Drug court helps clients create positive changes

By Jennifer Learn-Andes
jandes@timesleader.com

Every Friday, Luzerne County Court of Common Pleas Judge Joseph F. Sklarosky Jr. and a team of a dozen or so huddle around a large table inside the courthouse for hours, often working through lunch. The group intimately examines county adult treatment court case files to collectively assess which clients are staying sober and following plans designed to keep them away from drugs and alcohol. One by one, team members share updates about their latest interactions and accounting of each client to conclude through majority decision if that person is getting by, progressing, or slipping back into concerning patterns that landed them in court in the first place. The program, which takes at least 18 months to complete, is for those charged with non-violent criminal offenses related to or motivated by addiction to drugs or alcohol, said county Treatment Courts Coordinator Danielle T. Goldowski. More than 250 people are participating in the adult treatment court, which also includes specialty programs focused on veterans and those with mental illness. Among many requirements, participants must undergo frequent scheduled and random drug testing, complete intensive substance use disorder treatment, and regularly appear in court, initially at least once per week.

4th annual Tu Bazar Latino aims for unity

By Sydney Allabaugh

WILKES-BARRE — Music, dancing, and Latino cuisine filled Public Square Saturday as the fourth annual Tu Bazar Latino brought the community together for a day of connection and celebration. The event aims to promote Latino-owned businesses and artists, event organizer Grisel Garcia said, including those not widely known. “We support them, just try to help with networking, everything,” Garcia said about the attending entrepreneurs. “Not only that, we want to unite the community,” organizer Elizabeth Perez said, noting Tu Bazar Latino successfully brought together entire families, both young and old. Attendees shopped for goods and services, watched and participated in music and dance performances, and enjoyed tacos, pupusas, and more. Garcia noted that this was the first year Tu Bazar Latino was held on Public Square. Perez thanked Wilkes-Barre City Mayor George C. Brown, as well as Wilkes-Barre City Council Chairperson Jessica McClay, Scranton Mayor Paige Cagnetti, and event sponsors, for their support. “We want to try to do this every year,” Perez said.

PLYMOUTH — A parade down Main Street and a day of festivities Saturday commemorated America's 250th, Plymouth Borough's 160th, and Plymouth Historical Society's 40th anniversaries. Organizations and community members marched in historic costumes, and emergency vehicles honked their horns, as spectators waved flags, during the roughly 45-minute parade. Afterward, families gathered at two locations for food trucks, vendors, music, and children's activities, including bounce houses and face painting. our county, and especially our borough,” said Mayor Frank Coughlin during the opening ceremony.

Sklarosky has the final say on which recommendations are carried out. Those who fail to comply with program rules will be sentenced for their charges. Clients who successfully complete the program will graduate and be eligible to have outstanding charges dismissed.

During the team's May 22 review, the group decided many of the clients were on track to continue or advance to the next phase.

Team members expressed worries about one man who is feeling stressed out and overwhelmed. They planned to follow up to see if he needed additional support.

One client was put on watch for getting behind on community service.

Another client rectified his tardiness problem by working with the team to change the time of his case management appointments to better fit his schedule, those involved in his monitoring reported.

"He's not giving up on himself. He keeps working. He keeps trying," the judge said.

Jennifer Learn-Andes | Times Leader
Michele Rosemellia and her daughter, Layla, brought gift bags to last week's Luzerne County adult treatment court graduation to acknowledge those completing the program.

The team passed around a birthday card to sign for a client. They beamed during a report of another man's move into a new apartment because the excited client had shared photos of household items he intends to use for many home-cooked meals.

Sklarosky said he recently noticed one client was smiling.

"Something is different with him," he told the group.

Team members largely attributed the change to the man's decision to complete additional trauma therapy on top of his mandatory program requirements.

The next client on the list was in compliance, but Sklarosky said he keeps thinking about him and hoping he remains strong. "I think he's a good kid, but if he gets in the wrong social environment, he is very easily influenced," the judge said.

Although rare, the team agreed that one man should be removed from the program because he attempted to falsify a urine test and acted out when it was detected.

"This is a nonviolent offender program," Goldowski said. "When someone exhibits violence, the treatment court won't allow that for the safety of clients and staff members."

Goldowski, county treatment courts coordinator; and county Court of Common Pleas Judge Joseph F. Sklarosky Jr. Shown on the remote screen at the rear is Jill Sprau, county drug and alcohol assistant administrator.

In Court

With the reviews wrapped up, Sklarosky donned his robe and headed with the team to a nearby courtroom for a Friday evening proceeding.

Female clients appear before the judge first, followed by a session for the males.

One woman approached the bench and told Sklarosky she was "much better," largely because she is now on the appropriate medication and residing in a group home with people to help her. "All the stress is gone," she told the judge.

In the male session, a man read a required essay to the group of approximately 30 other program participants in attendance. He received applause after speaking about his efforts to break old behaviors and reach out to his sponsor when he is struggling.

There were more claps for another man selected as the client of the week, and he told the judge he is working hard in his job and is up for a promotion.

Sklarosky congratulated the man but cautioned that vigilance is also necessary when things are going well.

"I take it one day at a time. I remember where I came up," the man told him.

The client recommended for program termination during the earlier team meeting appeared before the judge. He apologized for his behavior, but the judge said he cannot remain in the program because violence is prohibited.

Graduation

There were many embraces and handshakes last week when 29 clients graduated at a ceremony in the courthouse rotunda.

Goldowski said those completing the tough program can "get through anything."

"You earned this," she said.

Sklarosky told attendees he was pleased to see a crowd celebrating and supporting the graduates.

He acknowledged the treatment court team and outside providers that work closely with them to help the clients, saying this county has one of the best treatment courts in Pennsylvania.

"They want each person to be the best they can be," he said.

County First Assistant District Attorney Anthony Ross delivered the main address, commending graduates for their perseverance and resiliency. "You are the proof that nothing is impossible," Ross said.

One graduate spoke of his decade-long addiction during the ceremony, saying it controlled his life, created legal issues, and made him lose sight of the person he wanted to be.

Although skeptical at first, he said he stuck with the treatment court program and learned how to rebuild. He encouraged court participants attending the graduation as observers to stay connected, trust the process, and be honest. "Treatment court didn't just help me get sober. It helped me get my life back," he said.

The county's treatment court program is accredited by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. Accreditation is awarded to programs that adhere to key drug court protocols and evidence-based best practices.

State Supreme Court Justice P. Kevin Brobson is scheduled to present the county's treatment court certification during a ceremony in the courthouse rotunda at noon on Friday.

Brobson held a town hall last week to recognize May as "National Treatment Court Month," featuring treatment court partners, including Sklarosky.

More than 130 treatment courts are operational across the state, according to a release.

"Treatment courts are based on a powerful idea — that we can't incarcerate our way out of addiction, mental illness or trauma," Brobson said in a release. "When we combine accountability with compassion through the treatment court program, lives are changed and saved, and communities are strengthened."

Beyond the Byline

Celebrating in the most difficult of times

PLYMOUTH — My high school graduation was anything but a celebration.

For me, it was a time that marked the end of a very blurry senior year and the angst of where I would go from there.

As I have lamented before, my mom passed away on the day before Mother’s Day — a month before my high school graduation.

When Mom passed, it marked the end of a years-long struggle for her — filled with doctor appointments, hospital stays, emergency journeys to Philadelphia’s Hahnemann Hospital, and — I am certain — pain, fear, and much sadness.

My dad and I never left Mom’s side through it all. We always held out hope that she would somehow come back, and our family life would return to normal.

At 17, I was not prepared for losing one of my parents, and I really had no idea how to cope with such a tremendous loss.

When I graduated high school, there were 691 others in my class at Wyoming Valley West. It was June 6, 1968, and ours was the second class to graduate from the new “monster district” that consolidated nine towns into one school.

I was like a zombie — especially for that month between my Mom’s passing and graduation day. It really was the worst of times for my dad and me.

But we persevered. We managed to endure three and a half days of greeting my mom’s family and friends at her wake. The funeral was held on the fourth day, and it was emotionally draining.

It was difficult, at the very least, to finish out the school year. Graduation didn’t have nearly the meaning it would have with my mom and dad sitting together in the stands. Sometimes your proudest moments — your greatest achievements — lose much of their luster when you suffer a loss like that.

I do remember many of my classmates being excited about the day. They couldn’t wait to stroll up to accept their diplomas, smile, and wave to their families and friends in the bleachers.

And there was a lot of talk about graduation parties. Which ones were you going to go to? Were you invited here or there? Do you think the punch will be spiked?

I didn’t begrudge any of my fellow Spartans for enjoying their graduation day — it just wasn’t joyous for me.

My dad was still distraught from the trauma of losing his life partner. A proud man, he struggled to stay composed and to be strong for my sake. I didn’t realize it at the time, but I know he wished over and over that my mom could have been there. He knew how important this day would have been for her — to see her only child graduate from high school.

In the daily struggle to cope with our loss, no plans were made for a graduation party for me — we didn’t even discuss it. In a class of 692, I was probably the only one who didn’t have a graduation party planned. I didn’t care — celebrating was not on my mind.

Then somebody stepped to the plate. My mom’s friend, Sandy, told my dad she would host a graduation party for me at her house, just down the street from where we lived. My dad accepted Sandy’s offer, and we had a party attended by family and close friends.

There was a very low-key, mild celebration, and I will never forget the kindness Sandy showed to my dad and me. It seemed somewhat disrespectful to celebrate anything just four weeks after my mom had died, but we smiled and chatted and had a nice time.

In retrospect, that party might have provided much-needed therapy for everyone. It was our first venture into this new world without my mom. Our family and close friends were there to help ease the pain we all were feeling.

My mom was such a wonderful person — a genuine, caring human being. We only had her for a short time, but she managed to leave an indelible mark on everybody — especially me.

As did her friend, Sandy Kraynack Potoski. Sandy was full of energy and always ready for anything at the drop of a hat. She would run to Golden Quality for CMPs or to Stookey’s for BBQs, or she would sit on our front porch and make us laugh.

When I came down with the mumps at age 10, Sandy taught me how to wiggle my ears.

You never forget people like that. They have special, magical powers.

They do nice things all the time because they are genuinely sincere and they care.

That’s why we had a graduation party.

Sandy’s parents — Ecky and Mrs. K. — were like grandparents to me. Her family was my family.

That’s why, on Christmas Day 1968 — just seven and a half months after my mom had died — we were all devastated when Sandy died of leukemia. Sandy was only 28 years old.

