runway,” the pilot tells the control tower according to the site ATC.com. “We just hit somebody. We have an engine fire.”

The pilot tells the air traffic controller they have “231 souls” on board and that an “individual was walking across the runway.”

The air traffic controller responds that they are “rolling the trucks now” before the pilot tells the tower they “have smoke in the aircraft. We are going to evacuate on the runway.”

Frontier Airlines said in a statement that flight 4345 was the one involved in the collision and that “smoke was reported in the cabin and the pilots aborted takeoff.” It was not clear whether the smoke was linked to the collision.

The airline said the plane was carrying 224 passengers and seven crew members.

“We are investigating this incident and gathering more information in coordination with the airport and other safety authorities,” the airline said.

Passengers were evacuated via slides and the emergency crew bused them to the terminal. The airport spokesperson said 12 passengers suffered minor injuries and five were taken to hospitals.

One passenger, Jacob Athens, posted video showing people sliding down with their backpacks. He also posted photos of what looked like a damaged engine.

“As we were lifting off the engine of the plane exploded. There was so much smoke we couldn’t even see 1 ft in front of us,” Athens said on his Facebook page, adding that passengers had to wait for over an hour on the runway and “still no transport or help with the cold.”

Other video shows passengers calmly walking down the aisle of the plane and using the slide to evacuate. They were told to step away from the plane.

Denver Airport said the National Transportation Safety Board had been notified and that runway 17L, where the incident took place, was closed amid an investigation. It reopened Saturday around 11 a.m.

Transportation Secretary Sean Duffy said in a post on X that the person “breached airport security at Denver Int’l Airport, deliberately scaled a perimeter fence, and ran out onto a runway.”

He added: “No one should EVER trespass on an airport.”

The incident came a day after a Delta Air Lines employee was killed while on the job at the Orlando International Airport. In a statement, the airline said the employee was killed Thursday night without providing details of the incident or the name of the employee.

“We are focused on extending our full support to family and taking care of our Orlando team during this difficult time,” the airline said. “We are working with local authorities as a full investigation gets underway to determine what occurred.”

Governor, agriculture secretary call for federal support for Pa. farmers

By Bill O'Boyle
boboyle@timesleader.com

WILKES-BARRE — Gov. Josh Shapiro and Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Russell Redding this week visited Cherry Hill Orchards in Lancaster County to meet with local growers impacted by the devastating freeze in April and call on the federal government to quickly deploy more support for Pennsylvania farmers.

The governor sent a letter to U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Brooke Rollins requesting a Secretarial Disaster Designation and urging the U.S. Department of Agriculture to expedite disaster assistance for Pennsylvania farmers affected by the April freeze, including faster damage assessments that will help growers begin filing crop insurance claims.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is exploring additional flexibility with appropriated state funds to respond to this situation and working with Penn State Extension to collect early industry assessments.

“Right now, Pennsylvania farmers are facing catastrophic losses through no fault of their own, and they deserve a federal government that moves with urgency,” said Shapiro. “I’ve called on USDA to cut through delays, expedite the disaster declaration, and ensure farmers receive the assistance and crop insurance support they need to recover and keep their operations moving forward.”

Since the freeze event, the Shapiro Administration has directly engaged with more than 200 growers and agricultural stakeholders across the Commonwealth to gather firsthand damage reports and identify immediate needs facing the industry.

“This freeze didn’t just damage crops — it jeopardized years of hard work and the future stability of family farms across Pennsylvania,” said Redding. “Growers are facing heartbreaking losses that will ripple far beyond the orchard or field, impacting local economies, farm markets, processors and packagers, and the families who depend on agriculture for their livelihoods.”

Pennsylvania ranks among the nation’s leading producers of apples, peaches, grapes, cherries, and strawberries, and many orchards also sell directly to consumers and invite them to pick their own produce for purchase. Major crop yield losses among these specialty crops without relief would have a significant impact on the Commonwealth’s overall direct-to-consumer sales and agritourism.

Rep. Meuser co-sponsors legislation protecting letter carriers

U.S. Rep. Dan Meuser, R-Dallas, this week co-sponsored H.R. 1065 — the Protect Our Letter Carriers Act.

This legislation would protect U.S. Postal Service employees from an alarming surge in violence and improve security measures to prevent check fraud.

According to information provided by Rep. Meuser’s office:

- Assaults and robberies committed against postal workers rose drastically during COVID.
- Despite a small decline in 2024, robberies of postal workers are still 400% higher than they were before the pandemic. Nearly 400 postal employees were assaulted, and 477 were robbed in 2024.
- The Protect Our Letter Carriers Act would require the Attorney General to designate an assistant U.S. Attorney in each district to prioritize any case involving an assault or crime against a letter carrier and to strengthen nationwide sentencing guidelines for these crimes.
- The bill also includes funding for the postal service to secure its infrastructure, including the installation of high-security collection boxes to prevent fraudsters and scammers from stealing bank information and money sent through the mail.
- The legislation comes as Treasury and federal regulators increase efforts to combat check fraud through a coordinated government-wide approach. Federal Reserve Vice Chair for Supervision Michelle Bowman and Governor Christopher Waller have both highlighted the growing threat posed by check fraud to consumers, banks, and the broader payments system.
- Community banks across Pennsylvania’s 9th Congressional District have also met with Meuser to discuss rising check fraud and the steps financial institutions are taking to protect customers, including expanded use of positive pay systems and updated best practices for securely mailing checks.

Meuser

“Since its inception, the American people have relied on the U.S. Post Office and its letter carriers to deliver correspondence, parcels, and checks to every community in the United States,” Meuser said. “Unfortunately, the recent rise in crime against postal workers is disrupting service, putting letter carriers in harm’s way, and costing Americans millions in check fraud scams. Sending payments through the USPS is an indispensable service for countless Americans. We must send a clear message that postal crime and attempted check fraud will result in swift justice and steep penalties.”

The Protect Our Letter Carriers Act was referred to the House Judiciary Committee and the Committee on Oversight and Government Reform for further consideration.

Measure to end state funding for gender transition of minors passes Senate committee Sen. Chris Gebhard, R-48, and Sen. Kris Dush, R-25, this week announced legislation to end state funding for the gender transition of minors was passed with bipartisan support by the Senate Banking and Insurance Committee.

The measure follows recent guidance from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services stating gender-related medical interventions for minors do not meet professionally recognized standards of care. The department issued regulations to prevent federal reimbursement for these procedures through programs such as Medicaid and the Children’s Health Insurance Program (CHIP).

“These procedures carry life-altering risks and lack reliable evidence demonstrating long-term benefits for children,” said Gebhard, who chairs the Senate Banking and Insurance Committee.

Senate Bill 1321 would align state and federal policies regarding reimbursements for “gender-affirming” care for minors, requiring the state to withhold Medicaid and CHIP funding for any procedure that conflicts with federal standards.

The measure now heads to the full Senate for consideration.

"I'm the mom who 'likes to clean for fun,'" Alex McKitish of Dupont told the other mothers at her table, laughing as she admitted that was how her daughter, Layla, had described her.

"I'm the one who 'won't play with Play-Doh,'" said Michelle Melendez of Taylor, whose daughter, Aurora, had described her that way. "I don't like the way it smells."

As the annual Mother's Day Tea at Wyoming Valley Montessori School in Kingston progressed to the part where kindergarten students served refreshments, some moms were still chuckling about the way their children see them. They'd recently learned more about that from the collection of quotes lead teacher Jonelle Kime had read aloud during the entertainment portion of the event.

The annual tea, a long-time tradition at the school, also included songs by the children, a story read by head of school Justin Kleinheider, and a poem from a teacher about experiencing "the last time" you hold your baby on your hip or take your child's hand to cross a street.

The sentiments of the poem seemed to inspire a few tears, as did the children's presentation of flowers to their parents.

Noticing tears on her mom's face, kindergarten student Julianna Swinesburg, of Mountain Top, gently dabbed Elizabeth Swinesburg's cheek with a tissue before scampering back to the stage.

The tea, which took place early Thursday afternoon, was filled with tender and fun moments — as Alex and Layla McKitish broke a cookie to share, as Evan McClenen and daughter Ainsley Metza shared a cup of orange sherbet, as Elizabeth Clocker asked her mom, Amy Margavitch,

A legendary week of good music, good food

John Legend show at F.M. Kirby Center, Party on the Patio were highlights

Before last Sunday, I knew the song "All of Me," but didn't know the inspiration behind it.

It was written for John Legend's now-wife, model Chrissy Teigen, while the two were engaged more than a decade ago.

That was just one of many anecdotes Legend shared about his life and career during a sold-out performance dubbed "An Evening with John Legend" at the F.M. Kirby Center in Wilkes-Barre last week.

In between his soulful, piano-driven ballads, Legend reminisced about life growing up in Springfield, Ohio, where he started playing piano at age four and sang in the church choir directed by his mother. His grandmother was the organist, and both were major influences on his musical pursuits.

Legend is known for his smooth, R&B ballads and heart-felt songwriting, which he brought to a sold-out F.M. Kirby Center last week.

Legend has a connection to Northeastern Pennsylvania, too. He served as the choir director at Bethel AME Church in downtown Scranton, and people who remember him from that time were in the crowd.

It was exciting to spend a whole night in downtown Wilkes-Barre. Restaurants were full, friends were socializing, and the front of the F.M. Kirby Center was electric to walk into.

Legend took the stage a few minutes after 8 p.m. and wrapped up a bit after 10.

Prior to the show, Oscar, my mom, my sister, and I went to Diamond City Vault Bar & Grill for dinner.

Getting out of denial

"When do you know when it is time?" I was asked by a more-than-middle-aged man. He had revealed to me that he was contemplating whether or not to have back surgery to deal with the chronic pain he has lived with since he was a teen.

I listened carefully to the details of his condition, like when it began and what happens whenever he has been standing for too long and must seek out a chair. That sort of thing. It didn't sound like the quality of his life was anywhere near what he wanted it to be. But he was obviously in great conflict about actually getting around to setting a surgery date.

I explained to him that my experience is that men tend to be in denial about some things, their health in particular, way Way Way longer than women. For example, I told him, I had learned of an actual health crisis that exemplified my point.

An ailing, obese man was admitted to the hospital. The patient was in the bed, wearing a hospital gown. The man was asked by the attending physician if he knew what brought him in, and what symptoms he was currently having. His reply was that he was having difficulty walking and was short of breath.

But what the problem turned out to be was something entirely other than heart and lung disease. I am not making this up. A quick glance revealed the man's testicles were the size of grapefruits. Yet the man had not even mentioned it.

That patient is not an outlier. There are many men — and to be fair, women — who avoid dealing with health problems. They can find a myriad of creative ways to ignore it, whether it be through the use of alcohol and painkillers, or by convincing themselves it will get better on its own. Sometimes the problem will for sure get better without medical intervention. But when it persists, what kind of tea sandwich she wanted. (Turkey and cheese).

"Please allow your child to serve you," co-teacher Emily Piazza had said when it was time for refreshments, stressing that the children "know what to do" and wanted to show what they had learned about grace and politeness.

"I didn't spill a drop," Elizabeth Clocker said, sounding pleased after she carried a tray with a small teapot and poured some for her mother.

"Just seeing how they've grown in maturity," mom Evan McClennen said. "It shows they're ready to move on to first grade ... and it's bittersweet."

While most of the children in the class served their moms during the Mother's Day Tea, Violet Bartleson served her dad, Sean Bartleson.

Mom Amanda Bartle-

son was actually in the same room, watching from a distance. "I work here. I teach (physical education)," she said. "So I'm here all the time."

That was why Violet had wanted to give her dad a chance to come and see her at school.

As for the children, now some of them are confident they know how to make tea.

"You put it in the cup," Abby Stinson of Mountain Top said. "And fill it half full."

Why white tea is worth a try, and how do make your first brew right

By dpa

HAMBURG, Germany — If black tea feels too strong and the bitterness of green tea isn't quite your thing, white tea could be an alternative worth exploring.

"It surprises you with its understated mildness," says Kyra Schaper from the German Tea Association.

White tea is made from young shoots and undergoes only minimal processing. Schaper describes its typical characteristics as subtle, slightly sweet, fresh with floral notes and gentle colour.

And it also offers some health benefits. Due to its minimal processing, white tea contains high levels of antioxidants such as catechins and polyphenols.

Compared to unfermented green tea, white tea is lightly fermented and contains fewer tannins. "And its caffeine content is lower too," adds Schaper.

How to brew and where to begin

Boiling water can destroy the delicate aromas and valuable nutrients of white tea. Experts recommend using water heated to around 70-80 degrees Celsius.

For beginners, a few classic varieties offer an accessible starting point.

Pai Mu Tan, from China's Fujian province, is known for its soft, floral profile. Shou Mei has a slightly stronger, fuller taste, while Silver Needle — made from unopened buds — is prized for its refined, almost silky character.

However, anyone wishing to try it should be aware that it has a reputation for being an acquired taste. "Love at first sip is rare with white tea, but lifelong relationships often follow," Schaper says.

Due to its minimal processing, white tea contains high levels of antioxidants such as catechins and polyphenols.