So when graduation time comes around, my memories are not of pomp and circumstance.

They are of family, friendship, compassion, grief, CMPs, and wiggling ears — and my mom and her dear friend, Sandy.

All of that, I will forever celebrate.

It is with heavy hearts and a lifetime of memories that we share the passing of Butch Shatrowskas, who at 63 has officially claimed the best seat at the great bar in the sky. If you knew Butch, you knew he lived life with the volume turned all the way up. He was the life of every room he walked into, bringing his signature singing, dancing, and booming laugh wherever he went.

From a young age, Butch understood the value of hard work. He dedicated himself fully to every task and earned a reputation as one of the best heavy-machine operators around. His passion for hard work brought him to Danella Line Services, to Dycom Industries, to PennDOT, and to Bel Air Pools and Excavating. For most of his life, he worked three jobs at one time. There wasn't a job he couldn't, or wouldn't, tackle. Off the clock, he was a legend of generosity and unwavering loyalty — the man who showed up before you asked, offered help before you knew you needed it, and never let a friend buy their own drink. He lived life on his terms, traveling the world and enjoying all the best this life has to offer. No matter where he went, he always wanted and got “the best.” Above all, he was a deeply loyal husband, father, grandfather, son, brother, uncle, nephew, cousin, and brother-in-law, sharing a lifetime of kindness and unwavering devotion to his family and friends. Butch leaves behind his beloved wife and soul-mate, Kim, his partner in crime through every adventure. His spirit lives on in his daughters, Kasey (Gary) and Ally, and in his cherished grandchildren, Emmie and Eva, who will undoubtedly carry forward his zest for life. He will also be deeply missed by his parents, Barb and Butch; his sister, Jackie (and dear friend Bob); his brother, Jason (Courtney); his nieces and nephews; and his many special aunts, uncles, and cousins. He treasured the friendships and countless laughs he shared with his work family, many of whom he considered brothers.

While our world feels quieter without his larger-than-life presence, we take comfort in imagining him already holding court at the pearly gates' happiest hour, captivating a new audience with stories only he could tell. His absence will be felt profoundly, but his memory will forever bring a smile to our faces and love to our hearts. We are so proud of all that you have accomplished, and we will be forever grateful for every moment spent with you. Services will be private, allowing his closest loved ones to share their final goodbyes. Raise a glass to Butch — he's definitely raising one back. George Heidenreich Jr., 96, of Dallas, passed away May 22, 2026.

George was born in Ashley to Ellen (Whitehouse) and George Heidenreich Sr. He was a helpful child, doing odd jobs for widowed war wives up and down Hartford Street growing up. He excelled in school at Ashley High School, where he played the trumpet in the band. He had a great love for learning and music, which lasted a lifetime.

George took his love of music and served with the U.S. Army Band during the Korean Conflict, but was never deployed overseas. Following those years of service, George attended East Stroudsburg College (now University), where he majored in education and was a standout member of the basketball team, another great passion of his. George went on to teach at Pascack Valley High School in New Jersey, where he also coached basketball, for nearly 30 years before retiring. This coaching furthered his love for education in teaching basketball fundamentals, along with baseball and softball skills. Through this teaching and mentoring of sports for so many years, George was able to forge great relationships with athletes and parents throughout North Jersey and Wyoming Valley. Upon high school retirement, George moved to Penn Lake in White Haven and Wilkes-Barre, forging many lifelong friendships.

He continued mentoring and coaching sports at Hanover High School and Ashley Little League, among other places, for the next several years, all while continuing his love of learning by reading and researching about sports. Through this love, George was able to help others reach their goals and develop skills that would carry some on to college scholarships. If you wanted to know about sports, he was the man to ask.

George was an avid tennis player, bowler, and a committed reader, remaining a lifelong learner. Not only was he a sports mentor, he was very active in local fitness centers well in to his late 80s, walking or jogging miles a week and keeping fit in both mind and body.

He was preceded in death by his parents; sister, Carol Centrella; first wife, Margaret Shrader; and second wife of nearly 30 years, Mary Ormanowski.

He is survived by his niece, Donna Edwards of Ashley; several other nieces and nephews; and stepson, Richard Ormanowski of Norristown.

The family wishes to thank the staff and administration at Meadows Personal Care and Skilled facilities for caring for George, and thank the staff of Geisinger South Wilkes-Barre and Serenity Hospice Care for keeping George comfortable in his final days.

A memorial will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Wednesday at George A. Strish Inc. Funeral Home, 105 N. Main St., Ashley.

WARP ceremony honors former Rep. Aaron Kaufer

By Tony Callaio
For Times Leader

WYOMING — A ceremony was held at the headquarters of the Wyoming Area Regional Police (WARP), the former site of the Pennsylvania State Police (PSP) Barracks, for former State Rep. Aaron Kaufer for his work and dedication in getting the WARP department off the ground on Jan. 1, 2023.

Then State Rep. Kaufer was on the initial team in assembling the five municipalities: Wyoming, West Wyoming, Exeter, Exeter Twp., and West Pittston police departments to merge, creating the first regional police force of its kind in Northeast Pennsylvania.

All the pieces of the puzzle fell into place after several attempts at creating a regional police force dating as far back as the early 2000s.

Cassandra Coleman, then working in the PA Gov. Tom Wolf's administration at the time, was able to help secure a grant to purchase the vacated State Police Barracks when the PSP relocated in 2021 for their new barracks in Hanover Twp.

Once the building was purchased and secured, WARP was off and running, taking over nine months of meetings to complete the process in order to create WARP.

"It took a village to bring this together with five communities working to get this done," Kaufer said. "It's all the commission members that deserve all the credit. I certainly sat there as the chair, or referee, as Chairman (Joe) Pizano said, it really took all the communities to put their egos aside to get it done. Nothing ever happens until it does, and we proved that we could get something done."

Kaufer said WARP is now the gold standard when it comes to law enforcement regionalization.

WARP Chief of Police Michael Turner thanked many for getting the police department finalized, including Kaufer, in applauding his efforts to make WARP a reality.

He also included former Gov. Wolf, former State Sen. John Yudichak, Cassandra Coleman, and Solicitor Atty. Shannon Lapsansky, as well as former and current commissioners.

Turner singled out the first and former WARP Chief of Police D.F. Pace.

Members of the Wyoming Area Regional Police Commission accepted a grant from the PA House of Representatives, presented and sponsored by State Rep. Brenda Pugh. Members of the commission, from left: Michael Baloga, Wyoming Council; Joseph Scaltz, Wyoming Council; West Pittston Mayor Angelo Alfano; Wyoming Mayor Joseph Dominick; State Rep. Brenda Pugh; Wyoming Area Regional Police Chief Michael Turner; Joseph Pizzano, Exeter Borough; Exeter Mayor Denise Adams; Gary Stavish, West Wyoming Council; and West Wyoming Mayor Randy Colarusso.

State Rep. Brenda Pugh, left, spoke on the importance of regionalization in law enforcement. Wyoming Area Regional Police Chief Michael Turner, right, looks on.

State Rep. Brenda Pugh, along with Exeter Borough Council Chairman Joe Pizano, helped former State Rep. Aaron Kaufer take down the shroud covering his image in recognition of his contribution in creating the Wyoming Area Regional Police in a ceremony on Saturday.

"I give a lot of credit to former Chief D.F. Pace," Turner said. "Just seeing what he did and the foundation he laid, the foundation of a professional police department by setting up programs, policies, and procedures, and when I took over, I just continued his foundation."

At the conclusion of the unveiling of a plaque with Kaufer's name and likeness, a brief reception was held at the new conference/community room.

During the reception, State Rep. Pugh handed over a check for $110,000 to WARP for additional training equipment and infrastructure renovations.

"Regionalization is the way to go, and public safety is a top priority for me," Pugh stated. "So being able to help and fund public safety inside our communities, I will fight every day for that. Regionalization makes us stronger, bigger, and a more forceful police force."

Wyoming Area Regional Police (WARP) Chief Michael Turner, left, thanked former State Rep. Aaron Kaufer, right, for his contribution in forming the regional police department from municipalities making up the Wyoming Area School District. WARP dedicated a plaque in Kaufer's name and image, noting the occasion on Saturday.

"Success in life may not be linear, but for Trailblazers, success comes to those who dare to earn it," Yudichak said. "Be bold, dare greatly, dream big. You are the authors of your own life story."

Keynote speaker Fanita Y. Pendleton '91, M.P.A., returned to LCCC 35 years after her own graduation, sharing her journey from non-traditional student to probation officer and magistrate judge.

"Luzerne County Community College was the springboard for my next phase of life," Pendleton said. "What will it be for you?"

Pendleton, as well as graduate speaker Maria Pia Aliaga Maldonado, '26, A.A.S., spoke on the importance of resilience.

"In our time here at LCCC, we faced many obstacles. Our biggest enemy was ourselves," Maldonado said. "In the battle of me versus me, what choice do I have but to win?"

"If I am here today, it is because I never, never stopped believing in myself," she said. "Congratulations for believing in yourself, Class of 2026."

Graduates were recognized during the ceremony with awards through the Luzerne County Community College Alumni Association. Madison Mary-Katherine Hayes received the Alumni Association Outstanding Graduate Award, and Tricia Womer received the Outstanding Adult Learner Graduate Award.

The Class of 2026 now joins nearly 40,000 alumni of Luzerne County Community College.

Trump vents about judge who blocked the Kennedy Center renovation and fumes over his legal setbacks

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump is fuming about a court ruling that blocked his renovation plans for the Kennedy Center in Washington. He's using a social media post to brand the federal judge who issued the ruling Friday as "an anti Trump Hater." And the Republican president is predicting that the nation's premier performing arts center he wanted to shutter for a two-year overhaul will "soon be closed, probably never to open again."

In a post on his Truth Social platform, Trump's Truth Social post continued to make the case for the project but didn't clarify whether he'll keep defending the work in court.

US says it struck a commercial ship trying to breach blockade and reach Iran

WASHINGTON — The U.S. military says it stopped another commercial vessel trying to break through the U.S. blockade of Iranian ports. The military said on Saturday that the Gambia-flagged bulk carrier Lian Star ignored multiple warnings from U.S. forces overnight and so its engine room was struck with a missile. The ship remains adrift in the Gulf of Oman. The U.S. launched the blockade on April 17 in response to Iran effectively closing the strait after the war began with U.S. and Israeli strikes on Feb. 28. A fragile ceasefire has held since April 7, with discussions ongoing about extending it.