Hazleton Rotary honors veterans at luncheon

More than 80 local veterans were honored and provided with a free meal by Hazleton Rotary on Tuesday, April 28, 2026, at Booty's Café Italiano, Hazleton.

There were two seatings available at 11:15 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

"It has been a privilege for me to plan and carry out this project, for the third time, to honor and recognize our local veterans. Our vets have done so much for all of us, and it is so very important that we remember and give credit to them for their service," said Kathie Oh, project chairwoman.

"It was such a beautiful and touching event, which the veterans seemed to enjoy," declared President Joan Buffington. "It was a privilege for Hazleton Rotary to sponsor an event honoring our hometown heroes."

The restaurant is spacious, with a huge bar and more than enough seating to accommodate crowds. We chatted with many folks who were also heading to the show.

Between us, we had three chicken dishes and salmon.

Our chicken selections ranged from Chicken Francise and Chicken Marsala to Chicken Fantasia, a chicken breast with champagne sauce that I wasn't familiar with before.

Mom had the Golden Crust Salmon, served in a lemon beurre blanc sauce with vegetables.

The staff couldn't have been more accommodating from the minute we walked in to have a drink at the bar before taking our seats for dinner.

More music was in store on Thursday night, too, when we stopped at Party on the Patio at Mohegan Pennsylvania on Route 315 in Plains Township.

The Chicken Fantasia, a tasty chicken dish with champagne sauce, was on the menu at Diamond City Vault Bar & Grill.

It was the first night of the 19-week outdoor music series.

The kickoff show featured Haus of Monsters, a Lady Gaga tribute, which brought a huge crowd despite cool temperatures.

We danced to "Poker Face" and "Bad Romance" and rejoiced about the upcoming weekend.

These free shows run until Thursday, Sept. 10, and the next one is a Luke Bryan tribute on Thursday, May 14.

I hope to see you at Party on the Patio or then something much bigger is likely going on in one's psyche.

For the man with the back condition, he was aware that it was not going to go away or even improve ever so slightly. I think he wasn't sure how much worse he might feel over time, but had been told by doctors that the remedy was a particularly invasive surgery. Recovery from that operation would be many months of immobility and an agonizingly slow return to being independent of caregivers.

What he was stuck on was wondering when the right time was to have it done, meaning when he would be certain it was time. His doctors had already given their assessment.

My suggestion was delivered with bluntness, intended to get him out of his dilemma sooner rather than later. I told him that men die young, generally younger than women. He had already spent years living in this pain, and if he put off the procedure much longer, the recovery was only going to be more difficult because that's how it works. It is harder to recover from things like surgery the older we get. So, if he delayed much longer, his recovery phase would be needlessly lengthier, and then he'd likely have a relatively short time of being pain-free before he was dead.

We'll see if that truth moves the dime any.

Being asked for my medical opinion is not unusual. Not too long ago, a man with an unusual facial condition told me his doctor had told him to see a specialist. I asked him when that was. I wasn't surprised when he responded "months ago." Though I did not see his problem as particularly life-threatening, I urged him to follow the wise guidance of his doctor and set up an appointment with a surgeon for a consultation.

Some people would rather not know the truth about their health condition. They prefer to live in a limbo-like fantasy. That's a state of mind that is similar in some ways to romantic delusions. For example, Bob's friend, Arnold, tells him that Bob's spouse, Jenny, is having an affair with Ed. As long as Bob doesn't confront Jenny or Ed about what is going on, Bob can get to remain living in a state of uncertainty, of hope, the hope that there is no infidelity going on, and then having to figure out what happens after that.

Hope is not a strategy. Hope is just an amazing energy source. But living in truth, well, that is the real energy, the real power, that will heal everything.

RailRiders
alum Jones
settles in with Yanks

By Steve Megargee
AP Sports Writer

MILWAUKEE — Spencer Jones couldn't help but notice all the differences as the New York Yankees' newest slugger walked into the visiting clubhouse before his major league debut Friday.

Then he tried putting that out of his mind.

"It's the same game – that's all everyone's been telling me," Jones said before the Yankees' 6-0 loss to the Milwaukee Brewers. "That's how I'm going to approach this, and go from there."

He struck out twice and walked once while wearing uniform No. 78 and batting sixth as the designated hitter. Yankees manager Aaron Boone said he is willing to play Jones in center field or left on occasion.

Jones gives the Yankees one more 6-foot-7 outfielder to pair with three-time MVP Aaron Judge. The heralded prospect was called up after Jasson Dominguez sprained the AC joint in his left shoulder while crashing into the wall to make a catch in a 9-2 victory over the Texas Rangers on Thursday.

Jones got a welcome-to-the-big-leagues moment in his first plate appearance while facing Jacob Misorowski. He saw three pitches that were at least 102.3 mph — including two of 103.6 mph. No starting pitcher has thrown harder than 103.6 since Statcast tracking began in 2008.

"He's got an electric fastball," Jones said. "Never seen pitches that hard in my life. To be able to foul off a couple was pretty great, I'll take that for now."

Jones couldn't hide his excitement as he prepared for his debut. He noticed everything from the greater food options to the fancier bathrooms. Yet his teammates also said he had the type of personality that should enable him to make a quick adjustment.

"For such a big and powerful guy, he's always very relaxed," catcher/first baseman Ben Rice said. "Say, 'What's going on?' He'll say, 'I'm just cruising.' It's his saying."

Jones figures he can learn plenty from Rice. The two friends both came up the Yankees system, though Rice made his debut in 2024 and had a breakthrough 2025.

"I told Ben this morning I'll be attached at his hip today," Jones said.

Hurricanes forward Jackson Blake celebrates after scoring the game-winning goal in overtime on Saturday in Philadelphia, ending a series with the Flyers in four games.

Blake, Hurricanes sweep away Flyers

By Aaron Bracy
The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Jackson Blake scored 5:28 into overtime for his second of the game, Logan Stankoven also scored in regulation and the Carolina Hurricanes finished a four-game sweep with a 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers to advance to the Eastern Conference finals for the second straight season.

Frederik Andersen made 15 saves for Carolina, which has not lost in eight playoff games.

Alex Bump and Tyson Foerster scored for the Flyers.

Taylor Hall and Jaccob Slavin assisted the winning goal.

Dan Vlarar stopped 37 shots for Philadelphia.

Carolina will play the winner of Buffalo and Montreal in the Eastern Conference finals after the NHL's first 8-0 start in the playoffs since 1985.

The Hurricanes, who

Flyers rookie Alex Bump, left, scored in the third period of Game 4 to tie the game, ultimately sending it to overtime.

reached the Eastern Conference finals for the third time in four years, are looking for their first Stanley Cup since 2006.

Carolina is the 24th team in league history to win eight or more consecutive games during a playoff run. Eighteen of them have won the Stanley Cup.

Philadelphia scored just five goals over the four games.

Bump scored 5:52 into the third period to tie the game at 2-2.

Stankoven's seventh tally of the playoffs 4:13 into the third period gave Carolina a 2-1 lead after he finished a beautiful cross-ice pass from Hall with a one-timer from just outside of the crease. Philadelphia evened the score 1:39 later when Bump shot past Andersen's glove side from the slot after a setup from Travis Konecny from behind the net.

Blake tied it at 1-1 with 7:25 remaining in the second when his wrist shot from along the boards caromed off Philadelphia defenseman Jamie Drysdale and past Vlarar. It appeared as if Carolina went in front just 28 seconds later when Mark Jankowski beat Vlarar, but the goal was overturned following a challenge by Flyers coach Rick Tocchet when officials ruled that Carolina's William Carrier interfered with Vlarar.

The Flyers had a pair of good chances late in the period to take the lead but could not convert. The best opportunity came in the final seconds of the period when Christian Dvorak's wrist shot from close range went off the post on Andersen's glove side.

Carolina finished regulation with a 36-15 advantage in shots.

Russian winger Matvei Michkov was a healthy scratch for the Flyers.

The former Wilkes-Barre Triathlon was the first of 50-plus triathlons for Sam Piccolotti in his decorated career. He has since founded the Mountain Man Invitational in Colorado.

BACK MOUNTAIN TRIATHLON: ATHLETE STORIES
From the valley to the peaks for Piccolotti

By David Bass
Special to Times Leader

On Aug. 30, the Back Mountain Triathlon will bring the tradition of triathlon racing back to Harveys Lake and the Back Mountain community. More than 300 athletes are expected; first-timers and relay teams are welcome. The race offers Olympic distance, Sprint distance and Aquabike options.

On Sundays leading up to the event, this series will highlight those who have been involved in the sport over the years.

More info can be found at backmountaintriathlon.com.

For most athletes, a medical emergency during a debut race might be a sign to hang up their goggles. For Sam Piccolotti, it was simply the beginning of a long involvement with the sport of triathlon.

Growing up in Wilkes-Barre, Piccolotti battled with asthma, a condition that narrowed his athletic options until he found his home in the pool at Meyers High School.

It was his cousin, accomplished cyclist Vince Hosey, who first recruited the standout swimmer for a relay leg in the Wilkes-Barre Triathlon. Hosey had visions of putting together an all-star team that could win the relay division that year.

That inaugural attempt at Harveys Lake ended not with a medal, but in an ambulance on oxygen following a debilitating asthma attack about 200 meters in the swim. Yet the grit that defines him took hold; Piccolotti returned to triathlon the following year undeterred, beginning a journey that would see him one day at the highest level of the sport, as a pioneer of high-altitude endurance.

Piccolotti has appeared in Triathlete magazine twice, Outside magazine and been the subject of an award-winning film.

Triathlon

Luckily for the sport, he didn't quit after that first 200 meters. Piccolotti has incredibly fond memories of the Wilkes-Barre Triathlon and of the Wyoming Valley's triathlon scene. He remembers group rides at Harveys Lake and racing locally and out of town with friends. To Sam, the magic of the Wilkes-Barre Triathlon wasn't just the proximity to legends that inspired him — like a 16-year-old Lance Armstrong who raced at Harveys Lake back in the day — but the grassroots essence of the triathlon community. It is a spirit he carried with him to the Rockies. In 2004, Sam and his wife, Lois, packed their lives in Shavertown to fulfill a lifelong dream of moving to Colorado. After many years as a successful banker, including with his own company Aspen Capital Group, Sam is now a software sales professional in Denver. He is also a father to two accomplished triathletes, Nicolo and Mia. But Piccolotti has also spent the last two decades proving that mountains are conquered one step at a time (many days just proving it to himself). This philosophy birthed his lifestyle brand, NoZeroDays (NZD). Since 2001, he has refused to let a single day pass without a workout, a streak that silences his own "negative self-talk" of excuses. His mantra was born from the realization that even on the busiest days, "checking the box" with 10 minutes of movement is better than a zero. He hasn't missed a day of training in over two decades. This discipline isn't just about fitness; it's a mental anchor that has carried him through career demands, raising a family and surviving the brutal and deadly challenge of high-altitude racing. Piccolotti is the architect of what many call the "hardest race you've never heard of." In 2020, he founded the Mountain Man Invitational in Leadville, Colo. — a full Iron-distance triathlon situated at a staggering 10,000 feet of elevation. The event, which has garnered acclaim from Outside and Triathlete magazines, was immortalized in the award-winning film "Mountain Man Invitational: The Map of the Magnificent." It is a race born from a desire to find the ultimate self-challenge. His son Nico even competed in the Mountain Man Invitational in 2024, a passing of the torch that serves as one of Piccolotti's proudest achievements. At 62, Piccolotti's upcoming calendar suggests he has no intention of slowing down. This June, he will be one of only a handful of civilians invited to participate in the Ryan Larkin Invitational Adventure Race, a grueling three-day, 62-mile adventure race organized by Navy SEALs. Spanning the rugged terrain from Montrose to Telluride, Sam will compete on "Team NoZeroDays," a fitting title for a man who views every workout not as a struggle for motivation, but as a valuable opportunity. For a kid from Wilkes-Barre to make it in the peaks of Colorado, Piccolotti remains a testament to the power of chipping away at the impossible — one active day at a time — and using that approach to reach his dreams.

BACKGROUND QUESTIONS
Q: Where did you grow up?
A: Wilkes-Barre.
Q: What was your athletic experience?
A: E.L. Meyers High School. I swam and wrestled.
Q: Did your athletic background help you in triathlon?
A: Yes. I was a swimmer from an early age and continued to compete.
Q: Do you have family members who are also triathletes?
A: Yes. Both of my children raced nationally in ITU. And my cousins Vince, Colleen and Richard Hosey.
Q: Do you have an inspiration or someone who motivated you to begin triathlons?
A: Yes, of course the early competitors like Dave Scott and Scott Tinley. But I was fortunate to meet and compete with professionals like Karen Smyers and Ken Glan when they were racing Wilkes-Barre.