Israeli launches strikes near ancient heritage castle site in southern Lebanon

ADLOUN, Lebanon — Israel's air force and artillery have struck areas near a strategic mountain in southern Lebanon. The attacks on Saturday came as fighting continued near the city of Nabatiyeh. Israel's military issued evacuation warnings for over a dozen villages. This follows direct talks between Lebanese and Israeli military officials at the Pentagon. Lebanon's president and prime minister discussed the situation, vowing to intensify efforts to stop Israel's actions. Lebanon's state news agency reported airstrikes near the Beaufort castle, with Israeli troops advancing in nearby villages. Hezbollah retaliated by firing rockets at northern Israel. The conflict has caused significant casualties and displacement.

Venezuela's opposition candidate Edmundo González calls for presidential elections

CARACAS — Former Venezuelan opposition candidate Edmundo González is calling for presidential elections as the five-month mark of interim President Delcy Rodríguez's administration approaches, following a U.S. military intervention that ousted Nicolás Maduro in January. Electoral records that showed González's victory over Maduro were deemed credible by international observers. González took to social media on Saturday to call for elections.

Capitol rioters clamor for payouts from Trump's new 'anti-weaponization' fund despite backlash

WASHINGTON — Many of the convicted rioters who stormed the Capitol on Jan. 6, 2021, are clamoring for payouts from the nearly $1.8 billion settlement that the Trump administration has set up for people claiming to be victims of a weaponized government. Whether they'll be eligible for any money remains an open question. The political and legal backlash to the administration's move hasn't dimmed the celebratory response from Capitol rioters. Some are staking claims to the money even though the government hasn't established an application process yet and a judge has frozen the fund's formation, at least temporarily.

Congress has taken on Epstein, but lawmakers and survivors are still searching for accountability

WASHINGTON — Public demand and the increasingly outspoken calls from the survivors of Jeffrey Epstein's sexual abuse have driven Congress to mostly set aside party politics in an effort to search for accountability. That search has even led to interviews with some of the highest-ranked officials to ever appear before a congressional investigation, including a former president. Yet lawmakers have little to show in terms of criminal culpability for Epstein's crimes or a definitive acknowledgment of government failure. Lawmakers and survivors of his abuse are still grasping for a sense of finality. Some lawmakers say there should still be criminal investigations.

WHO chief visits epicenter of the Ebola outbreak in eastern Congo as cases outpace response

BUNIA, Congo — The head of the World Health Organization has visited Bunia in eastern Congo, where a rare Ebola outbreak is spreading rapidly. WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus emphasized building community trust and safe burials to prevent the virus's spread. He urged countries to reconsider travel bans, saying they discourage transparency. He said that Congo had faced Ebola 16 times before and ended each outbreak. The current outbreak has 906 suspected cases and 223 deaths. Medical aid from the EU and the U.S. has arrived, but Doctors Without Borders warns the response is not keeping pace with the outbreak.

'What's the word?' New Jersey voters look for answers about Tom Kean Jr.'s absence from Congress

WESTFIELD, N.J. — Some New Jersey voters are starting to notice Tom Kean Jr.'s monthslong absence from Congress due to an undisclosed medical issue. "What's the word?" was the question posed a recent town hall in Kean's district that was held by a state senator, Republican Jon Bramnick. Voters wondered whether Bramnick himself could replace Kean if the congressman were to drop his reelection bid. The pressure is ratcheting up in the 7th Congressional District as Democrats are hoping to unseat Kean in their bid to regain control of Congress. Kean isn't facing any challengers in Tuesday's primary while several Democrats are running for their party's nomination.

DOJ seeks recusal of judge from Georgia election case over reported attendance at Fani Willis event

ATLANTA — The U.S. Department of Justice is asking a judge to recuse herself from a case involving Georgia election records. They argue that her reported attendance at an event honoring Fulton County District Attorney Fani Willis raises questions about her impartiality. The Justice Department is relying on media reports that identify U.S. District Judge Eleanor Ross as the subject of a disciplinary action following a court investigation. A judge was found to have had sex at the courthouse with a police officer and to have attended a partisan political event. The Associated Press has not independently confirmed the judge's identity. Ross declined to comment in a statement released by the court.

Arsenal defender Gabriel Magalhaes fired the last of his team's penalties over the bar to hand PSG a 4-3 shootout victory. Pat Smith, vice president of the Plymouth Historical Society, read a proclamation from Gov. Josh Shapiro recognizing the milestone. Similar proclamations were presented by Luzerne County Council Vice-Chair Brittany Stephenson on behalf of Luzerne County Council and by Coughlin on behalf of Plymouth Borough.

Alan Stout, executive director of Visit Luzerne County, Joe Slusser, of the Plymouth Historical Society, and Earl Cunningham, Plymouth Borough councilman and president of the Historical Shawnee Cemetery Preservation Association, also gave remarks on the borough's history and milestones.

"It's towns like this and groups like this, and a group like Plymouth Alive, that inspires us at the visitors bureau," Stout said. "We cannot promote Luzerne County as a great place to visit unless it's also a great place to live."

Attendee Sharon O'Boyle, a former Plymouth resident, said her family reunited in the borough for the occasion.

"We grew up here. We all live in different places now," she said, noting she and her family came in from Virginia, Florida, and the U.S. Virgin Islands. "We all came back for this big celebration in Plymouth." O'Boyle said it's a worthy occasion for her family and wider community to get together. "Our country made it 250 years," she said. "That's a big accomplishment." Jeff Smith, of the 24th

Connecticut Militia Regiment that participated in the parade, echoed that point. "We are probably one of the greatest counties ever to be, even with our mistakes," Smith said. "That's a good reason to celebrate."

Taking a wing tour

Mike McGinley
Around Town

I feel like I've been on a wing tour recently. Within the last few weeks, I've stopped at several places on a whim — and ended up ordering wings at each location. I love the endless wing sauce options, so it always feels like I'm having a different meal, depending on the sauce I try.

Wings with crispy skin and tender dark meat are my favorite, and they're an awesome conversation piece.

It all started a few weeks ago when Oscar and I were coming back from the Glen Lyon American Legion Post 539 and VFW Post 8353. We were there to visit some veterans, and on our way through Nanticoke, we realized we had forgotten all about dinner.

We stopped at R Bar and Grill. It had been years since I'd been there, so I was thrilled to walk in, see bartender Ashley, and peruse the big menu.

R Bar has tons of wing flavors and all sorts of other comfort foods like burgers, sandwiches, and salads.

The famous wing flavors seem endless. To name a few types: Honey BBQ, General TSO, Teriyaki, Honey Mustard, Red Garlic, Mild, BLT, Jalapeno Cheddar, Chipotle Ranch, and Chocolate Bacon (I think I had the Sweet Bourbon, but don't quote me). There are also dry rub flavors such as Old Bay Citrus, Taco Ranch, Cool Ranch, Salt and Vinegar, BBQ Bacon, Dill Pickle, and more.

I had a big chicken Caesar salad, too, and was honestly so impressed with everything.

There's a small kids' menu, appetizer options, some seafood, and pizza, also.

Definitely consider R Bar if you're in Nanticoke's neck of the woods. We also found ourselves at Elmer Sudds on Northampton Street in Wilkes-Barre last week and were delighted with the wings there, too.

Elmer Sudds is an old-school bar and restaurant with crispy wings, fries, fish and chips, and other pub fare (not to mention an amazing beer selection).

It's only open a few nights a week, so you have to check social media to confirm, but I was happy we stopped when we did.

We had wings, fish and chips, and jalapeno poppers on this particular Friday night.

I couldn't believe I'd never set foot in the neighborhood bar before and found myself enthralled by the city vibe nestled right on Northampton Street.

As you listen to these lyrics in the song "Ya Got Trouble," which Harold sings to the townsfolk of 1912 River City in the musical "The Music Man," you might think: "Huh? What kind of crazy distinction is that?"

The song continues with more odd distinctions, as Harold suggests the pool table will lead young people to gambling,

Blues artist Gracie Curran heading to BTE

Concert kicks off BTE summer season

By Mary Therese Biebel
mbiebel@timesleader.com

Before she returns to the Briggs Farm Blues Festival in July, where she enjoys not only singing but "chomping on some of that delicious sweet corn," standout blues artist Gracie Curran, of Gracie Curran & The High Falutin' Band, will perform at the Alvina Krause Theatre in downtown Bloomsburg.

Set for 7:30 p.m. June 6, the concert ($25) is part of "A Blues, Brass and BTE Weekend" that will kick off the Bloomsburg Theatre Ensemble's summer season. The weekend also includes a Pops & Patriots concert by the Williamsport Symphony Orchestra Billtown Brass Band ($15), set for 3 p.m. June 7.

In advance of the Blues, Brass and BTE Weekend, Curran, who is on the road, answered some interview questions from the Times Leader via email.

TL: High Falutin' Band is such a great name. Is there a story behind it?

GC: We had been tossing around band names — and I mentioned how much I loved Sharon Jones & The Dap Kings — and their band name — and how polished and fancy it sounded! I turned to the guys and said, "We need to find a name for our high-falutin' band!" We all kind of looked at each other and said: "That's it!" Since then, it's been 16 years of misspelling and mispronunciations (laughs). But I got to tell Sharon Jones that story, and she appreciated the homage!

TL: What have your experiences at the Briggs Farm Blues Festival been like?

GC: Briggs Farm Festival is just magical — truly special and really one of the best family festivals in the country! It feels like family — from the Briggs themselves, who are so great! — to the fantastic production crew, all the folks backstage and the amazing fans! It's a whole vibe — and talking to those fans, some of them have been going for years and years — it's easy to see why. We've played twice now and are excited to be coming back in July! This year's lineup is just nuts! So I'll be putting on a great show for everyone and will be dancing in the audience later on! I can't wait!

TL: Can you tell us about a song or two that you'll sing in Bloomsburg?

GC: We just finished our third studio album with Grammy-nominated producer and just monster guitar player Dave Gross (another Briggs Farm alum!) This new album is just a whole new level for us as a band and as songwriters. I'm really proud of it and think we made a really beautiful, honest and poignant piece of art.

Making up after a serious mistake

“I regret something I did awhile back that damaged my relationship with a beautiful person. I have tried to rebuild the trust between us but as of today I don’t think I have enough juice to keep trying to put things back together.”

“I think I’d like to part ways but I want it to be on the best terms. Is there something I can say that might make things be somewhat better between us?”