Q: How many triathlons have you done?
A: I'd have to guess 50-plus.
Q: What/where/how long was your first triathlon?
A: My first triathlon was Wilkes-Barre in the late 1980s. I was on a relay. It did not go well! That put me on a path to improve. The next year I did my first solo Sprint and was hooked.
Q: What is your experience with the WB Triathlon or Back Mountain Triathlon(s)?
A: I first competed as a swimmer in a relay. I believe it was 1986. Some of the most enjoyable race years of my entire career in racing (were at WB Tri). Loved the grassroots beginnings and the after-race gatherings. I was fortunate to have great training partners. I love the revival of the event (Back Mountain Tri) and that it still has that grassroots vibe.
Q: What is your proudest moment in triathlon/endurance racing?
A: Honestly it was the first one. The sport was so new and held such enigma in those early years. It was only a sprint but to me at that point it was so intimidating.
Q: Married?
A: Married 32 years.
Q: Are they involved in triathlon?
A: My wife is not involved, but she has been a long-time supporter of mine and our kids.
Q: Kids?
A: Yes, both kids raced competitively and my son went on to complete my event, The Mountain Man Invitational, in 2024.
Q: How do you fit them into your training?
A: I feel so blessed to have been able to train and race with my kids. Swimming, biking and running has become a lifestyle for all of us. They are grown but we still get out.

FAVORITES
Q: Swim, bike or run?

A: That depends on the year! Generally, I love the swim but if training is on par, I like the bike.
Q: Has your favorite changed?
A: Yes. Frequently!
Q: Favorite triathlon/endurance race, or dream race location?
A: I had always wanted to race the Xterra in Maui.
Q: Ideal pre-race and post-race meal?
A: Pre-race it's been pretty consistent. I eat oatmeal with peanut butter some fruit and electrolytes. Post-race I almost always crave a cheeseburger!
Q: Any superstitions for race day?
A: No, not really. Just positive self-talk. I have a swim song I sing in my head, however.
Q: What is your favorite type of workout when training for a race?
A: I love training period. However, I do enjoy bricks of swim, bike and run.
Q: What is your favorite thing to do outside of triathlon or endurance racing?
A: Do I have to pick one? Skiing, hiking and mountain biking.
Q: Favorite memory from a triathlon race?
A: There is a collage of moments that come to me but the first year my daughter was old enough to run across the finish line with me in Wilkes-Barre stands out as does the brutality of my first Xterra in Aspen. I was beat up and broke my hand in a fall on the bike early in the race (at Xterra). I ran across the finish line and went right into the lake.
Q: Do you have a mantra or a phrase that gets you through the tough parts of training/racing?
A: For sure. I tell myself, "all day." Trying to convince myself that I can do this all day long. I also have some song lyrics that I'll verbally repeat.
Q: Favorite race weather conditions?
A: I don't like the cold. So I'd say bring on the heat!

THIS OR THAT
Q: Garmin, Apple or no watch?
A: Suunto, actually.

Q: Indoor or outdoor training?
A: Swim — love my time in the water. Bike — mostly gravel and MTB these days. Run — trail only any more.
Q: Flip turns or wall touch?
A: Flip turns.
Q: Coach, training plan or self-led workouts?
A: Self-led for many years now.
Q: Full kit or mixed up pieces for race day?
A: Both, historically.
Q: Hand massage, Theragun or neither?
A: I prefer hand massage.
Q: Aero bars or tri bars?
A: Both, historically. My first bars were Lemond bars.
Q: Relay or full tri?
A: Both. but over the years more solo full tri.

LOOKING AHEAD
Q: Do you have any goals for your triathlon career?
A: I'm a bucket list kind of guy. There aren't many events I look to repeat anymore. I do enjoy adventure racing.
Q: How do you stay motivated through the off season?
A: NOZERODAYS. I started that mantra in 2001. I haven't missed a day since then. It's embedded in my DNA now. I don't struggle to get motivated to train. It's a blessing every time.
Q: Any advice for those racing for the first time this year?
A: Yes. Don't train and focus on just finishing or completing the event or you just might end up with a T-shirt. Soak it in. The training and the race. The magic is in the journey.
Q: What does your race calendar look like this season?
A: X An Adventure Race in June, Mountain Running race in July and a Tough Mudder in September.
Q: A-race?
A: I have a three-day Adventure Race in June. It's with a bunch of former Navy SEALs. It's military-themed and 62 miles with a ton of elevation. It finishes in Telluride, Colo. This is unlike any event I've done before.

Dominic Marranca and Mateo Cruz each finished with three hits and two RBI to lead Holy Redeemer baseball to a 10-0 win over Crestwood in six innings on Saturday in a game that was played at Berwick.

Marranca, Cruz, Noah Hummel and Joe Korus (RBI) all doubled. Korus went the distance on the mound, throwing a five-hit shutout. Garrett Yaki-mowicz added two hits and drove in a run for the Royals, who got at least one hit from eight different players.

Jaxson Fedak, Chase Galella, Bobby Reed, Zack Stavish and Carter Wanyo all singled for the Comets.

Harden, Mitchell fuel Cavaliers past Pistons in Game 3

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — After collapsing in the clutch in the first two games of the Eastern Conference semifinals, the Cleveland Cavaliers got timely plays in the final three minutes from James Harden and Max Strus to get back into their series against the Detroit Pistons.

Harden hit three big shots and Strus came up with the steal and go-ahead basket in the Cavaliers' 116-109 victory on Saturday to cut the Pistons' lead to 2-1.

"We know how important it is to get this first win to make it a series. So, really a team win where a lot of guys contributed tonight," Cavaliers coach Kenny Atkinson said.

The Cavaliers will look to even the series when they host Game 4 on Monday night.

Donovan Mitchell led Cleveland with 35 points and 10 rebounds, while Harden finished with 19 points and Jarrett Allen scored 18.

There were 11 lead changes, with the final one occurring with 2:28 remaining when Strus jumped to snare Cade Cunningham's inbound pass to Daniss Jenkins near midcourt. Strus then drove past Cunningham and Jenkins to make a layup and give the Cavaliers a 106-104 advantage.

Atkinson called it the winning play of the game.

"That was a game changer right there. It gives us a lead, get a couple stops and a couple buckets and that's the game," Harden said.

Strus said it was about 3-4 seconds into the inbound play that he timed his jump and made the play.

"My job is to help win in any form or fashion," said Strus, who finished with seven points, five rebounds and one steal.

"Some nights it's going to be shooting. Some nights it's going to be defense. Some nights it's going to be rebounds. The ball didn't find me tonight, but I don't care. As long as our team wins, I just want to make an impact and find a way to win."

Cavaliers guard Max Strus celebrates a Pistons turnover in Saturday's Game 3 of their Eastern Conference semifinals.

It was also the first of three straight turnovers by Cunningham, who had his second career postseason triple-double with 27 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists, but also committed eight turnovers.

"I don't want to say they were careless turnovers because I care about it a lot. They were just bad turnovers," he said.

Harden, who drew plenty of criticism for turnovers in the clutch in the first two games, kept the Cavaliers in front with big shots. The 17-year veteran hit a 16-foot step-back jumper to extend the lead to 108-104. After a driving dunk by Cunningham, Harden made a floating 7-footer to put the lead back up to four.

Cunningham responded with a 3-pointer before Harden provided the decisive blow with 25 seconds remaining on a step-back 3-pointer while being guarded by Harris to make it 113-109.

Mitchell reached 2,000 career postseason points in his 73rd game, tied for third-fastest among active players and ninth in NBA history. He said Harden's performance showed why he wasn't worried after two tough games in Detroit.

"I think the biggest thing is just he's always consistent. He's not result based. I think the biggest thing is we've seen him thrive and for me and for the group just continue to be like, 'Hey, we know who you are. Keep being yourself.' We've seen him play at a very high level, so we have no doubt that he's going to continue to be great," Mitchell said.

"Every game might not be that way for him, for me, for whoever. But it's just how do you continue to stay even keel and find ways to impact the game."

Tobias Harris added 21 points for Detroit, which had its five-game playoff win streak snapped.

KERR SIGNS EXTENSION
SAN FRANCISCO — Steve Kerr is giving it another go with Golden State.

Kerr has reached an agreement in principle on a two-year contract to continue coaching the Warriors, according to a person with knowledge of the negotiations. Kerr still must sign his new deal, the person told The Associated Press on Saturday night, speaking on condition of anonymity because the contract must be finalized.

The Warriors missed the playoffs for the second time in three years, earning the 10th seed in the Western Conference and eventually losing at Phoenix in the play-in tournament.

Kerr's 12-year coaching run with the franchise has featured four championships and a stretch of six straight NBA Finals appearances alongside Stephen Curry and Draymond Green. Kerr shared an embrace with those two stars near the end of the loss in Phoenix, saying afterward he knew it could be their final time together.

The Warriors were 37-45 this season while dealing with numerous injuries, including losing Jimmy Butler to a season-ending right knee injury in January and Curry's 27-game absence with a right knee injury of his own.

Marner thrives, Thompson struggles in second round

By Stephen Whyno
AP Hockey Writer

Watching Mitch Marner from afar coaching other teams, John Tortorella saw a difference-making hockey player and heard all the criticism about a lack of playoff success and production. Now together with the Vegas Golden Knights, Tortorella does not see that weighing Marner down.

"I don't think it bothers him a lick," Tortorella said. "He just plays."

After earning a reputation for shrinking this time of year over a nearly decade-long stint with Toronto that never included a run past the second round, Marner leads all scorers in the playoffs with 13 points and is tied for the most goals with six after his hat trick Friday night gave Vegas a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series against Anaheim. Over in the Eastern Conference, Buffalo's Tage Thompson struggling contributed to the Sabres losing to the Canadiens and evening up that matchup at one game apiece with play shifting to Montreal on Sunday.

Making his NHL postseason debut, Thompson said it's not anyone's business if he's injured and took responsibility for a bafflingly rough performance.

"Trying to chase the game, try and force plays that aren't there and just wasn't executing," Thompson said. "Everything I touched turned into disaster tonight, so tough one. Got to be better."

Thompson was a point-a-game performer through the first seven games of the playoffs, and coach Lindy Ruff chalked up Game 2 to frustration. Ruff expects a lot of his players to be better, including Thompson.

It's hard to be better than Marner was with four points in 23 minutes of ice time against the Ducks in Game 3. Linemate William Karlsson is getting a front-row seat to it — and hearing plenty of yelling when Marner wants the puck.

"He's very vocal out there, so he makes it easy for you," Karlsson said. "I always know where he is. That's a great part of his game. But also, he sees passes kind of that aren't there — but for him they are, and he makes it work."

SABRES at CANADIENS
Game 3, 7 p.m. (ESPN)
Series: Tied 1-1

The Canadiens got a pair of goals from winger Alex Newhook and one apiece from defensemen Mike Matheson and Alexandre Carrier on Friday night. To keep the momentum going back home at Bell Centre, they'll likely need more offense from two of their best players, Cole Caufield and Juraj Slafkovsky, who have gone ice cold.

Caufield — who had a career-high 51 goals and 88 points during the regular season — has been held off the scoresheet the past five games dating to the first round against Tampa Bay. Slafkovsky has one point in the past eight games.

"All season but especially in playoffs, it doesn't really matter who's going to put the puck in as long as you win the game," Slafkovsky said.

Sam Carrick could be back for Buffalo after missing the past 15 games going back to getting injured March 31. Carrick's return should help the Sabres in the faceoff circle, where they're winning just 43% of draws, the lowest rate of any team in the playoffs.

GOLDEN KNIGHTS at DUCKS
Game 4, 9:30 p.m. (ESPN)
Series: Vegas leads 2-1

The Golden Knights

are 3-1 on the road this postseason after beating the Ducks 6-2, and Tortorella — who coached the Lightning to the Stanley Cup 22 years ago — likes the away-from-home-ice advantage.

"It's probably easier to play on the road," Tortorella said. "You do simplify when you're on the road. You just simply worry about playing hockey. There's no other distractions, and you're with your teammates more. I think that helps."

Vegas is 6-2 on the road since Tortorella took over in late March.

"We like playing on the road," defenseman Shea Theodore said. "It's always fun to come into a loud building and shutting them up."

CELEBRATING 40 YEARS

Long-time Braves manager Cox dies at 84

By Charles Odum
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Bobby Cox, the folksy manager of the Atlanta Braves whose teams ruled the National League during the 1990s and gave the city its first major title as well as World Series trips that fell short, died Saturday. He was 84.

Cox died in Marietta, Georgia, according to the Atlanta Braves. He had a stroke in 2019 and heart issues that complicated his recovery.

“Bobby was the best manager to ever wear a Braves uniform. He led our team to 14 straight division titles, five National League pennants, and the unforgettable World Series title in 1995. His Braves managerial legacy will never be matched,” the Braves said in a statement.

Cox took over a last-place team in June 1990 and led the Braves to a worst-to-first finish in 1991, losing the World Series to the Minnesota Twins in seven games. That was the start of what was to become a record 14 consecutive division titles, a feat no professional team in any sport had accomplished.

He managed the Braves for 25 years and led Atlanta to its first World Series title in 1995, retired after the 2010 season and was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 2014.

“Bobby was a favorite among all in the baseball community, especially those who played for him. His wealth of knowledge on player development and the intricacies of managing the game were rewarded with the sport’s ultimate prize in 2014 — enshrinement into the Baseball Hall of Fame,” the Braves said.

As of Saturday, Cox ranks fourth all-time with 2,504 wins, fifth with 4,508 games, first with 15 division titles including a record 14 in a row, first with 16 playoff appearances and fourth with 67 playoff victories.

Only Connie Mack, John McGraw and Tony La Russa had more regular-season wins than Cox. His 158 regular-season ejections also was the most among managers.

Gov. Brian Kemp said the state of Georgia and the Braves lost a true legend in Cox.

“His vision, talent and management style not only earned him a spot in the National Hall of Fame, but also built a legacy that will endure for generations to come,” Kemp said.

Cox’s death came four days after that of fellow Atlanta icon Ted Turner, who as owner of Braves lured Cox back to the team in 1990.

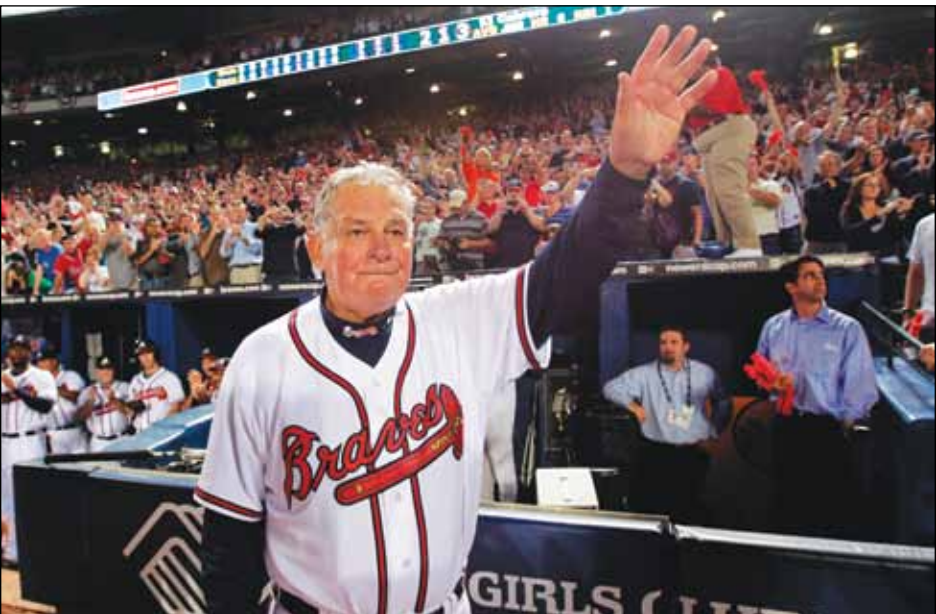

“RIP my second father,” Andrew Jones wrote on social media. The 10-time Gold Glove winner with Atlanta in July will become the sixth who played for Cox with the Braves to be inducted into the Hall of Fame.

The Braves retired Cox’s No. 6 jersey in 2011, when he joined the team’s Hall of Fame.

“He is the Atlanta Braves,” catcher Brian McCann said in 2019. “He’s the best.”

McCann described Cox as “one of the best human beings any of us have ever met.”

Cox spent 29 seasons as a major league manager, including four with Toronto. He managed 16 post-season teams. He brought an old-school approach to the dugout. He always wore spikes and stirrups, and his fatherly demeanor inspired loyalty from his players.

Hall of Fame pitcher Greg Maddux said players around the league always wanted to know what it was like playing for Bobby Cox: “The first word that comes to mind is respect. He had that from players. When Bobby talked, we listened. We wanted to play for him.”

Cox was the first NL manager to win at least 100 games in a season five times. He was Manager of the Year four times and the only one to win in consecutive years (2004, 2005). He also had close ties with his successors, Fredi Gonzalez and Brian Snitker.

He regularly attended games and spring training before a stroke in 2019 that affected his speech and movement. Cox recovered enough to visit the Braves later that season, watching a game from the press box level. His wife, Pam, said in 2020 that heart trouble slowed his recovery from the stroke.

His long marriage survived a 1995 confrontation in which he was accused of hitting his wife in the face. He was charged with simple battery and in custody for an hour. The following day, Bobby and Pam appeared at a news conference and each denied he hit her in the face.

Cox said the couple would seek counseling. The charge was eventually dropped.

Despite all his regular-season success, Cox won only the one World Series title in five tries. He led the Braves to Atlanta’s first major professional sports championship in 1995, beating the Cleveland Indians in six games to win the World Series. Cox said critics usually focused on the World Series losses instead.

“We have been to a lot of World Series, and we’ve played great,” Cox said. “We probably didn’t play as good in the one that we won.”

The Braves lost in 1992 to Toronto in six games and in 1996 in six to the New York Yankees before being swept by the Yankees in 1999.

“It’s a game of breaks when you get down to a four-game, must-win series,” Cox said. “We’ve played well. We’re proud of what we’ve done. They always ask that, though. It is irritating, to be honest with you.”

Tom Glavine played for Cox during those glory years and believed it was unfair to blame the manager for Atlanta’s playoff woes.

“It always amazes me that when we win in the regular season, Bobby Cox gets no credit,” Glavine said. “But when we don’t win in the postseason, he gets the blame.”

Born in Tulsa, Oklahoma, on May 21, 1941, Cox graduated from Selma High School in California in 1959 and attended nearby Reedley Junior College before signing with the Dodgers for a $40,000 bonus.

He spent seven years in the Dodgers’ farm system before being traded to the Braves’ organization, playing one year at Richmond (1967). He was traded to the Yankees for Bob Tillman and Dale Roberts and played third base for his only two seasons in the majors (1968-69) before bad knees forced him to retire at age 30.

Cox began the first of six years as a minor league manager in 1971. He returned to the majors in 1977 as a first base coach for the Yankees, who went on to win the World Series.

His first major league managerial job came with the Braves in 1978. The best season of his first stint in Atlanta was an 81-80 finish in 1980, and he went 266-323 in four seasons.

The Toronto Blue Jays hired Cox in 1982, and he led them to their first American League East championship in 1985, in his fourth and final year there. He was lured back to the Braves as general manager by Turner, their outrageous owner and visionary media mogul, in 1986.

As GM, his Atlanta teams never had a winning season. Cox did develop many of the players key to the Braves’ success in the ’90s: Glavine, John Smoltz, Jeff Blauser, Mark Lemke, Dave Justice, Javy Lopez and Ron Gant. He also had two No. 1 draft picks who excelled, Steve Avery and Chipper Jones.

Cox returned as field manager on June 22, 1990, after Russ Nixon was fired.

“It’s pretty impressive that he starts as a GM; he signs half the guys down there up front, and then he comes down and manages them,” Maddux said.

Cox usually shied away from the limelight and was uncomfortable when talking about himself.

“Honestly, I’m just doing my job. I let everything else fall where it may,” he said.

Giants trade struggling catcher Bailey to Guardians

The Associated Press

Patrick Bailey said he was beginning to feel the past couple weeks as if his time with the San Francisco Giants might be coming to an end.

That’s why the two-time Gold Glove-winning catcher was not shocked when he learned from Giants president of baseball operations Buster Posey after Friday night’s game against Pittsburgh that he was being traded to the Cleveland Guardians.

The trade, in which the Giants received minor league left-hander Matt “Tugboat” Wilkinson and the 29th pick in the 2026 amateur draft, was announced Saturday afternoon. Bailey took a cross-country flight from San Francisco to Cleveland and arrived before the Guardians faced the Minnesota Twins.

Bailey was listed as a pinch-hitter on the pre-game lineup card. The game did not start on time due to a rain delay.

“A little bit surprised, but at the same time you can kind of see the writing on the wall a little bit there with my time,” Bailey said. “Just felt like I was losing opportunities, losing at-bats and obviously Jesús (Rodríguez) and Sus (Daniel Susac) had been playing really well. When you stop playing, you get a feel for what’s going on.”

Bailey has been regarded as one of the top defensive catchers in the game thanks in part to his elite pitch-framing skills since being called up in 2023. He leads the majors since 2023 with 69 catcher framing runs and 42 defensive runs saved over the past two-plus seasons.

But his hitting has been an issue and bottomed out this season. Bailey was batting .146 with one homer and five RBIs in 89 plate appearances. His .396 OPS ranked last among 286 players with at least 75 plate appearances this season.

Bailey had become expendable for the Giants with Susac and Rodríguez expected to handle most of the catching duties, with Eric Haase as another option. Those players have provided much more offense for the Giants, who enter the day last in the majors in scoring with 3.16 runs per game and tied with the New York Mets for the worst record in the National League.

“I think it’s more the confidence that we have in Jesús Rodríguez and Daniel Susac and just the strides that we feel like as an organization they’ve made defensively,” Posey said about the trade before Saturday’s game against the Pirates.

Manager Tony Vitello

pointed to Susac and Rodríguez’s offense as another reason.

“You get competitive at-bats. You don’t always get the result you want but they’re both versatile. I mean, we could use either of those guys in a pinch-hit spot, a DH position and Jesús in particular, in different spots,” he said.

RailRiders game postponed

Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders

Saturday's game between the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders and Worcester Red Sox at Polar Park was postponed due to inclement weather. No make-up date has been set at this time.

The RailRiders and WooSox will play a single game on Sunday starting at 1:05 p.m. to conclude this series. Scranton/Wilkes-Barre returns to PNC Field on Tuesday to host the Syracuse Mets for a six-game set.

WBS Penguins begin division finals on Tuesday

Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Penguins

The Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Penguins and the Springfield Thunderbirds are set to square off in the Atlantic Division Final of the 2026 Calder Cup Playoffs. The best-of-five slate starts on Tuesday at Mohegan Arena. Wilkes-Barre/Scranton finished the regular season with 101 points, earning a first-round bye in the 2026 Calder Cup Playoffs. They then defeated the Hershey Bears in four games in the division semifinals. At the AHL All-Star Break, Springfield was outside of a playoff spot and had the fifth-worst record in the league.

Under a new head coach, Steve Ott, the T-Birds finished 32-32-6-2 and snuck into the Atlantic's sixth and final playoff seed. They then toppled the Charlotte Checkers in the first round, and stunned the 54-win, No. 1 overall seed Providence Bruins in four games during the Atlantic Division Semifinals.

Construction industry holds steady in NEPA despite workforce challenges

By Bill O'Boyle
boboyle@timesleader.com

WILKES-BARRE — The construction industry is a significant component of the economy in Northeast Pennsylvania, but faces some notable challenges tied to workforce shortages, according to data provided by The Institute. The regional data analysis and research organization monitors the region's economy and workforce data and provides regular reporting on NEPA's major industries.

"The region employs approximately 13,768 workers in the construction industry — well below the national average of 17,087 for areas of comparable size," notes Jill Avery-Stoss, President and CEO of The Institute. "This gap signals a relatively thin labor supply, which may make it harder for employers to meet regional construction demand. Despite this workforce shortage, the industry has seen some recent progress, with employment increasing seven percent between 2020 and 2025."

Avery-Stoss said hiring is lower than the national benchmark, with 1,092 job openings over the past year, averaging 91 postings per month. Common job titles found in construction job postings include construction laborers, groundskeepers, asphalt plant operators, and field technicians.

The most in-demand skills emphasize practical, hands-on expertise — construction fundamentals, project management, safety compliance, tool use, heavy equipment operation, and specialized trades such as carpentry and HVAC work.

Avery-Stoss said construction jobs in the region offer relatively strong earnings, though they remain below national levels. She said the average income per job is approximately $77,631.

"One of the most pressing concerns in the construction industry locally is an aging workforce," says Avery-Stoss. "More than 4,000 workers are age 55 or older, indicating a high retirement risk in the coming years. This trend

About The Institute

The Institute is a community-based organization, offering data and analytics to support informed decision-making and improved quality of life throughout Northeastern Pennsylvania.

The organization has released the 2025 Indicators Report, which contains approximately 150 trended metrics.

These metrics are organized into 14 general focus areas, beginning with population demographics. Population shifts in Lackawanna, Luzerne and Wayne Counties reveal continued growth.

points to limited workforce replenishment and a need to attract younger and more diverse workers into the trades."

Avery-Stoss said most construction employment is concentrated in core building trades. Construction and extraction occupations account for 61% of jobs, followed by management, maintenance and repair, and administrative roles.

The industry supports a wide range of activities, including residential and commercial building, infrastructure projects, and specialty contracting such as electrical and plumbing work.

The sector's total economic output is substantial, Avery-Stoss said. Construction generated approximately $1.7 billion in gross regional product in 2025, underscoring its importance to the regional economy.

Overall, Avery-Stoss said the construction industry in Northeastern Pennsylvania remains a stable and essential part of the local economy, supported by strong earnings and steady demand. Yet its future growth may be constrained by labor shortages and an aging workforce.

"To sustain momentum, industry leaders and policymakers are investing in workforce development, apprenticeship programs, and recruitment efforts targeting younger workers," Avery-Stoss said. "Expanding diversity and improving talent pipelines could also play a critical role in ensuring that the region has the workforce needed to support future construction and infrastructure projects."