G: As much as we may think that we can patch up things when we fall short, there often is a tender spot that remains a bruise. In my playbook, we don’t have to succeed in fixing our mistakes, we just have to try to fix them as we go. Some bruises may become scars for life, while others can become marks of wisdom.

Sounds like you have been doing the work and have come to a realization that what you are wanting to accomplish is perhaps not possible at this time, if ever. That’s not a bad place to arrive at actually, as it shows that you are living in reality instead of fantasy.

Many people prefer to make their apologies over the phone or by text, and sometimes in person if they are really trying to get back in the good graces of the other. I think that a written apology, without going in to the minutia of the mistake, can help soothe the pain. I don’t recommend giving flowers with any apology.

When we do something we then later come to regret, or come to see with different eyes, we might end up mishandling how we try to fix the situation. Sometimes we’ll say a lot of words without really saying the very right thing that could ease the suffering and guilt. Just saying “I’m sorry” over and over is not going to cut it. And trying to explain or justify why we’ve made the mistake is also not all that helpful.

What I think works best is simply allowing the other person to decide in their own time whether or not they are wanting to be forgiving. They have to decide whether or not they really want to put in the effort to allow you to deal with the issue at an intimate level, where you both get the time and space to hash it out.

At this point in your process of atonement, I think you could try a brief handwritten note that says your relationship has been important to you and is something you would like to heal. Let them know you accept that the timing may not be right for them, now or even later. State that you would like to meet in person to resolve the break, to see if there is a way forward that feels healthy for both of you.

How they respond, or do not respond, will show you whether or not there’s any “there” there. After that is sent, it is up to you to decide if you want to look forward and move in that direction by yourself. You have recognized what the misstep was and maybe you have discovered some of the underlying reasons for why you permitted yourself to break a vow, or else believe the lie that you told yourself, that what you were doing was OK.

No matter what, you’ve grown some from having made this mistake and recognizing the severity of the cost. The other person may or may not have any accountability for it ever happening, but their responsibility is not what this experience is really about. Let them come to that as they will, without your tutorial. There’s a new beginning for both of you, apart or together. If you can begin to look at this as an opportunity for you to do better the next time, you are on the path to being happier. The more happiness we can come to feel that is not solely at the expense of another, the likelihood is we will create less needless suffering and confusion for others.

So we'll be sharing lots of new music and also playing some of our favorites off our first two albums, and we even have some fun covers that will blow your mind! (I hope!) lol.

Music

The song shows what a clever salesman Harold Hill is, said actor Elliott Andrews, who will portray the title character when Broadway in Scranton brings the musical "The Music Man" to the Scranton Cultural Center for four shows June 12-14.

"To appreciate it, you've got to look at the lines right before it,"

TL: What is it about the blues that drew you to this art form?
GC: My mom was the choir director at our little church (off the coast, near Boston) but she also loved Bette Midler and Anne Murray — and my Dad was a huge Beatles fan and loved BB King and Bonnie Raitt and

Janis Joplin. The more I heard these artists and their influences and you keep digging — it really takes you to the root — Blues — which is really the base of all music. There's an honesty and history and realness that I appreciate. And I've always been drawn to that. But it's also amazing to see what the roots have produced — the sounds and genres that have sprouted — and I really love all of that Americana and Roots Music - because it becomes a reflection of yourself, your experiences and culture and creativity and becomes something new and unique. It helps you find your voice.

TL: Is there anything else you'd like to tell your audience?
GC: A lot of people think the Blues has to be heavy or sad — when it's just honesty. It is what it is. It can be joy or heartbreak — it can be complete euphoria or hysterically funny or bring-you-to-your-knees awesome. But it's an experience, a journey. And I love taking an audience on that journey. I always see tears — tears from a recognition of oneself in our songs or because they are laughing so hard tears are streaming down their faces. I'm excited to bring that to Bloomsburg and to Briggs!

Elizabeth D'Aiuto as Marian the librarian and Elliott Andrews as traveling salesman/con man Harold Hill fall in love in the musical 'The Music Man,' which opens at the Scranton Cultural Center on June 12.

"It shows the change one person can make," the actor said. "You can make a change in your workplace, your church, your line in the grocery store."

As he travels the country with the show, Andrews said, he's noticed many theater-goers are grateful for a chance to see an old-fashioned musical from the "Golden Age" of musicals, like this one, which won five Tony Awards after its 1957 Broadway debut.

"'Music Man' persists," he said. "The jokes are excellent. The songs leave you tapping your toes. The heart of it is still there. This is what we all trained for, and I'm so grateful to be part of it."

Nowadays, "The Music Man" is most often performed by community theaters and school groups, Andrews said, adding that as the tour travels the country, "we've met many sixth-grade and sophomore-in-high-school counterparts of ourselves."

Here's another fun fact: "Music Man" composer and Iowa native Meredith Wilson also wrote the fight song for the University of Iowa athletic teams, and when the musical tour played in Iowa City, members of that school's Hawkeye Marching Band showed up to loan their talents to opening night.

"The Music Man" will be at the Scranton Cultural Center, 420 North Washington Ave., Scranton, at 7:30 p.m. June 12; 2 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. June 13, Tickets are available at scrantonculturalcenter.org or through the box office at 570-344-1111.

This image released by Voracious shows an Amalfi lemon margarita, a recipe from 'Freezer Door Cocktails: 75 Cocktails That Are Ready When You Are' by J. M. Hirsch.

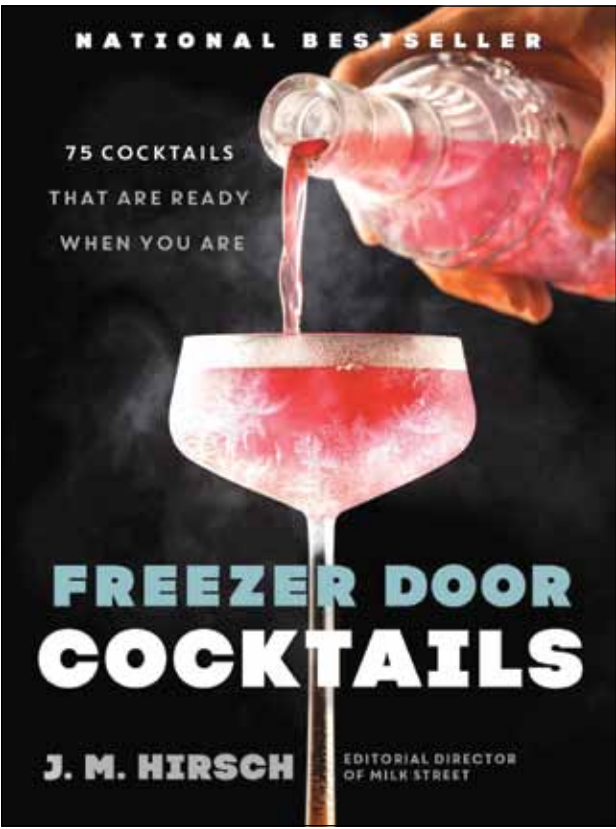

Limoncello, coconut oil and tequila combine for a margarita with tropical notes

By J.M. Hirsch
Voracious

The classic margarita from my book “Freezer Door Cocktails” calls for four things — tequila, orange liqueur, sugar and lime. This variation, inspired by a cocktail at Bitter & Twisted in Phoenix, keeps the key flavors, but gets to the finish line a little differently.

Italian limoncello — a sweet, boldly lemony Italian liqueur — provides most of the sugar and all of the citrus. To give the cocktail creamy tropical notes that play perfectly with the limoncello, we use coconut oil to fat-wash the tequila. The result is wildly refreshing and tropical.

Starting with a full bottle of tequila? Pour off 7½ ounces (225 ml), use the remaining for this recipe, and store the final product in the tequila bottle.

This image released by Voracious shows 'Freezer Door Cocktails: 75 Cocktails That Are Ready When You Are' by J. M. Hirsch.

Amalfi Lemon Margarita
Makes: 5 to 7 Cocktails
Ingredients
17 ½ ounces (525 mL)

blanco tequila
2 ounces (60 mL)
coconut oil, melted
5 ¼ ounces (158 mL)

limoncello
1 ounce (30 mL) agave or simple syrup
Crushed ice, to serve

Directions
In a liquid measuring cup with at least a 4-cup (1-quart or 1-liter) capacity, stir together the tequila and coconut oil. Let sit at room temperature for 5 minutes, stirring often. Place in the freezer for 30 minutes. Strain through a cheesecloth-lined mesh strainer into a 750-milliliter bottle; discard the solids. Add the limoncello and syrup. Cap the bottle securely, then shake well to mix. Store in the freezer. To serve, pour into a coupe filled halfway with crushed ice.

What’s in your dog’s food?

By American Kennel Club

You are what you eat. Keeping your dog healthy includes providing them with a nutritionally balanced diet. Keeping an eye on what and how you feed your dog can make all the difference in their nutritional health.

The American Kennel Club offers tips on how to make sure you are feeding your dog quality food.

• Requirements for a healthy diet. A well-balanced diet for your dog must include whole food ingredients that provide protein, fats and fatty acids, carbohydrates, fiber, vitamins, minerals and water. Whole food ingredients are minimally processed so they deliver the nutrients, vitamins and fiber that pack the most value. These include fresh and raw meats, fruits and vegetables — as opposed to powdered or synthetic ingredients.

• Safety requirements for quality food. It is just as important to monitor where the ingredients come from. Make sure to do some research as to how those ingredients were sourced, prepared, stored and whether the final product was checked for safety.

• One size does not fit all. Your dog’s nutritional requirements will depend on age, size, health and breed. Make sure you pick the right combination to support your dog’s health. It is also important to monitor this information at each stage of your dog’s life, as their nutritional requirements can change as they age.

• How to store your dog’s food. Once you find the right food for your dog, it is important to keep it fresh and safe to ensure its longevity and effectiveness. The Food and Drug Administration offers these suggestions: Store dry pet food in its original bag with the top tightly folded down. If you want to store it in another storage container, put the entire bag into the container. Keep pet food in a secure location where your pet can’t get to it. Store dry food in a cool dry place at a temperature less than 80 degrees Fahrenheit. Wash pet food bowls and scooping utensils with soap and hot water after each use. Throw out old or spoiled pet food by placing it in a securely tied plastic bag in a covered trash can.

RailRiders snap four-game skid

Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders

The Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders topped the Worcester Red Sox 7-2 Saturday night at PNC Field. SWB totaled 13 hits, including three each from Spencer Jones and Oswaldo Cabrera, to snap a four-game losing streak.