Ted Turner's vision of news as global and continuous changed industry and society itself

NEW YORK — When the Space Shuttle Challenger exploded in 1986, Beth Knobel, a future TV news correspondent, was in graduate school. Emerging from class, she saw TV sets had been set up in the lobby. They were tuned to CNN, the 24/7 news channel that Ted Turner had launched about five years earlier, which was carrying the launch live.

"Shuttle launches were just kind of routine and the broadcast networks weren't even covering them anymore," says Knobel, who worked for CBS News in the 1990s and now teaches journalism at Fordham University. "CNN did. So when things went so tragically wrong, there they were on top of the story like no one else."

That, says Knobel, who now teaches a class on TV's biggest innovators, is just one example of why Turner was the biggest of them all — huge steps ahead of anyone else

ONE TECH TIP

Why digital devices and online accounts need spring cleaning

In this March 21, 2016, file photo, members of the media and invited guests take a look at the new iPhone SE during an event at Apple headquarters in Cupertino, Calif.

AP Business Writer

If the spring season has brought an urge to scrub your living space from top to bottom, why not clear out the digital detritus cluttering your electronic devices and online accounts at the same time?

Carrying out the digital equivalent of spring cleaning a home isn't just an opportunity to tidy up our online lives. Eliminating dust bunnies like dormant accounts and forgotten files can help protect personal data, according to cybersecurity experts. "Clutter is fuel for scammers. Old accounts, exposed data and forgotten apps give them more ways in," Michael Sherwood, a product vice president at cybersecurity firm Malwarebytes, said. "Cleaning up your digital life is one of the simplest ways to shrink your attack surface in a threat landscape that's getting smarter, faster, and more automated."

Here is a digital spring cleaning checklist:

Free up storage space

Does it seem like your phone or laptop is always running out of storage space? All those photos, videos and other big files that we share or download add up over time.

Running out of internal storage can slow down devices or prevent them from downloading essential operating system updates. Personal gadgets usually come with built-in tools that instruct users on how to free up space.

On iPhones, go to your settings menu, then General, and then iPhone Storage, where you'll see how much storage is left and which apps and files are eating up the most space. On Android devices, the Storage tab in settings provides a similar

New Jersey lowers $150 train fare for World Cup to $105 amid outcry

The Associated Press

NEWARK, N.J. — The steep cost to ride the train to New Jersey’s MetLife Stadium for the upcoming World Cup just got a little cheaper. New Jersey Transit is reducing a planned $150 round-trip fare from all stations to the stadium in East Rutherford to $105. That’s still far higher than the roughly $13 a round-trip ticket from Manhattan’s Penn Station to the stadium typically costs. A spokesperson for Gov. Mikie Sherrill said the Democrat had directed the transit agency to seek private and non-taxpayer dollars to reduce the planned fare hike.

“The Governor appreciates all the companies that have already stepped up to lower the costs for ticket holders,” Steve Sigmund, Sherrill’s spokesperson, said in a statement. “She will continue to ensure the World Cup is an experience that benefits fans and all New Jerseyans.” State officials said last month that the upcharge on trains headed to the stadium was necessary to help offset the transit agency’s costs for the games. The state estimates around 40,000 fans will use mass transit for each match, as there will be no on-site parking at MetLife Stadium, only limited spots at the nearby American Dream

Mall. Spokespersons for FIFA declined to comment Thursday. Soccer’s international governing body had previously warned that New Jersey’s transit prices could have a “chilling effect” on the games, noting that other U.S. host cities, such as Los Angeles, Dallas and Houston, are keeping their fares unchanged.

MetLife, the home stadium for both the NFL’s New York Giants and New York Jets, is set to host eight World Cup matches, including the tournament final on July 19. Group stage matches for soccer powerhouses Brazil, France, Germany and England, along with other nations, begin June 13.

breakdown, with options to free up space manually or automatically. Windows and Mac computers have similar dashboards and controls in their settings menus to identify the biggest hoggers of storage space. Archive important files by copying them to an external drive, cloud storage or both, and then delete them from the device.

Declutter your inbox

Your inbox is probably a mess: notifications and reminders, receipts, newsletters, tickets, bank and credit card statements and security warnings, many of them left unread. You might have a few personal missives you want to keep along with spam to purge. Culling the clutter can help boost productivity and focus, and there are tricks to make the process less tedious and time-consuming. Sort or filter your inbox by size to float the biggest messages — usually those with oversized file attachments — to the top for deletion. Do the same by sender or date so you can delete old and unneeded emails, or big batches from prolific senders. Now might also be a good time to unsubscribe from any mailing lists or newsletters you don’t read anymore.

App check

Another way to free up space is to go through the apps on your phone and delete the ones you no longer use. But don’t stop there. If any of those apps required you to sign up for an account, don’t forget to log in and delete the account as well. Otherwise, any details you provided will remain on file and vulnerable to hackers. “Every dormant account is an open door. Scammers actively target abandoned logins because no one’s watching,” Sherwood said.

Update apps and software

Make sure the apps you’re keeping are the latest version by checking for app store updates. Same goes for the operating systems on your phone and computer. Check for the latest software updates and patches for the best performance and security.

Social media review

Cybersecurity experts advise taking the time to audit your digital footprint to see how exposed you are on Facebook, Instagram, TikTok, LinkedIn and other social media platforms. The idea is to “review what personal info is out there and limit what apps and services can access,” Sherwood said. You should check the privacy settings for each account and even consider deleting older posts. “Limiting what personal information is publicly available helps to reduce the risk of falling victim to cyberattacks such as phishing and identity theft,” said Chad Thunberg, chief information security officer at cybersecurity company Yubico.

Third parties

Has a website ever suggested logging in with your Facebook or Apple account? Did your smart thermostat or doorbell camera request access to your Google account? It’s worth checking which third-party apps and services have access to your accounts. Removing unneeded ones is another way to tighten up your online privacy. When I checked my Google account’s “Third-party apps & services” tab, I found only three and still need them. My Facebook settings revealed 18 connected apps and services, though all but one were expired. I removed the remaining active connection, for a photobook service I don’t remember ever using but still had access to my name and profile photo.

Get a better key

Tighten up security with review of your password practices. Make sure you’ve got multi-factor authentication turned on for your accounts, if you haven’t done it already. Better yet, get a passkey. It’s a “modern login standard” that offers much better security than a traditional password, Thunberg said. Passkeys are two parts of a code that only make sense when combined, kind of like a digital key and padlock. A growing number of online services and platforms now support passkeys, including Google, Amazon, Facebook and eBay. Passkeys need to be authenticated with your fingerprint, face scan or PIN, which means “they cannot be faked, intercepted or replicated by AI-based attacks,” Thunberg said.

You’ll need a password manager to store your passkeys if you’re not already using one. Apple, Google and Samsung include their own password manager apps on phones, but there are third-party options from 1Password, BitWarden, Nordpass and many others. Even if you haven’t started using passkeys, you should still use a password manager to keep track of all your login credentials. Best practice is to use a different password for each account so that if hackers break into one service and steal your password, it won’t work anywhere else. But it’s impossible to memorize them all. “A password manager not only generates strong, unique passwords for each account, but also ensures users never have to remember them all,” Thunberg said.

OUR VIEW

Recognize everything a mother does this Mother’s Day

Times Leader Editorial Board

The old trope of the day is kids trying to make “breakfast” for mom in bed. You know, burnt toast, cereal and milk, maybe a disastrous mess in the kitchen after a first-ever effort at making pancakes . Stuff spilled on the bed because they hop up after setting the meal on a tray table with those short folding legs.

The old joke of the day is a youngster asking why there’s a mother’s day and a father’s day but no kid’s day, the inevitable answer being “Every day is kid’s day!” Except it’s not a joke, not in any family where that ingrained maternal instinct kicks in the way nature intended.

You know, over-protective, self-sacrificing, uber-defensive, effusive in praise for every little accomplishment, promising a boundless and bright future. “Oh, I love this bouquet of dandelions!” “I’ll put this crayon drawing of a robot right here on the fridge!” “My child would never do that, how dare you accuse!” “You can grow up to be anything you want!”

Sure, the reality is hardly “Leave it to Beaver.” Mom’s rarely vacuum in a dress while sporting a pearl necklace, and every problem doesn’t get solved in a day, much less in 30 minutes or less. But it’s also rarely reflective of modern TV shows and movies where the kids are unbelievably resourceful (Home Alone), perpetually precocious (pick a recent sitcom) or downright obnoxious (“If I ever actually said that to my parents, I would’ve been grounded for a month!”) And yes, this news outlet, like others, is regularly peppered with disheartening news of behavior unfitting motherhood. For example, the start of this story from Tuesday: “Luzerne County Court of Common Pleas Judge Michael T. Vough scheduled a September trial for a Hanover Township woman charged with leaving her children unsupervised when her 8-year-old daughter was fatally shot in December 2024.”

No mother is perfect, except maybe yours, and then only once you get older and realize all the things she put up with, all the things she did. The patience in helping you through school or relationship issues, the budgeting that kept food on the table and clothes on your back, the attendance of every little performance from kindergarten graduation to the lead in the high school play or the college commencement or boot camp graduation ceremony.

Maybe you got sick as an adult or landed in a hospital, and somehow, Mom appeared. You remember, the “I know I can’t do anything, but I can still be there” motivation. Maybe you got a little frustrated at her inevitable refusal to finish the last bit of any meal, insisting there be some left for you. Or maybe you got tired of telling her to sit down and eat already after she seemed to never stop popping up throughout a family meal, always jumping to get another glass, another scoop of mashed potatoes, the gravy she forgot to bring out, a clean fork for the one you dropped, the salt and pepper shaker ... the list can be nigh endless when the urge to serve overpowers. Or maybe you realize her presence is so constant that you don’t really miss her until she’s gone, and a hole appears that can’t be filled, only accepted.

Today’s the day you celebrate her as you see fit, as your family tradition dictates, or as she requested. You reminisce with her, or about her. You bring flowers to a dinner table or a grave, you go out to a favorite restaurant, you watch some old home movies. You appreciate. Happy Mother’s Day!

THEIR VIEW

Our Love Is Growing

They don’t make Mother’s Day like they used to. Anna Jarvis, a stalwart Philadelphian, had made establishing the holiday her mission since her mother’s death in 1905. Her mother, Anna Maria Reeves Jarvis, herself a woman of spirit, had advocated for the creation of a Memorial Mother’s Day to honor the significant role of mothers in their families, churches and communities. In her native West Virginia, she created Mother’s Day Work Clubs to address the local issues of poor sanitation and epidemic diseases. During the Civil War, she urged the Mother’s Day Work Clubs to tend to the wounded of both the Union and Confederacy. She was the real deal.

George Ball
Guest Columnist

The younger Anna Jarvis, having achieved her goal of a Mother’s Day national holiday when it became law by presidential proclamation in 1917, was soon appalled by the commercial debasement of her noble cause. “I wanted it to be a day of sentiment, not profit,” she declared. She disdained the purchase of flowers and greeting cards as suitable maternal homage. Greeting cards, What’s better than flowers for Mom on Mother’s Day? A flower garden!

she said, were “a poor excuse for the letter you are too lazy to write.”

Mother’s Day is now observed across the nation by the ceremonial ka-ching of cash registers and the swiping of charge cards. On average, Americans spent $254 on Mother’s Day gifts last year, with total spending that reached $35 billion. Of that, cut flowers from Peru or some such place, racked up total sales of $3.2 billion. And those greeting cards, so execrated by Anna Jarvis, put Americans back $1.1 billion. Ka-ching!

Mothers risk their lives to bring us into the world, and we thank them with brunch at some chain restaurant? They nurture and guide us from infancy into adulthood; they transform our family house into a home — and we reward them with a bouquet and a greeting card? Mothers deserve better.

What’s missing in today’s mercantile Mother’s Day is something more profound and more important: symbolism. Symbolism engages the imagination and provides lasting inspiration. It speaks to the soul. You won’t find it online, in a department store or boutique. It’s not for sale; you must create it.

This year, for Mother’s Day, honor your mother with a garden. Surprise her with a prepared patch in the yard, a 3’ x 5’ raised bed, or hanging baskets and large pots on the patio—or all three.

A Mother’s Day garden mirrors the motifs of commercial Mother’s Day offerings—but revealed in their pure, original, authentic nature. In the garden are flowers and fragrances, beautiful things to see, delicious things to eat.

The garden itself is a sanctuary, a spa for the senses. It connects us to the earth, the elements, the seasons, the past and future, the sun and stars, the very origins of life.

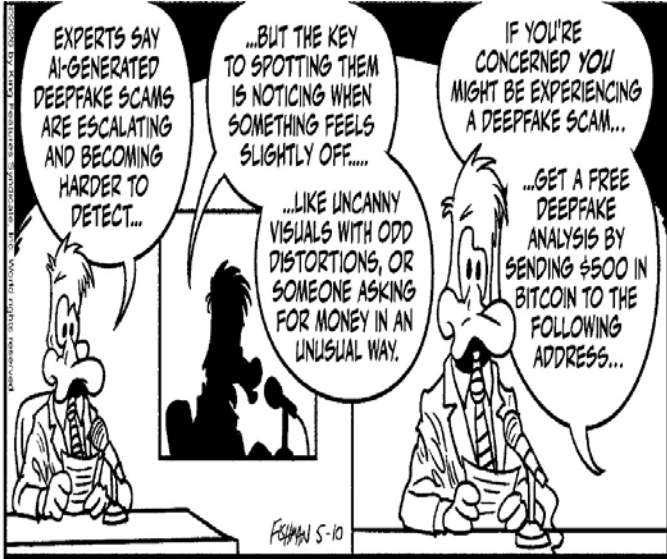

Brothers and sisters, for our Mother’s Day offerings, let us convey our gratitude, not with greeting cards, but with a message inscribed in flowers, fruits and vegetables in a garden she will treasure from spring through summer into fall—a Mother’s Day every day. That is a gift worthy of Mom.

Ms. Jarvis would, I think, agree.

Turner

else in his understanding of how news needed to be delivered.

Turner's death Wednesday comes at a fraught time for cable news, which has struggled to retain viewership in an era of countless media choices and abundant streaming video. CNN has not been immune; changes in the media ecosystem, the company's financial picture and multiple editorial resets over the years have left it a markedly different entity than the one Turner built.

But that misses an important point: He built it.

"We use the word giant sometimes to describe people that really aren't giant," Knobel says. "Ted Turner truly is a giant. He invented around-the-clock news."

Early on, Turner saw news as something global

Many in and around the news industry struggled Wednesday for big enough words to describe Turner's impact on how we consume news. Longtime TV analyst Robert Thompson said the issue was hyperbole-proof.

"Death and hyperbole often go together," said Thompson, director of Syracuse University's Bleier Center for Television and Popular Culture. "But there is no hyperbole here. I can think of very few other things in the 20th century that so dramatically changed American politics, journalism and civic engagement than the invention of 24-hour cable news."

He does add a caveat: The real impact would not be truly felt until others started doing it. Which, of course, they did. But for a long time, and certainly well into the 90s, "CNN became almost generic for breaking news," Thompson says, "like Kleenex for facial tissues and Xerox for photocopying."

But it isn't just the 24-hour cycle that defines Turner's legacy in news. A number of analysts cited, too, how he conceived of news as a global commodity.

Knobel recalls that when she was Moscow bureau chief for CBS beginning in the early 1990s, she would walk into the Kremlin and see CNN on televisions.

"That was the way in which they came to understand what the world was thinking about Russia," Knobel says. The same was true in other seats of power across the world. "Global programming didn't exist before Ted Turner came along and said, 'Not only am I going to build a new channel for America, but there are a lot of people around the world that will probably want to watch this news channel.'"

All of this has become so ingrained by now that it's hard to convey to younger people that it once didn't exist. Back in the '70s, when Turner — an insomniac — was first dreaming of 24/7 news, in many places you'd turn on your TV late at night and would see only static, a test pattern or an American flag until about 6 am.

Former CNN White House bureau chief Frank Sesno, now a media and public affairs professor at George Washington University, tells his students about the "Walter Cronkite era" — when news was delivered at an appointed time, by a voice from on high, in a 30-minute broadcast (which actually doubled the 15-minute broadcasts there once were.)

"I teach these young people, and they have no idea who Ted Turner is," Sesno said. "I remind them this was, in fact, the world of Walter Cronkite. Ted Turner came in, and CNN was seen as an upstart, as something that wasn't going to succeed." Thus, the derisive moniker "Chicken Noodle News," which was echoing across the industry when Sesno joined the network in 1984 .

"When they hired me, I had zero television experience," he says.

But CNN wasn't looking for star anchors at the time. The news was supposed to be the star. The stable of stars came later.

The first Gulf War was a turning point

For CNN, a moment of particular success came in October 1987, the year after the Challenger explosion, when 18-month-old Jessica McClure was rescued from a well in Texas after a two-day ordeal. CNN covered not only the outcome but the incremental developments — standard fare today, but certainly not so then for TV.

Brooke Erin Duffy, an associate professor of communication at Cornell University, points to public appetite for that story as a key moment for CNN, which covered the "hours and hours of waiting" and allowed audiences to regularly tune in for updates.

But it was during the first Gulf War with Iraq when the entire foundation of news shifted. When other journalists left Baghdad, CNN stayed. With correspondents Bernard Shaw, John Holliman and Peter Arnett doing reports under siege from Baghdad's al-Rashid Hotel, the network changed war journalism forever.

A key factor was technology. CNN's news managers "went to Turner and said you know, there's a war coming. We need some money to cover it, and Ted Turner said to them well what do you need?" Knobel said. "What they did with that money is to bring in satellite phone technology that no one else had." It enabled CNN to continue to broadcast news when communications were knocked out.

"I'm someone who competed against CNN for many years, working for CBS (and) I can say CNN always had a technological advantage over everybody else," she said, crediting Turner for giving his network the edge.

The 24/7 schedule of broadcasting continuous developments also vastly reshaped what it was like to actually work in the TV news industry. Journalists were increasingly expected to "be available 24/7 to satiate the public's appetite for news," Duffy said.

After CNN found success, more and more outlets followed suit. The uptick in competition for around-the-clock content made time even more of a currency when it came to breaking news.

"I think one of the consequences is the race for eyeballs within the saturated media landscape," Duffy said. "Time is the currency in news media."

A stroke couldn't stop Coach Rod from getting back to what he loves.

Desert island desserts: Chefs battle the elements and utilize tropical ingredients in extreme cooking competition

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

"Chopped" meets "Survivor" in the all-new series "Chopped Castaways," making its debut Tuesday, May 12, on Food Network.

With eight episodes set to premiere weekly, this brand-new series sends elite chefs to a remote island, where their survival skills prove to be just as critical as their skills in the kitchen. While utilizing the essential ingredients of "Chopped" — such as mystery ingredients, strategic gameplay, impressive judges and "Chopped's" very own host, Ted Allen — this tropical iteration of the beloved series offers a few spicy twists of its own.

"Battling the elements across two grueling cooking rounds each week, competitors must build a working kitchen from basic supplies, earn their signature Chopped ingredient baskets through intense physical challenges and cook entirely over open fire," reads Food Network's official synopsis. "Each episode opens with survival-driven physical challenges

Ted Allen hosts "Chopped Castaways"

— such as archery, spearfishing, diving in the ocean and digging in the sand — to secure ingredients for Round 1."

It continues: "The season begins as a team competition before dissolving into an individual battle, raising the stakes as the chefs fight to outlast their rivals and claim the $100,000 grand prize. Only the most resilient, strategic and adaptive chef will survive island life and the pressure of the competition."

Some of the first chefs taking part in this extreme competition have past experience with cooking on TV, including Ara Zada ("No Passport Required"), Carrie Baird ("Top Chef"), Cate Meade ("MasterChef"), Hannah Flora ("Hell's Kitchen"), James Peck ("Chef's Brigade"), Jean-Paul Bourgeois ("Beat Bobby Flay"), Logan Sandoval ("Supermarket Stakeout") and Sunny Moody ("BBQ Brawl"), but never before have they faced a competition like this.

"Chopped" is a series beloved by fans because it consistently delivers the high-stakes competition they crave," says Food Network president Betsy Ayala. "With 'Chopped Castaways,' we take that familiar formula of ingenuity and creativity and push it to the next level, challenging some of the most talented and resourceful chefs to battle the elements and approach the baskets in ways we've never seen before — all for an epic $100,000 prize."

After seven years of sitting in on neighborly squabbles, family celebrations, devastating heartaches and more, fans of "The Neighborhood" must finally bid adieu to the popular CBS series and its titular neighbors.

Having first aired on the ViacomCBS (now Paramount Global) owned network in October 2018, "The Neighborhood" boasts 155 episodes across eight seasons for a grand total of nearly two-and-a-half straight days of hilarious and heartwarming visual entertainment. Additionally, just last month, on April 6, CBS hosted an emotional farewell special, which — like all 155 episodes — remains available to stream on Paramount+.

But before you jump over to the streaming service to start the series over again from the top, don't miss the finale, in which Dave (Max Greenfield, "New Girl") and his begrudging bestie Calvin (Cedric the Entertainer, "Barbershop," 2002) get vulnerable for a final time before they — and their families — step into the next phase of their lives.

The series finale of "The Neighborhood" airs Monday, May 11, on CBS and the Paramount+ streaming service.

As TV fans can attest, there are many ways to end a series. One of the most iconic series finales in television history is that of "Friends," titled "The Last One," which aired on NBC May 6, 2004. After 10 seasons on air, the hour-long series conclusion drew more than 50 million viewers, all of whom looked on (many through tears) as Rachel (Jennifer Aniston, "The Morning Show"), Ross (David Schwimmer, "Band of Brothers"), Phoebe (Lisa Kudrow, "The Comeback"), Joey (Matt LeBlanc, "Episodes"), Monica (Courteney Cox, "Scream," 1996) and Chandler (late Canadian actor Matthew Perry, "The Whole Nine Yards," 2000) — the latter couple holding their newborn twins — take turns laying their keys upon the counter of their now empty (and very famous) purple apartment.

But "The Neighborhood" co-showrunners Mike Schiff and Bill Martin (who both also served as producers for "3rd Rock from the Sun") had a different series in mind as their idea of a perfect sitcom ending.

"We want a victory lap that feels intimate, not bloated," Schiff told TV Line at the start of the show's eighth and final season last October, adding that "finales often go wrong when they get too big."

"To me," Schiff continued, "the gold standard is 'The Mary Tyler Moore Show,' which was just a half hour where everybody gets fired, they all sing 'It's a Long Way to Tipperary,' and we cry, and she turns off the lights. That's the kind of emotional resonance we want."

As for the details of "The Neighborhood's" final episode, Schiff and Martin have kept fairly tight-lipped. What we do know is that the Butler family is expanding as both Marty (Marcel Spears, "The Mayor") and Courtney (Skye Townsend, "A Black Lady Sketch Show") and Malcolm (Sheaun McKinney, "Vice Principals") and Mercedes (Amber Stevens West, "22 Jump Street," 2014) tie the knot in the final episode. While a double wedding is a lot for any family to manage (and costly to boot!), the Butlers appear to be looking forward to making the most of their truly empty nest.

The Johnsons, meanwhile, have their own brand of excitement brewing. Rumor has it that Dave, Gemma (Beth Behrs, "2 Broke Girls") and their now teenaged son Grover (Hank Greenspan, "Ethan Bloom") are packing up and leaving the neighborhood altogether for a new opportunity.

As avid series followers may recall from the Season 8 premiere, Dave lost his job and has been searching for the right new vocation ever since. With Grover set to start high school and Gemma having already followed her dream job (that's what brought them to Pasadena, California, in the pilot, you'll remember), there appears to be no better time for Dave to accept an incoming offer and relocate with his family yet again.

And although saying goodbye is never easy, Behrs and her co-star Tichina Arnold ("Everybody Hates Chris"), who plays Tina Butler, were among the first of the cast to take to social media and give their sincere thanks to CBS, "The Neighborhood" and all the viewers who made the show such a lasting success.

"Playing Gemma for eight years — through marriage, global pandemics, two strikes, motherhood and all the other bits of life — has been an absolute gift, and that is thanks to this incredible cast and crew," Behrs wrote on her Instagram (@bethbehrs). "Laughing with you every single day has brought me immense joy. And thank you to all of you who watched us on CBS all these years. We are so grateful! THAT'S A WRAP!"

Likewise, Arnold (@tichinaarnold) posted a heartfelt moment during her last day with her castmates on set, pairing it with the caption, "This day is bittersweet...yet I am so Grateful. Thank you all for rocking with us. We could not have done this 8 year beautiful journey without YOU."

But the journey isn't over just yet. Tune in for "The Neighborhood's" final farewell Monday, May 11, on CBS. The finale, as well as all over 154 episodes of the series, are also available to stream on Paramount+.

NETFLIX this week

"Pop Culture Jeopardy!"

If you can name every Taylor Swift ("The Fate of Ophelia") Easter egg but couldn't solve a math problem to save your life, this one's for you. Starting Monday, May 11, the popular quiz show "Pop Culture Jeopardy!" — hosted by comedian Colin Jost ("Saturday Night Live") — will stream on Netflix every weekday through June 5. The series puts a twist on the classic "Jeopardy!" format as contestants test their pop culture knowledge in TV, movies and music, with categories including "Horror Made Wholesome," "Bummer Movie Endings" and everything in between. Teams survive or go home, week after week, until the five longest-winning-streak teams face off in a final tournament for a $300,000 cash prize. Michael Davies ("Jeopardy!") and Bari Jean Dorman ("Who Wants to be a Millionaire") return as executive producers.