The RailRiders put base runners on in every inning and scored their first runs in the third. Kenedy Corona led off with a double and Spencer Jones singled him home. Tyler Hardman followed with a run-scoring double and Payton Henry backed it up with an RBI single for a 3-0 lead.

In the fourth, SWB added two more. Jonathan Ornelas earned a triple and Corona immediately batted him in. After Corona stole a bag, Jones again sent in the runner with a base hit for a 5-0 lead.

Oswaldo Cabrera recorded his second hit of the night, a single to begin the seventh. Hardman followed with his second two-bagger of the game, and Henry worked a walk to load the bases. Ernesto Martinez Jr. smacked a deep sacrifice fly to left center to drive in another run.

The RailRiders added another in the next inning on a two-out rally. George Lombard Jr. walked and Jones followed with his third hit of the night. Cabrera laced an RBI base hit to right for a 7-0 score.

Coco Gauff returns to Anastasia Potapova during their third round women’s singles match on Saturday at the French Open.

Gauff’s French Open title reign ends

By Andrew Dampf
AP Sports Writer

PARIS — A minor car crash couldn’t sidetrack Coco Gauff before she began her French Open title defense.

It took a player who could match the American’s court coverage in long baseline rallies to mark the end of the road for Gauff in Paris.

That player was Anastasia Potapova, who produced a 4-6, 7-6 (1), 6-4 victory over Gauff in the third round on Saturday.

“She was able to finish the points and I wasn’t,” Gauff said. “Just not capitalizing on certain shots.”

The match was played before mostly empty stands inside Court Philippe-Chatrier as French fans stayed away to watch the Champions League soccer final.

Gauff’s second Grand Slam title came with a victory over top-ranked Aryna Sabalenka in the final at Roland Garros a year ago.

Coco Gauff bids goodbye to the crowd while leaving the court after her French Open title defense ended on Saturday in Paris.

Before her opening victory over Taylor Townsend on Tuesday, Gauff was involved in a car accident on the way to the tournament grounds. She wasn’t injured, but the car wasn’t drivable anymore.

The 30th-ranked Potapova, who was born in Russia but now represents Austria, improved to 3-2 in her career against Gauff.

She’s having quite a clay season after reaching a final in Linz, Austria, and the semifinals of the Madrid Open as a qualifier.

The fourth-ranked Gauff was coming off a run to the Italian Open final. She was beaten in Rome by Elina Svitolina — another player who can match her on long rallies.

“I lost the same way in Rome as I did here,” Gauff said. “You never want to lose the same way back-to-back times.”

Christina Candio is a King’s alum who has used her background in music to help her with training for endurance racing. Now she helps impart those lessons in rhythm and pacing to others through her family-owned company, EnFlyte Endurance Coaching.

BACK MOUNTAIN TRIATHLON: ATHLETE STORIES

Candio finds her rhythm in coaching

By Andrea Butchko
Special to Times Leader

On Aug. 30, the Back Mountain Triathlon will bring the tradition of triathlon racing back to Harveys Lake and the Back Mountain community. More than 300 athletes are expected; first-timers and relay teams are welcome. The race offers Olympic distance, Sprint distance and Aquabike options.

On Sundays leading up to the event, this series will highlight those who have been involved in the sport over the years.

More info can be found at backmountaintriathlon.com.

Every triathlete has a song — the one that carries them through the final minutes of a grueling training day, pulls them out the door when motivation is hard to find or brings them back to a breakthrough performance they never want to forget.

Some songs mark triumph, others stir unfinished business, but for Christina Candio, triathlon is more than something set to music. It is the song itself.

Candio’s path to endurance sports and coaching began not on a race course, but in a rehearsal room. Raised in Allentown, she came up in the disciplined world of music, where rhythm, structure and expression shaped her understanding of performance long before she saw herself as an athlete.

In a competitive marching band at Emmaus High School, she learned the rigor and precision required to perform at a high level — lessons she would only later recognize as athletic in their own right.

“It wasn’t until about 10 years ago that I realized that marching band was an athletic achievement, not just a group to support the football team,” Candio said.

What she could not yet see was that those early lessons in discipline and performance were already preparing her for endurance racing.

Candio might never have discovered her potential in the endurance world without confronting what many athletes try to avoid: weakness. At Wagner College, where she attended on a music scholarship, she came to understand that her future in music was less certain than she had once believed.

Though she excelled at reading and playing music, she recognized a limitation that would ultimately redirect her path: “I can read music and play almost any instrument, but I cannot write music.”

Realizing how deeply that gap could shape a full-time career, she made the difficult decision to pivot. What first felt like a setback became a turning point. That pivot led Candio to shift her academic focus to English literature, continuing her education with graduate work in Wilkes-Barre at King’s College and a second master’s degree from National University. Her professional path expanded into a 25-year career in corporate healthcare, but alongside that career, a new identity was beginning to take shape

“I didn’t want to just be ‘mom’ or ‘healthcare leader.’ I needed something that was just for me,” Candio said about this new step. Starting with distance running in 2008 — including early races that were self-supported for charity — Candio found both a new self-made label and a new outlet for the same discipline and drive that had defined her musical training.

As her interest in running grew, so too did her athletic ambitions. Under the guidance (or trickery) of a coach, she transitioned from marathons into triathlon, gradually building experience across all three disciplines. Since completing her first sprint triathlon in Philadelphia in 2017, Candio has gone on to finish multiple sprint events, an Olympic-distance race, six 70.3 races, and a full 140.6 Ironman.

Even in competition, her musical background remains evident—she often relies on rhythm and pacing. She explains “music is structured in measures, usually beats of four.” That same four count helps her maintain focus and consistency during swimming and running.

Today, Candio brings that full-circle experience into her role as a coach. As co-owner of EnFlyte Endurance Coaching, she works with athletes across a wide spectrum of experience, from beginners taking on their first race to seasoned competitors pursuing higher performance.

She believes strongly that “anybody at any level should have a coach,” emphasizing that the sport can feel overwhelming, and that the right guidance can break down both knowledge and accessibility barriers. Her coaching philosophy blends physical training with the mental side of performance, helping athletes build confidence, resilience and a sustainable approach to achieving their goals.

In many ways, Candio’s story is one of transformation — guided not by a straight path, but by a willingness to adapt. What began as a passion for music evolved into a career centered on helping others perform at their best, whether in the water, on the road or within themselves. The same discipline that once guided her through measures and tempos now drives her mission to support athletes in achieving their goals, proving that sometimes the most meaningful direction comes from recognizing — and embracing — what we cannot do.

BACKGROUND QUESTIONS

Q: Where did you grow up?
A: Allentown, Pa.
Q: What was your high school/college athletic experience?
A: Well, I was in competitive marching band in high school. We even had tryouts for our seats in each instrument section.
Q: Did your athletic background help you in triathlon?
A: My background in music and marching band has helped a lot. Music is structured in measures — a measure contains a certain number of beats. Commonly a measure had four beats; during swimming and running I pace myself in fours. I count to four in different tempos based on rate of perceived exertion (RPE) or pace to keep me focused.

Q: What is your favorite instrument to play?
A: I’d have to say it’s the marimba.

Q: Do you have any family members who are also triathletes?

A: My husband is a triathlete and last year my youngest daughter (13 at the time) did her first sprint at Lewisburg.

Q: Do you have an inspiration or someone who motivated you to begin triathlons?

A: I’ve been a runner since 2008. My first coach, Craig Sheckler, recommended cycling as cross-training for marathons. Before I knew it, he recommended getting in the pool and then signing up for a race. I was tricked!

Q: What/where/how long was your first triathlon?

A: My first triathlon was the Philadelphia Triathlon (sprint) in 2017.

Q: What is your experience with the Wilkes-Barre or Back Mountain Triathlon(s)?

A: My husband Jonathan and I co-own EnFlyte Endurance Coaching. Jonathan connected with Dave and Shaun before the 2024 Back Mountain Triathlon. We were so excited about the return of BMT that we joined as a sponsor. We’ve coached a few athletes to success at the Back Mountain Triathlon since then! Looking forward to Year 3 getting athletes to the Back Mountain Triathlon start line and sponsoring again!

Q: How do you and your husband fit your kids into your training?

A: We are a blended family with five kids:

Bella 22, Ava 18, Zach 17, Genny 15, Alli 14. They’re accustomed to our training! While it seems easier now (that they are older and) I’m not getting off the trainer to get a snack for someone or running loops around a lacrosse field, their schedules are (now) so different and demanding that we all need to get creative in how some workouts get completed.

FAVORITES

Q: Swim, bike or run?

A: This is like the question about my proudest moment — there are so many things I love about each of the disciplines. It’s tough to choose a favorite.

Q: Has your favorite changed?

A: What I love does change from time to time. I love swimming because it’s time away from technology, it’s quiet and it reminds me of all the swimming joys from my childhood. I love the bike because it was my biggest limiter and I have been successful in completing some very hilly courses. I love the run because I always have enjoyed time on my feet.

Q: Favorite triathlon/endurance race or dream race location?

A: Since I must narrow it down, I will say that one of my favorite races was back in 2022 in the Finger Lakes. Jon and I traveled to a small town outside Ithaca and spent a long weekend on working farm. The day before a 50K trail run we got engaged overlooking a beautiful waterfall. The race was amazing — so humid, beautiful and challenging. Felt so great to finish that race celebrating so much!

Q: Ideal pre-race and post-race meal?

A: Ideal pre-race meal is grilled chicken or steak with a baked potato dry. Ideal post-race meal is (typically much later) tacos or a burger with fries.

Q: What is your favorite type of workout when training for a race?

A: I love track and hill workouts!

Q: What is your favorite thing to do outside of triathlon or endurance racing?

A: I enjoy cooking and reading. I am an amateur plant caretaker. According to the kids, I have over 50 plants that I’ve been passionately maintaining.

Q: Favorite memory from a triathlon race?

A: Seeing my family all along the Mont Tremblant (Ironman) course. Hearing their cheers and seeing their faces was something I carried through to the finish line.

Q: Do you have a mantra or a phrase that gets you through the tough parts of training/racing?

A: Nothing lasts forever.

Q: Favorite race weather conditions?

A: Overcast in the 60s. But that never happens for the duration!

THIS OR THAT

Q: Garmin, Apple or no watch?

A: Garmin! But sometimes I’ll swim or run without a watch.