"Everyone Is Doing Great" - Season 1

The cameras stopped rolling five years ago, but nobody told Seth and Jeremy that. Starring James Lafferty ("One Tree Hill") and Stephen Colletti ("Laguna Beach") — who also created the series — "Everyone Is Doing Great" is available to stream Monday, May 11, on Netflix. The series follows Seth (Colletti) and Jeremy (Lafferty), two actors who once starred in "Eternal," a beloved teen vampire drama that was a massive television hit among its audience. Five years after the finale aired, the world has moved on. However, Seth and Jeremy are still catching up, leaning on each other as they chase relevance in a Hollywood that's already looking the other way. Alexandra Park ("The Royals"), Cariba Heine ("H2O: Just Add Water") and Karissa Lee Staples ("S.W.A.T.") also star.

"Perfect Match" - Season 4

They've survived the pods, islands and temptations, yet somehow they're still single. The messiest mix-and-match dating show has returned once again, tackling the ups and downs of extreme dating in Season 4 of "Perfect Match," with episodes available to stream Wednesday, May 13, on Netflix. Nick Lachey ("Love is Blind") returns to host this season as singles old and new — some hailing from other Netflix dating shows, others from dating shows across all of streaming and television — pair up to go through grueling challenges made to test their relationships. While sparks fly for some, other couples aren't so lucky. This season, fans can expect to see some beloved familiar faces from across reality television, including Chris Dahlan ("Age of Attraction"), Danny Spongberg ("Temptation Island"), DeMari Davis ("Too Hot to Handle"), Alison Ogden ("Building the Band"), Ally Lember ("Vanderpump Rules") and Kassy Castillo ("Love Island").

The Wrexham Reds prepare to make history in Season 5 of ‘Welcome to Wrexham’

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Game on: As Thin Lizzy once said, the boys are back in town. Rob Mac (formerly know as Rob McElhenney, of “It’s Always Sunny in Philadelphia”) and Ryan Reynolds (“Deadpool & Wolverine,” 2024) return to Wrexham, Wales, once again during Season 5 of “Welcome to Wrexham,” which premieres Thursday, May 14, on FXX and Hulu.

The Emmy-winning series has followed notable Hollywood actors through the process of owning and running the third-oldest professional football club in the world: the Wrexham Red Dragons. Reynolds and Mac — who initially bought the team in February 2021 — have since led the team from the National League, the fifth division of English football, to its upcoming debut in the EFL Championship, which acts as a major plot point for the upcoming season.

According to the Wrexham Reds’ official website (wrexhamreds.com), Season 5 will see the Red Dragons facing top-tier competitors as they complete a historic run at the domestic cup.

“The season is expected to highlight significant squad changes, including new arrivals as Wrexham adapt to Championship level and the departures of long-standing players who were central to the club’s rise,” their synopsis reads.

Additionally, Season 5 will “explore changes in ownership structure and new investment, reflecting Wrexham’s rapid growth as a football club and global brand,” per Wrexham Reds writer Andrew Pargh.

According to Reynolds himself, “Welcome to Wrexham” fans can also expect the release of three new seasons following the debut of Season 5. The actor announced the series’ renewal on his Instagram (@vancityreynolds), sharing: “season five premieres May 14 and we’ve been renewed for three more. ... Congrats to our Emmy-winning doc team, the town, and Wrexham AFC for always making things so dramatic and stressful. Good for TV, bad for blood pressure.”

Michael Sheen and David Tennant in "Good Omens"

By Kimberly Tremblay

"Off Campus" - Season 1

Starring Ella Bright ("The Crown") and Belmont Cameli ("Saved by the Bell"), "Off Campus" leaps off the pages of Elle Kennedy's ("Us") best-selling novel "The Deal" and lands on Prime Video when the first season arrives Wednesday, May 13. Created for television by Louisa Levy ("In the Dark"), the college-set drama follows an elite Briar University hockey team as they grapple with love, heart-break and the growing pains that come with finding yourself during your college years. At its center are two students who don't quite make sense on paper.

There's Garrett (Cameli), the hockey team's star player who lives for the chanting of the crowd in the stands, and Hannah (Bright), a quiet songwriter who keeps her world tucked inside the pages of her journal. When their paths cross, an unexpected romance begins to take shape — one that pushes them to rethink their plans and changes them both in ways neither ever expected. Mika Abdalla ("Sex Appeal," 2022), Antonio Cipriano ("Pretty Little Liars: Original Sin"), Jalen Thomas Brooks ("The Pitt"), Josh Heuston ("Dune: Prophecy") and Stephen Kalyn ("Gen V") round out the cast. A second season, based on Kennedy's "The Mistake," is already in production.

"Good Omens" - Season 3

Heaven and Hell pulled them apart, but the end of the world may be the only thing that brings them back together when "Good Omens" returns for its third and final season Wednesday, May 13, on Prime Video. Expanding upon Sir Terry Pratchett ("The Colour of Magic," 2008) and Neil Gaiman's ("The Sandman") best-selling novel, the series draws to a close with its most personal chapter yet. The rift between angel Aziraphale (Michael Sheen, "Passengers," 2016) and demon Crowley (David Tennant, "Doctor Who") has never felt bigger. Aziraphale now sits at the top of Heaven as Supreme Archangel, tasked with shepherding the Second Coming, while a heartbroken Crowley drifts through the streets of Soho, unmoored and alone. Two friends who once bent the rules of the universe for each other now exist in the silence that follows a goodbye neither of them meant to be permanent. Now, Aziraphale and Crowley will have to decide if what they built across millennia is still worth fighting for. This season is directed by Rachel Talalay ("Tank Girl," 1995), with Doon Mackichan ("Two Doors Down"), Gloria Obianyo ("High Life," 2018), Liz Carr ("Infinite," 2021), Paul Chahidi ("Chad") and more returning for the final chapter.

"It's Not Like That" - Season 1

It's not like that ... or is it? From creators-executive producers Ian Deitchman ("Life as we Know It," 2010) and Kristin Robinson ("Parenthood"), the first season of "It's Not Like That" arrives Friday, May 15, on Prime Video. Starring Scott Foley ("Scandal") and Erinn Hayes ("Childrens Hospital"), the faith-driven family drama follows Pastor Malcolm Jeffries (Foley), a widowed father of three doing his best to hold it all together, and Lori Soto (Hayes), his late wife's best friend and newly divorced mother of two, who has always known how to show up for family. Learning on each other feels natural — it's what they've always done. But somewhere between the Sunday sermons, shared dinners and the quiet moments neither of them planned for, something shifts. They'll tell you it's not like that. They might even believe it.

"Rivals" - Season 2

Rutshire's most ruthless are back and they haven't gotten any nicer. Based on Jilly Cooper's ("Comedy Playhouse") beloved novel from her best-selling Rutshire Chronicles series, "Rivals" returns for Season 2 with its first three episodes dropping Friday, May 15, on Hulu. The battle for the Central South West television franchise has never been bloodier, and Tony Bad- dingham (David Tennant, "Doctor Who") — who is very much alive and very furious — is done playing nice. Weaponizing scandal, pulling strings and turning allies into casualties, he's out to dismantle Ven- turer, brick by brick. Meanwhile, the personal lives of our Rutshire heroes unspool in spectacular fashion with big hair, bigger egos and the kind of 1980s glamor that makes bad behavior look very, very good. Alex Hassell ("The Boys"), Aidan Turner ("Poldark"), Danny Dyer ("EastEnders"), Katherine Parkinson ("The IT Crowd") and Emily Attack ("The Inbetweeners") all return for a season that promises to be the naughtiest yet.

"Lisa Ann Walter: It Was An Accident" (2026)

After touring as a stand-up come- dian for 20 years, "Abbott Element- ary" star Lisa Ann Walter finally claims the spotlight with her first comedy special, "Lisa Ann Walter: It Was An Accident," which is avail- able to stream on Hulu this Friday,

May 15. Filmed at Helium Comedy Club in Philadelphia, the hour-long special sees Walter turn the mic on feral Gen-Xers, and covering topics like self-loathing and navigating a backsliding America. Written and directed by Walter herself, behind the scenes she is joined by her "Ab- bott Elementary" co-star Sheryl Lee Ralph, who serves as an executive producer alongside Michelle Capu- to ("Jo Koy: Live from the Los Ange- les Forum") and Shannon Hartman ("Dr. Frankenstein's Wax Museum of the Hungry Dead," 2013), with Art & Industry producing.

"Central Intelligence" (2016)

Ten years after the film's 2016 release, director Rawson Marshall Thurber's ("Easy A," 2010) action comedy "Central Intelligence" arrives on Hulu Monday, May 11. It all begins with En Vogue's "My Lov- in' (You're Never Gonna Get It)" playing in a locker room shower, where Robbie Weiricht (Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson, "Journey 2: The Mysterious Island," 2012) — a heavysset, happily dancing high schooler — is dragged out by bullies and thrown naked into the middle of the school gymna- sium in front of all his peers. The only person who shows him any kindness is Calvin Joyner (Kevin Hart, "Ride Along," 2014), the most popular kid in school, who hands Robbie his jacket without a second thought. It's a small gesture, but it's one that Robbie never forgets. Twenty years later, the two reconnect when Robbie, who now goes by Bob, tracks Calvin down on Facebook. Calvin is a mild-mannered accountant whose high school glory days are long behind him, while Bob grew up to be a CIA agent. And when an enemy of the state steals the encryption keys to the American satellite system, Bob once again needs Calvin's help to solve the case. Starring Amy Ryan ("Before the Devil Knows You're Dead," 2007), Danielle Nicolet ("Born Again Virgin"), Jason Bateman ("Arrested Development"), Aaron Paul ("Breaking Bad") and Ryan Hansen ("Friday the 13th," 2009), "Central Intelligence" is written by David Stassen ("Rooster").

"Tucci in Italy" - Season 2

Whether he's drifting through canals in Veneto or wandering the streets of Sicily, one thing is for certain: Stanley Tucci ("The Devil Wears Prada," 2006) feels at home in Italy, and now, the beloved actor returns for Season 2 of "Tucci in Italy" to continue his adventures. National Geographic's Emmy-nominated series arrives Tuesday, May 12, on Disney+, so pack your bags, grab your passport and join Tucci as he explores five new regions and uncovers the deep, delicious ties between Italy's storied landscape and its old culinary traditions. From breaking bread in Campania to raising a glass to an ancient volcanic vine grape in Naples, then winding along the rugged Adriatic coast of Le Marche, Tucci is reminded that in Italy, a shared meal isn't just a tradition — it's a love letter to its people. "Tucci in Italy" hails from executive producers Tucci and Lottie Birmingham ("Stanley Tucci: Searching for Italy").

"The Punisher: One Last Kill"

As Frank Castle searches for new meaning in his life beyond revenge, an unexpected force pulls him back in when "The Punisher: One Last Kill" lands on Disney+ this Tuesday, May 12. Jon Bernthal ("The Bear") returns as the relentless vigilante Frank Castle in this visceral Marvel Television Special Presentation, set after the events of "Daredevil: Born Again." Newly freed from prison and looking to start over, Frank is haunted by visions of his past that disturb what little peace he has left. And when a ruthless new threat rises in the form of Ma Gnucci (Judith Light, "Who's the Boss?"), the iron-fisted matriarch of New York's most feared crime family, Frank ends up exactly where he always does: in the dark, weapon in hand. Also starring Jason R. Moore ("First Kill") as Curtis Hoyle, Jamal Lloyd Johnson ("The Morning Show") as Barry and Dominick Mancino ("Life on Mars") as Benny, the special is directed by Reinaldo Marcus Green ("King Richard," 2021) from a script he co-wrote with Bernthal.

"Hey A.J.!" - Season 1, New Episodes

The final episodes from Season 1 of "Hey A.J.!" land on Disney+ this Wednesday, May 13. In this animated series, seven-year-old A.J. (Amari McCoy, "HexVets and Magic Pets") embarks on whimsical, musical adventures with her stuffed bunny sidekick, Theo (David Mitchell, "David Mitchell's Soap Box"), always right at her side. Together, A.J. and Theo use their imaginations to turn ordinary moments into something spectacular — whether it be through roller-skating, playing superhero, exploring haunted houses or exploring outer space. As this epic first season comes to a close, there's still plenty of fun to be had for A.J. and her friends, as A.J. searches for missing sneakers with her dad, attends a school dance and even takes on a new case as the ever-bright Detective

A.J. Inspired by children's book author and former Super Bowl champion Martellus Bennett ("Hawaii Five-0") — who also lends his voice to A.J.'s father, Marty — Season 1 of "Hey A.J.!" stars Jhene Aiko ("Trip," 2017), Juliet Donenfeld ("The Big Show Show") and Innocent Ekakitie ("The Upshaws"). Meghan Trainor ("Made You Look"), Cristo Fernandez ("Ted Lasso"), Bootsy Collins ("The Patrick Star Show"), Kate Micucci ("The Lego Batman Movie," 2017), Maulik Pancholy ("Phineas and Ferb"), Calum Scott ("You Are The Reason"), Lena Waithe ("Ready Player One," 2018) and NASA astronaut Leland Melvin all make appearances throughout this first season.

Person of the Year Cassandra Coleman

PITTSTON – To many Greater Pittstonians, it seems Cassandra Coleman has been in the public eye forever. It may not be forever, but it has been the last 18 years of her 38 years of life.

Coleman's connection to the Greater Pittston area runs deep. Her career has been marked by early achievements and continued dedication to the region.