Q: Flip turns or wall touch?

A: Wall touch.

Q: Full kit or mixed-up pieces for race day?

A: Full kit all the way!

Q: Hand massage, Theragun or neither?

A: All the tools! Boots, lacrosse balls, foam rollers, Theraguns, soft tissue release, chiropractors.

Q: Relay or full tri?

A: Gosh. Great question! Relays are so fun, but I’ve only done one! I think I need to do more relays before I can truly respond.

LOOKING AHEAD

Q: Do you have any goals for your triathlon career?

A: I have a few. First and foremost, my open goal is to enjoy the experience — how I do that shifts from workout to workout, and from race to race.

Q: To be more specific, I’d like to do another 140.6 in the next few years, maybe Ironman Wisconsin.

A: How do you stay motivated through the off-season?

Q: For the most part, I don’t have trouble staying motivated. I really think because my goal is to find ways to enjoy the process — that’s enough for me to keep going. I’m consistent enough in moving my body daily that whatever the season/training demands, it’s part of my day-to-day; not anything extra.

Q: Any advice for those racing for the first time this year?

A: Keep your eyes on your own paper. It’s easy to get wrapped up in what everyone around you is doing, what they’re wearing, what gear they have. It’s your training and your race — focus on the things that are helpful for your first time. Anything else is a distraction.

Q: What does your race calendar look like?

A: This year I’ve focused more on running, even though I’m still swimming and biking regularly. I recently ran the Gettysburg Marathon and the Harveys Lake run. I have a trail race in July and thinking about some late summer and fall running races. My race calendar is pretty heavy in hardcore spectating for our EnFlyte Team athletes at a few triathlons including: Ironman Happy Valley 70.3, Steelman Triathlon and of course Back Mountain Triathlon, which I’m still thinking of signing up for!

Canes savor breakthrough in reaching Cup Final

By Aaron Beard
AP Sports Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — The on-ice celebration was underway for the Carolina Hurricanes after securing their first trip to the Stanley Cup Final in two decades. Rod Brind’Amour hugged and congratulated his players, all while reminding them there was another series ahead. Then came veteran forward Jordan Martinook.

“All right, Marty, you got us here,” Brind’Amour told him.

“One more,” Martinook replied, on cue. “Yep, one more.”

It took eight seasons under Brind’Amour — the captain on Carolina’s Cup winner in 2006 — to punch through an Eastern Conference Final roadblock by closing out the Montreal Canadiens in five games Friday night. So this moment was one to savor particularly for five players — Martinook, captain Jordan Staal, forwards Sebastian Aho and Andrei Svechnikov, and defenseman Jaccob Slavin — who have been here through the pain of three previous exits in this round going back to 2019 in Brind’Amour’s debut as head coach.

“It’s hard to really describe,” Staal said as he sat at his locker. “It’s been a lot of grinding, a lot of ups and downs. ... I’m just so happy to be where we’re at and just excited for the opportunity ahead.”

Carolina’s rise began with Brind’Amour being elevated to head coach in 2018 after seven seasons as an assistant. At the time, the Hurricanes were in a nine-year playoff drought.

They haven’t missed the post-season since. And the quintet has been there throughout that Brind’Amour-led climb:

- The Hurricanes acquired Staal from Pittsburgh during the 2012 NHL Entry Draft. He won the Cup with the Penguins in 2009 — which included a sweep of the Hurricanes in the Eastern Conference Final when Brind’Amour was still a player — but had toiled through six of Carolina’s postseason-less seasons.
- Slavin was a 2012 fourth-round pick who had played three seasons with Carolina before becoming one of the NHL’s best defense-first blue liners.
- Aho was a 2015 second-round pick and had played two seasons with Carolina on his way to developing into the Hurricanes’ top-line center.
- The Hurricanes acquired Martinook from Arizona days after Brind’Amour took over, adding a player who would join Staal on a strong checking line.
- And the Hurricanes drafted Svechnikov with the No. 2 overall pick a month after Brind’Amour’s promotion, with Svechnikov now a physical fixture on Aho’s wing. Results were immediate. Carolina took out the reigning Cup champion Washington Capitals in a seven-game first-round series, then went on to make an unexpected trip to the Eastern Conference Final before being swept by Boston. It was a start, both of sustained success and recurring frustration.

The Hurricanes returned to the Eastern Conference Final again in 2023, this time with home-ice advantage against the Florida Panthers. But they were swept again by four one-goal margins, including a four-over-time epic in Game 1.

Then last year, the Hurricanes returned for a rematch that quickly went awry. They lost Games 1 and 2 in a performance that frustrated a normally rowdy and exuberant home crowd, fell into an 0-3 series hole and exited in five games.

That dropped Carolina to 1-12 in that round under Brind’Amour, unable to turn years of consistent regular-season success into a breakthrough playoff moment. It’s all part of “scar tissue” Martinook mentioned Friday night, shared by the quintet with Brind’Amour as well as holdovers like assistant coach Jeff Daniels and longtime video coach Chris Huffine.

“They’ve really grinded out and did it the right way,” Brind’Amour said, “and took a lot of, I think, flack for getting this far and not getting past it. Unduly. I don’t think that was right, because they played as hard as they could. ... They gave it everything they had, and that’s all you can ask.

“We got better this year, we added some pieces that made us better to get us to this point. But as a coach, you watch these guys every day, there’s nobody luckier than me to have these guys, the way they approach their business on a daily basis, not just now.”

That was never more on display than against Montreal.

The Hurricanes swept Ottawa and Philadelphia in the first two rounds, securing an 11-day between-rounds break — the longest in the playoffs in more than a century. They emerged with a horrid start against the Canadiens, who pounced for four first-period goals in a 6-2 win that harkened back to past conference-final troubles.

Instead of stumbling, the play-off-tested Hurricanes ascended.

Now comes a date with Vegas for the Cup, a rare new experience for Carolina’s holdovers in this long run.

“I feel like it was more maybe you guys talking about, ‘Oh, this is the Eastern Conference Final, can’t go past it,’” Aho told reporters in the locker room afterward. “I thought the room was definitely very confident in what we can do. But yeah, it feels good to play for the Cup now.”

When Gauff shanked a forehand wide on Potapova’s first match point, Potapova fell on her back and covered her eyes as she stuck her feet up in the air in celebration. Gauff waved to the crowd and quickly walked off court when it was finished.

“Coco is such a champion. I respect her so much,” Potapova said. “I’ve been fighting for the last point and here I am.”

It wasn’t a matter of mistakes for Gauff — she hit three double-faults to her opponent’s eight and had 46 unforced errors to Potapova’s 56. It was more that Potapova controlled more in the longer rallies and wore Gauff out.

Gauff ran a total of 2,309 meters (yards) to Potapova’s 2,090.

Earlier, Naomi Osaka beat 18-year-old American opponent Iva Jovic 7-6 (5), 6-7 (3), 6-4 after nearly three hours — in her 100th Grand Slam match — to set up a round-of-16 meeting with top-ranked Aryna Sabalenka, who beat Daria Kasatkina 6-0, 7-5.

For her second-straight match, Osaka wore a metallic gold bomber jacket over a sequined gold playing dress during her walk-on. But this time her outfit was offset by a tannish-gold colored train that stretched all the way down to the red clay on Court Suzanne-Lenglen.

“It’s a surprise every time,” Osaka said of her fashion choices.

“For me, it would be weirder to wear a normal tennis kit, almost, at this point. It’s the fun of it. For a long time, I didn’t have fun for a little bit. And you guys know that period of time in my life,” Osaka added, referring to how in 2021 she withdrew from the French Open because of issues with anxiety and depression. “Now I just want things to be fun, and I want to make it exciting for myself.”

Osaka’s outfits are planned a year and a half in advance and require at least four fittings.

“We have so many fittings throughout the year because your weight can fluctuate or the fabric can change a little bit,” she said. “There is a lot of effort that goes into it.”

For the seventh straight day of the tournament, it was hot and humid, with the temperature rising to 34 degrees Celsius (93 degrees Fahrenheit). The heat is expected to break for Sunday and the second week.

In men’s action, Alejandro Tabilo ended the run of 17-year-old Frenchman Moise Kouame with a 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 7-6 (9) victory. Tabilo next meets Felix Auger-Aliassime, who beat American opponent Brandon Nakashima 5-7, 6-1, 7-6 (4), 7-6 (1).

At No. 4, Auger-Aliassime is the highest-seeded player remaining in the top half of the draw after Jannik Sinner’s defeat two days ago.

Juan Manuel Cerundolo followed up his stunning victory over top-ranked Sinner with another five-set victory, beating Martin Landaluce 6-4, 6-7 (7), 7-6 (4), 6-7 (4), 7-6 (8) in 5 hours, 58 minutes — the longest French Open match in six years.

Cerundolo will next meet 2021 Wimbledon finalist Matteo Berrettini, who required 5 hours, 13 minutes to defeat Francisco Comesana 7-6 (3), 5-7, 6-7 (4), 6-4, 7-6 (13).

Flavio Cobolli beat Learner Tien 6-2, 6-2, 6-3 and will next meet unsung American Zachary Svajda, who defeated Francisco Cerundolo 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Another American advancing was Frances Tiafoe, who came back to beat Portuguese qualifier Jaime Faria 4-6, 6-7 (2), 7-6 (4), 6-1, 6-2 in his second consecutive five-setter.

Worcester did not go down quietly, plating two runs in the final frame. Matt Thaiss bounced a two-run single into right field to make it 7-2. Zach Messinger entered and got the last two outs to end the ballgame.

Yankees No. 21 prospect Brendan Beck worked his third quality start of the season. The righty went six innings of shutout ball, allowing just four hits and four walks. Beck struck out six on 86 pitches. Rafael Montero and Eric Reyzelman each tossed a clean frame. Everyone in the starting nine contributed to the offensive production.

The RailRiders wrap up their series with Worcester Sunday afternoon at PNC Field. Righty Adam Kloffenstein will take the ball for a 1:35 p.m. first pitch against Red Sox southpaw Alec Gamboa.

Additionally, the hall will recognize this year's scholar-athletes — Tucker Blasi of Sullivan County, Addisyn Bly of Wyalusing Valley, Joseph Mayernik of MMI Prep — and Evelyn Sheer of Hazleton Area, winner of the HERizon Award, presented to the most outstanding female wrestler in the Wyoming Valley Conference.

INDUCTEES

Allie Barber

A Pittston native, Barber played a key role in major team successes in multiple sports in high school and college. She developed her athletic foundation at an early age through constant exposure to sports alongside her family.

Barber scored a Pittston Area record 159 career goals in soccer and was a 2013 Pennsylvania Soccer Coaches Association all-state selection. She also led the Patriots to the District 2 Class 3A championship. In basketball, she scored over 1,000 career points and won a district title. She also competed in track and field for three seasons at Pittston Area, which won a district title in that sport, as well.

Barber continued her soccer career at Bloomsburg University, where she appeared in every game, recorded 19 goals and 20 assists and started the final 59 consecutive contests of her career. She was part of teams that won a regular-season title, a conference championship, an Atlantic Regional title and made the Elite Eight. She also played one season of basketball.

While at Bloomsburg, Barber was named a United Soccer Coaches second-team All-American and a first-team Scholar All-American. She also earned the school's Eleanor Wray Senior Female Athlete of the Year award.

Bree Bednarski

One of the Wyoming Valley's most accomplished multi-sport athletes, Bednarski established herself as one of the nation's premier field hockey players while also excelling in softball and track and field.

Bednarski concluded her remarkable field hockey career at Wyoming Area with 127 goals and 37 assists, setting program records for goals in a game, season and career. Her 67-goal senior season in 2015 set a state record and earned her Wyoming Valley Conference Player of the Year honors from The Citizens' Voice. She was also a three-time all-state selection and member of the U.S. U17 national team. Bednarski continued her collegiate career at the University of Michigan and Penn State.

In addition to her field hockey success, Bednarski was an all-state softball player and was named the Times Leader's 2016 WVC Girls Track and Field Athlete of the Year. In that postseason, she won four medals at the District 2 championships — gold in the 100-meter dash, 200-meter dash and 4x100 relay and silver in the javelin.

As Bednarski's playing career ended, her coaching career began. She was named Wyoming Area's head field hockey coach in 2022 and has led her Alma mater to new heights, including multiple district and WVC championships.

Ed Keil

Keil's life in golf is a story of service and lasting impact, beginning at West Side Vocational-Technical School. Keil was a golf captain and team MVP at West Side Tech before serving in the U.S. Air Force, where he competed on the golf team at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida.

Returning home in 1978, Keil began working as the golf course superintendent at Lehman Golf Club and enrolled at Penn State Wilkes-Barre, where he obtained a degree in engineering while continuing to work.

Keil was named Penn State Wilkes-Barre's head golf coach in 1988, beginning a historic career that has included 38 years at the helm with 51 tournament victories and eight conference championships. In 2025, he was named head golf coach at Penn State Hazleton while continuing his duties at Penn State Wilkes-Barre. Between the two programs, he has coached 137 all-conference or all-state golfers and 195 academic all-conference selections. He has also coached bowling at Penn State Wilkes-Barre.

Beyond coaching, Keil built a parallel legacy in golf operations and instruction as a superintendent and instructor. He has also won more than 100 individual and team tournaments as a golfer, including two club championships at Lehman Golf Club.

Joseph Kemmerer

Kemmerer was introduced to wrestling at age 6 at the Wilkes-Barre YMCA. In addition to making lifelong friends at an early age, Kemmerer learned skills and techniques that set the foundation for a long and successful career in a sport that influenced virtually every aspect of his life in some way.

Kemmerer wrestled at Crestwood High School. As a senior, he went undefeated (38-0) and won the 2004 PIAA Class 3A state championship at 119 pounds. He also won three District 2 championships and graduated with a 102-7 record.

Following high school, Kemmerer first attended the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. He was the Southern Conference champion at 125 pounds as a freshman. He transferred to Kutztown University, where he won two NCAA Division II national championships and compiled a 60-4 record. Kemmerer furthered his education at Liberty University, where he served as a graduate assistant coach while training and ultimately competing on an international stage.

Kemmerer remains involved in the sport. He runs a successful wrestling club — Nova Wrestling Club — that has won championships in folkstyle, freestyle and Greco-Roman.

Karen Krysiowski Day

A stand-out swimmer at the high school and collegiate levels, Krysiowski Day's competitive swimming career began at the Wilkes-Barre YMCA. Soon, she entered the USA swimming circuit with the newly formed FAST Swim Club and emerged as an elite distance swimmer.

After helping Wyoming Valley West win four consecutive District 2 girls swimming team championships — and graduating as the program record-holder in six events with four individual district gold medals as a senior — Krysiowski Day matriculated to the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

At UNC, Krysiowski Day competed under legendary coach Frank Comfort and she transitioned into the grueling world of collegiate long-distance swimming. She remembers this as one of the most challenging and transformative periods of her life. She was a member of two ACC championship teams. She graduated in 1999, carrying into her professional life the discipline and integrated approach to wellness that she developed as a Tar Heel.

Adelene Addy Malatesta

Malatesta has dedicated nearly five decades to education, coaching and athletic leadership, leaving a lasting impact on student-athletes at Wilkes University and across Northeastern Pennsylvania and beyond.

Malatesta was a stand-out student-athlete at Berwick Area High School, where her coaches served as significant influences. Malatesta's basketball coach, Joan Voveris, was an accomplished musician and teacher. Her field hockey coach, Dr. Betty Henry, rose to the title of superintendent of Berwick Area schools. Her softball coach, Paul Stenko, was a former Chicago Bear who returned home to teach and coach.

Malatesta pursued a degree from Slippery Rock University before returning to Berwick as a teacher and coach. She guided Berwick's field hockey program in 1981 to a PIAA District 4 championship while also earning a master's degree from East Stroudsburg University.

After coaching and teaching at SUNY Potsdam, Malatesta returned home in 1989 as head field hockey coach at Wilkes. Over 14 seasons, her teams won 140 games and multiple conference titles. She also served 23 years as Wilkes' director of athletics, overseeing major facility enhancements and the growth of the athletic department to 23 varsity sports.

Malatesta is a member of both the Wilkes and Berwick Area Athletic Halls of Fame.

Brianna Pizzano

Pizzano began playing tennis at age 3, taking her first lesson at Kingston Indoor Tennis Club. She quickly demonstrated the ability to compete beyond her age and was playing in — and winning — local and regional tournaments by age 8.

At Wyoming Area, Pizzano competed in both tennis and softball. She won two District 2 championships as a freshman and sophomore in singles play as a Warrior. In softball, she was an all-state short-stop who posted a .457 batting average as a junior; her senior season was canceled due to COVID-19.

Pizzano continued her tennis career at Misericordia, where she was named MAC Freedom Player of the Year in all four seasons. She was also recognized as the conference's Senior Scholar-Athlete and ranked No. 36 among the university's top athletes of the century. She won conference championships in singles and doubles play and lost only once in regular-season play throughout her career. She now provides private tennis instruction to children and adults of all ages.

Frank Redmond

Having been introduced to track and field as a seventh-grade student at Wyoming Area, Redmond soon captured a junior high championship that set the tone for an impressive high school and collegiate career.

Redmond recorded three top-10 finishes for the Warriors at the District 2 Cross Country Championships. On the track, he steadily improved each season and his achievements included qualifying for the PIAA state championships in the 800-meter race as a junior.

Redmond continued his running career at Misericordia, where he took a significant step forward. He was named Misericordia's Most Valuable Player four times in cross country and three times in track. He earned All-America honors in 2010 with a fifth-place finish in the 800-meter race at the NCAA Division III national championships. He earned 20 All-MAC honors across indoor and outdoor track and was a six-time All-ECAC selection. Following graduation, Redmond served as a graduate assistant coach at Misericordia while completing his master's degree and competing in regional road races.

Bobby Sura

A native of Wilkes-Barre, Sura is among the most decorated high school, collegiate and professional basketball players to ever come out of Northeastern Pennsylvania.

Sura's GAR Grenadiers won three District 2 championships in four years and advanced to the PIAA state championship game his junior and senior seasons. As a senior, he averaged 34 points per game and was named the Associated Press Small School Player of the Year in Pennsylvania. He scored a GAR record 2,468 points.

From GAR, Sura enrolled at Florida State and was named the ACC Rookie of the Year as a freshman. As a sophomore, he scored 19.9 points per game and helped the Seminoles make the Elite Eight. He remains Florida State's all-time leader in career points and minutes played.

The Cleveland Cavaliers selected Sura in the first round of the 1995 NBA Draft. He competed in the 1996 All-Rookie Game, the 1997 Slam Dunk Contest and the 2000 Three-Point Contest. He retired after 10 seasons, recording 5,654 points, 2,474 assists and 2,240 rebounds.

In 1999, Times Leader readers participated in a poll that ranked Sura the No. 6 local athlete of the century. In 2002, The Citizens' Voice ranked Sura as the No. 2 athlete of all-time from the Wyoming Valley. He was inducted in 2003 into the Florida State Athletics Hall of Fame.

Eddie White III

White's prolific and distinguished career has been defined by a deep-rooted passion for sports, shaped in the Wyoming Valley as a graduate of Bishop Hoban High School and Wilkes.

After graduating from Wilkes, where he worked as an undergraduate with the school's athletic office, newspaper and radio station, White served his alma mater as a full-time director of sports information. White quickly rose through the ranks of sports communications and marketing, working for major brands and organizations, including Notre Dame and the Miami Dolphins.

White moved to Indiana, working for the sportswear company Logo 7/Logo Athletic. He was eventually hired by the first all-sports radio station in Indianapolis — ESPN The Fan — and hosted its afternoon drive show while also working numerous Super Bowls and then landing at Pacers Sports and Entertainment. He has worked the last 15 years for the NBA's Pacers and WNBA's Fever in various media and public relations capacities and he currently hosts Pacers Overtime, the team's postgame radio show.

White's grandfather, Eddie White, Sr., the legendary Wilkes-Barre Barons basketball coach, was inducted into the LCSHOF in 1986.

PSG edges Arsenal in shootout to repeat as UCL champs

By James Robson
AP Soccer Writer

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Winning the Champions League was so nice, Paris Saint-Germain had to do it twice.

PSG became back-to-back European champion by beating Arsenal 4-3 on penalties in a dramatic final in Budapest that ended 1-1 after extra time on Saturday.

“It’s incredible,” captain Marquinhos said. “From the very first day of this season, the coach said it’s hard to win, and winning twice is even more difficult. So we all had to get back to work. That was the mentality.”

Arsenal defender Gabriel Magalhaes fired the last of his team’s penalties over the bar to hand PSG the shootout win.

The French giant is only the second team to retain the trophy in the modern era after all-time king of Europe Real Madrid.