She made her mark on the statewide stage in 2018 when PA Gov. Tom Wolf nominated her as the Executive Director of America250PA.

After being appointed through a bipartisan vote, the America250PA agenda was set to plan, encourage, develop and coordinate the commemoration of the 250th anniversary of the founding of the United States as well as Pennsylvania's integral role in that event and the impact of its people on the nation's past, present and future.

As a result of her eight-year mission culminating on July 4, 2026, she has been chosen as the 2025 Greater Pittston Person of the Year.

"I'm honored by this recognition from the Greater Pittston community," Coleman said, after being notified of the award. "America250PA has been fortunate to receive positive feedback over the years, but this is something special. This is home."

For Greater Pittston, the award is not only a celebration of Coleman's professional accomplishments but also a reflection of hometown pride.

As the region looks ahead to the nation's 250th anniversary, her leadership ensures that local voices and histories will be part of the larger American story.

At just 20 years old, she became one of the youngest mayors in the nation when she was appointed to lead Exeter Borough after her grandfather Joseph Coyne passed away while he was in office.

After she fulfilled the rest of his term, she ran successfully for reelection, serving over six-years earning a reputation for hands-on, community-focused leadership.

Upon leaving the mayor's position, Coleman's public service was hardly over... she was just getting started.

Coleman has built an extensive resume spanning government, non-profit leadership, and private consulting over the years, all beginning in Greater Pittston.

"It's where I learned that success starts with showing up, knowing your neighbors, and taking pride in where you come from," Coleman said. "Those values were instilled in me by my family and by this community. That mentality shaped how I lead and how I approach my work every day. Greater Pittston has always supported me, and I carry that with a deep sense of responsibility and gratitude."

Coleman served as Deputy Finance Director for U.S. Sen. Bob Casey from 2010-2013 before moving on to serve as the N.E./Central PA Regional Office director, then as a special advisor to Gov. Wolf, from 2013-2015, working across multiple counties to address constituent needs.

She later founded her own firm, Coleman & Associates, specializing in fundraising and event planning.

Her current role with America250PA has elevated her impact statewide. The commission is responsible for planning Pennsylvania's participation in the nation's sesquicentennial celebration this year, an effort that includes historical programming, tourism initiatives, and civic engagement.

Coleman has emphasized inclusivity and local storytelling, ensuring that communities like those in Northeastern Pennsylvania play a prominent role in the statewide narrative.

Tony Callaio | For Sunday Dispatch

"I've had the chance to see every corner of this Commonwealth," Coleman added. "Every community has something unique to offer, but there's no place I'd rather raise my son, Jimmy IV, than Exeter—where I learned the life lessons I now hope to pass on."

This isn't the first time Coleman has received an honor from the Times Leader Media Group. She received accolades twice for her accomplishments; in 2008 as a "Top 40 under 40" recipient and named her in 2019 as one of "14 Distinctive Women."

Amongst her many honors, in 2019, she was chosen as one of Northeast Pennsylvania Business Journal's Top 25 Women in Business. She also received the Young Professional Women's Leadership Award by Athena International.

Coleman serves on several boards including King's College, where she received a degree in 2010, Leadership Wilkes-Barre, Junior Leadership of Wilkes-Barre and Children's Service Center.

She has been named to give the 2026 King's College commencement address on May 15 at the Mohegan Arena at Casey Plaza.

In honoring Coleman, the community recognizes both a distinguished career and a continuing commitment to service—one that began in Greater Pittston and continues to resonate far beyond it.

"I know what kind of people we are," Coleman said, when speaking on residents of Greater Pittston. "We don't hand out praise lightly. Being named Person of the Year comes with expectations—that I'll keep working hard, that I'll keep trying to make you proud, and that I'll never forget where I come from. I'm proud to take that on."

In loving memory of Howard Grossman. He touched many lives and organisations in his tireless pursuit of making Northeastern Pa a better place to live. He was an advocate for the arts and was the longest serving board member and past president at the Circle Center for the Arts, Wyoming Valley Art League.

We are grateful for his dedication.

The man for whom the award is named

Joseph Saporito, Sr. devoted his life to service

EDITOR'S NOTE: This article first appeared in the March 22, 2009 issue of the Sunday Dispatch.

"Joe's accomplishments in life are those to which many strive but few achieve," reads the plaque in the Luzerne County Law Library in memory of Atty. Joseph Saporito Sr., who passed away in 2001.

"However," the plaque continues, "his greatest and perhaps most memorable quality was his genuine sense of kindness. He was a man of tremendous generosity and honor who never forgot where he came from."

This man of "tremendous generosity and honor" — Atty. Joseph F. Saporito Sr. — was honored posthumously in 2002 as the recipient of the first Sunday Dispatch Greater Pittston Lifetime of Service Award. The presentation took place at the Dispatch Person of the Year reception at St. Anthony's Center in Exeter.

The award was not only presented in Saporito's memory but also named him as recipient.

Since then, recipients have received the Atty. Joseph F. Saporito, Sr. Lifetime of Service Award.

The first award was presented by Pittston Mayor Michael Lombardo, its co-sponsor along with the Dispatch. It was accepted by Saporito's widow Yoland "Dolly" Saporito and her sons Carlo Saporito and Atty. Joseph Saporito, Jr.

"My dad's life was nothing but service," said Joseph Jr. at the time. "Although it was not an elected office, he saw his profession as an attorney as one of public service. Our home telephone number was always published in the phone book and he'd take every call, no matter what time it came."

"And there's no way of telling how much legal service he did without charge," added Carlo.

"He was very concerned about the underprivileged. We'll always remember the one client, an elderly Italian woman, who he went to see at her home and communicated with in Italian.

"When she asked his fee, he said, 'You remind me so much of my mother, how can I charge you?' Actually, I never remember him asking anyone for money."

Both sons said that, to their father, service began with God.

"My dad would always say he felt best when he was walking out of church, after attending Mass," Carlo said. "And both Joe and I have memories of him walking in the hallway at night saying the Rosary. He said it every day and, when he was in the hospital, the Rosary had to be right by his bed."

Saporito continued to serve his clients right up to his death, at the age of 82.

"The day before we went to the hospital," Carlo said, "he called me into our law library. 'You know that case everyone gave up on,' he said.

"Well, I found an answer to it."

"He never treated me any different than a son," said Atty. Sam Falcone Jr., a partner in the Saporito law firm, "I consider myself extremely fortunate to have had the opportunity, honor and benefit of working with him."

A U.S. Navy officer in World War II and the youngest mayor of Pittston when elected in 1953, Saporito is credited with initiating the first redevelopment of the city he loved so much.

"My father was very modest," Joseph Jr. added. "He always said, 'Don't tell anyone what you have accomplished. What you have accomplished will speak louder than your words.'"

The memory of Atty. Joseph F. Saporito Sr. lives on in the award bearing his name and the spirit of Atty. Joseph F. Saporito Sr.'s lives on in the recipients of the Lifetime of Service Award.

Saporito Award winner Howard Grossman

PITTSTON – Howard Grossman lived a full life working until the end of his 91-years as a productive, caring, loyal man who was devoted to his family, his career, his faith, and his community.

While hospitalized for the final time, he asked his wife, Tobi, of nearly 70 years, to bring his laptop to the hospital to write another column for the Times Leader.

Because of his dedicated decades to service, Howard has been named posthumously, the 2025 Joseph F. Saporito, Sr., Lifetime of Service Award.

“I loved that man, he was such a good person, really sweet and kind and loved his children and he loved me,” Tobi said. “He didn’t make a loud noise, but he did make noise in what he did for the community.”

Grossman spent much of his adult life in public service, first as the deputy director of Montgomery County Planning Commission from 1957 to 1971 before relocating to the Back Mountain moving his family to Dallas in 1971.

It didn’t take long before Howard got involved with organizations he truly believed in.

He served on boards such as the F.M. Kirby Center, Pittston Arts Council, Wyoming Valley Art League, PA Association of Nonprofit Organizations, and the Interfaith Council. He also volunteered his time as the Fundraising Director at the Pittston Memorial Library for a decade.

He helped raise thousands of dollars for the library, held health fairs at the library’s Cosgrove Room, and maintained a financial Sustainability drive to keep the library fluid.

Howard fought fiercely for grandparent’s rights in raising grandchildren receiving an honor from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in founding Grandparents Raising Grandchildren in Northeastern PA.

In 2023, he was notified as a recipient of the Daily Point of Light Award, representing a commitment to support, community care, and awareness.

Lois Ostrowski, a Pittston Memorial Library board member, nominated Howard for the award, mainly for his work with Grandparents Raising Grandchildren.

In the fall of 2024, Howard and Ostrowski set a drive in motion to put mini library boxes throughout the City of Pittston.

“The interesting thing about Howard is, after relocating to a new area, he never left behind the other things that he was engaged in, in places he came from,” City of Pittston Mayor

Michael Lombardo said. “And when he came to Pittston, I’m making that exact point, that’s an impressive quality to not forget about where he came from. I always liked and respected Howard, because not only did he become engaged here in Pittston, but also, he remained engaged with wherever he came from.”

As a huge baseball fan, he found himself front and center as a member of the board of directors of Northeast Baseball, bringing the Philadelphia Phillies Triple-A baseball team, the Red Barons, to Northeast Pennsylvania.

Howard received numerous professional and volunteer awards throughout his life, including National Planner of the Year, and top awards from the National Association of Development Organizations and the National Association of Regional Councils.

“That was him,” Tobi explained. “He was exceptional in his position in feeling every citizen should have a role in helping the community be a better place to live. He never stopped, this was his life and our children have thanked us in the importance of civil duty and the community.”

Additionally, he was an accomplished writer, publishing hundreds of articles for numerous media outlets across the country, including the Times Leader.

Howard was a member of Temple B’nai B’rith and, along with Tobi, founded Brith Ahim Synagogue while living in King of Prussia.

The Grossmans, parents of Ellen Topiel, Michele Smertz (Alan) and Debra Hund (Ron), have eight grandchildren. Tobi said their incredible bond and love carried them through life together, raising their family, giving back to the community, and exploring the world.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Here is a neat hand played many years ago by Viennese expert Siegfried Klausner. Not many declarers would have found the way to bring home the slam.

The principle involved is known as a gambit — a term borrowed from chess where a player deliberately sacrifices a piece in the expectation of later capturing one or more of his opponent's pieces in return.

West led the king of diamonds. Klausner saw that it was impractical to play the hand on a crossruff because it would be difficult to ruff back and forth without eventually running into an overruff.

So, he decided to bank his hopes on the establishment of dummy's clubs, even though there was an apparent shortage of entries to dummy to accomplish his purpose.

He won the ace of diamonds, led a club to the ace and ruffed a club, taking care to trump with the queen rather than a low trump. This was the first of two fine plays he made.

Next, Klausner played the ace of spades, both opponents following suit. Then he played the two of spades, deliberately conceding a trump to the jack, even though this would have cost him a trick if the spades had been divided 2-2. It was the second excellent play he made, and it was this vital move that assured fulfillment of the contract.

West won with the jack, but there was no way he could stop the slam. He did as well as he could by returning a diamond, forcing dummy to ruff, but Klausner then ruffed a club with the king — felling East's king — and led the six of spades to the ten to score the rest of the tricks.

If Klausner had earlier not ruffed the two of clubs with a high trump or had failed to lead a low spade after cashing the ace, he would have gone down.

Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

SLYLOCK FOX

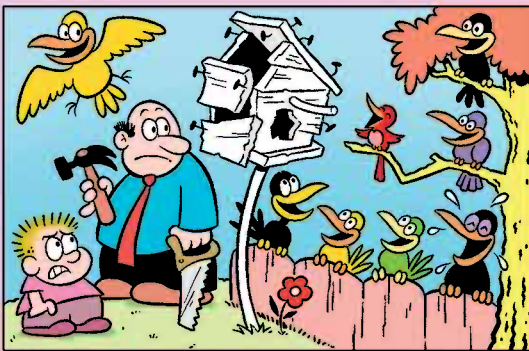

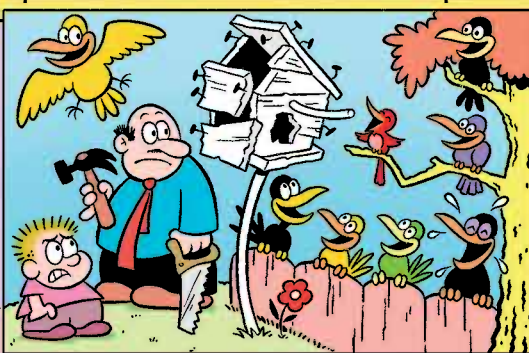

By Bob Weber Jr.

Count Weirdly has locked Slylock Fox in a castle room with a flask containing a water-based solution of his own invention. If the solution remains liquid for more than forty-five minutes, it will burst and fill the room with a cloud that will make Slylock and Max sleep for two weeks' time. How does Slylock eliminate the liquid?

Solution -- -- Slylock used the candle flame to heat the solution and cause it to evaporate before the forty-five minutes expire.