Luis Enrique became a three-time winner as a coach and has moulded a team that is simply too good even for the best the continent has to offer. That includes an Arsenal team that won the Premier League last week and topped the first stage of the Champions League with a perfect winning record, finishing 10 points and 10 places ahead of PSG.

That mattered little in Puskas Arena as PSG reaffirmed its status as the dominant force in European soccer.

“It’s even more special because we knew before the match

how difficult it would be,” Luis Enrique said. “I think it’s deserved over the course of the whole season, even if the final was very closely contested.”

After demolishing Inter Milan 5-0 in last year’s final, PSG endured a tougher foe as Arsenal sat deep and relied on the best defense in the competition.

PSG dominated possession but created little after going behind to a Kai Havertz goal in the sixth minute. It took an Ousmane Dembélé penalty in the 65th to level the score and take the final to extra time for the first time in 10 years.

By going back to back, Luis Enrique achieved what his good friend Pep Guardiola could not after winning Champions Leagues at Barcelona and Manchester City. Luis Enrique joined Carlo Ancelotti, Bob Paisley, Zinedine Zidane and Guardiola in an elite group of coaches with at least three European Cups.

The next target will be to emulate Madrid’s three in a row under Zidane from 2016-18. And with a starting lineup in Budapest with an average age of less than 24, Luis Enrique has built a team that has the potential to dominate for years.

“It’s crazy, it’s crazy. We’re going to enjoy it first, and after we’re going to work and work again because we want more. We are really hungry. We are a young team, and we know we are really ambitious. So next season we have to go again,” Désiré Doué told broadcaster TNT Sports.

Having waited 22 years to get

PSG’s coach Luis Enrique, top, celebrates with players after winning the Champions League for the second straight year, beating Arsenal in Budapest.

its hands back on the Premier League trophy, Arsenal’s wait in Europe goes on.

This was its 226th game in the European Cup or Champions League without lifting the trophy. No other team has played so many without being champion.

“First of all you have to go through that pain, digest it and then turn it into fuel and improve and reach a different level because it will demand a different level with the quality that is around Europe,” manager Mikel Arteta said.

“I want to congratulate PSG because they are, in my opinion, the best team in the world. What they are able to do with the ball, individual actions, I haven’t seen it (before).”

There were times when it looked as though Arsenal’s

Champions League losing streak would be snapped. Especially when PSG looked so short of ideas after going behind to Havertz’s breakaway early goal.

By scoring so early the tone was set and Arsenal was comfortable sitting back and soaking up pressure. PSG struggled to find openings and looked edgy in possession.

On an evening that kicked off with a pre-match show by rock band The Killers that sounded off in the acoustics of the stadium, PSG also fell a little flat and registered just one shot on target in the first half.

It was given a way back into the final when Cristhian Mosquera brought down Khvicha Kvaratskhelia in the box and referee Daniel Siebert pointed to the spot.

Ballon d’Or holder Dembélé made no mistake, firing low to the left as Arsenal goalkeeper David Raya dived the wrong way.

Red flares were lit by PSG fans, likely as much in relief as celebration.

There were rare chances for PSG to win in regulation. Kvaratskhelia hit the post in the 77th after a rapid breakaway and substitute Bradley Barcola wasted another opportunity to seal it at the death when firing wide.

Arsenal was limited to a 24.7% possession average — the lowest in a final since records began in 2004, according to stats provider Opta. But Arteta’s dogged and determined team pushed PSG all the way, even in the shootout.

Eberechi Eze missed an earlier spot kick for Arsenal but Raya saved from Nuno Mendes to keep the score level.

Lucas Beraldo converted the last of PSG’s spot kicks, meaning Gabriel had to convert to take it to sudden death. But he blasted high over the bar into a section of PSG fans, who erupted in celebrations along with their new two-time champion team.

It was a familiar sight as Marquinhos got his hands on the trophy for a second time and raised it aloft in the center of the field as gold confetti and fireworks exploded around the team.

French President Emmanuel Macron posted his congratulations on X: “A new star is shining over Paris!” and told PSG players they were “making all of Europe dream. France is proud.”

Hamlin on the pole looking for elusive first Cup win in Nashville

By Teresa M. Walker
AP Sports Writer

LEBANON, Tenn. — The question Denny Hamlin hears the most is whether he gets nervous before a race.

His answer usually is no.

That changes at Nashville Superspeedway where Hamlin is looking for his first victory.

“I’ve been so close over the last few years,” Hamlin said Saturday of racing at Nashville. “But I love the racetrack. I definitely do and certainly feel like it’s been a very raceable race track over the last couple (races) since they’ve worked the resin in and whatnot. So it’s, um, I’m a little nervous going into the weekend truthfully.”

Hamlin currently ranks second in the points race and has 61 career Cup wins. He has three top six finishes here including third twice with the latest last year. He has two wins this year with his last the All-Star race at Dover.

The Cracker Barrel 400 on Sunday night will be the sixth Cup race at the 1.33-mile, D-shaped oval, which also is NASCAR’s largest all-concrete track. Spotty rain showers washed out qualifying Saturday, putting Hamlin on the pole for the second time this year and 51st time of his career.

Now 45, Hamlin knows he is running out of opportunities and won’t hide how much he wants to take home Nashville’s signature trophy: a Gibson guitar.

“I really really want to win here pretty badly,” Hamlin said.

Nashville marks the start of the second half of the Cup Series schedule with drivers leaving here with 12 races remaining before the Chase for the Championship starts in September.

Ryan Blaney won here a year ago for his first victory of 2025, and he comes into this race third in the points race. Blaney said he doesn’t feel any sense of urgency right now, especially returning to a track that was very good to him a year ago.

“It’s hard to believe we’re already halfway through the regular season,” Blaney said. Daniel Suarez has spent part of the week celebrating his win at the Coca-Cola 600 last week and was in Los Angeles on Friday for the premiere of his new documentary. That meant a red-eye flight to Nashville as he switches his focus back to racing while currently 10th in the standings.

Suarez knows his Spire Motorsports team won a big race. He sees more work to do with his No. 7 Chevrolet. “I’m really pushing my team to continue to push in these areas to continue to improve because every single team out there is going to continue getting better,” Suarez said. “So we have to continue to move the bar higher and higher.”

REMEMBERING BUSCH

Reminders of the two-time Cup Series champion who died May 22 are everywhere at the superspeedway. His No. 8 has been atop the scoring tower, painted on the infield grass and round stickers with both his number and his name are plastered on everything from race cars to laptops.

BATTLING A CAR

Ross Chastain is looking for his first victory this year and currently stands 23rd in the points standings. He had a colorful answer Saturday when asked if 13 races have helped his Trackhouse Racing team and others running Chevrolets figure out how to race with the body changes made to the car for 2026.

“Have you seen those videos online where they grease up a watermelon, throw in the air and see if they can catch it? That’s what it feels like,” Chastain said. “We’re trying. No, not where we need to be yet. Working hard.”

DRIVER CHANGE

Corey Heim will race full-time for 23XI Racing on the Cup Series in 2027, taking over the No. 35 car currently driven by Riley Herbst. Hamlin, co-owner of 23XI Racing, joined Heim for the announcement Saturday providing a stark contrast with his experience compared to his new driver. Heim turns 24 in July. “Holy cow,” Hamlin said of the age difference.

“I think when I was his age I was still running eighth place in limited late models. While it seems like he’s been on this trajectory for so long to be in this position, still far ahead of where I was at this point. It’s wild. I mean I’ve been in the Cup series pretty much since he’s been born.”

Pirates outlast Twins for a win

By Will Graves

AP Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH — Jake Mangum went 3 for 4 with his first homer of the season and a go-ahead RBI single after the Pirates blew a six-run lead as Pittsburgh held off the Minnesota Twins 10-9 on Saturday.

Mangum went deep against Bailey Ober (6-3) in the second inning for the fourth home run of his career. He later tagged Ober with a line drive single in the fifth that scored Konnor Griffin to help the Pirates steady themselves after the Twins erased a massive early deficit. Mangum also contributed defensively, going deep in the gap in left-center to rob Minnesota's Orlando Arcia of extra bases in the ninth with the tying run on first.

Gregory Soto got the final four outs for his seventh save. Yohan Ramirez (3-2) earned the win in relief after starter Mitch Keller couldn't hold an early 7-1 lead.

Oneil Cruz hit his 13th home run of the season and second in as many days as the Pirates won for the fifth time in seven games. Spencer Horwitz had two hits for Pittsburgh, including a leadoff homer in the bottom of the first.

Nick Gonzales had three hits for Pittsburgh, which handed former manager Derek Shelton a second consecutive loss in his return to PNC Park since being fired by the Pirates last May early into his sixth season with the club.

Kody Clemens had three of Minnesota's 12 hits. Josh Bell drove in three runs for the Twins, who have lost five of six.

METS 6, MARLINS 1

NEW YORK — Christian Scott finally earned his first big league win on Saturday and batterymate Hayden Senger hit his first career home run as New York beat Miami.

Scott's afternoon began inauspiciously when he was charged with a pitch clock violation before throwing his first pitch. But the right-hander allowed only one run and struck out a career-high eight while snapping a 15-start winless streak dating back to his debut on May 4, 2024.

Scott underwent Tommy John surgery in September 2024 and missed last season.

RED SOX 9, GUARDIANS 1

CLEVELAND — Connor Wong and Jarren Duran drove in three runs apiece, Sonny Gray allowed one run in six innings and Boston defeated Cleveland. Caleb Durbin also drove in a pair of runs for the Red Sox, who won for only the second time in eight games.

Cleveland — which is 2-3 on its six-game homestand — committed a season-high four errors, including one by Jose Ramirez. The All-Star third baseman also accounted for the Guardians' lone run with an RBI double in the first inning to drive in Travis Bazzana, who had a pair of doubles.

ANGELS 14, RAYS 3

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Wade Meckler hit his first grand slam in the majors for the first of Los Angeles' four homers in a victory over Tampa Bay.

Meckler connected off Drew Rasmussen in the first inning. He also singled and stole a base. Mike Trout hit his 14th homer of the season in the fifth and Jo Adell and Oswald Peraza had back-to-back shots in a seven-run ninth.

ORIOLES 6, BLUE JAYS 5

BALTIMORE — Pete Alonso singled in the winning run with the bases loaded in a five-run ninth inning to give Baltimore a victory over Toronto.

The Orioles had four hits in the ninth inning after managing only three and hitting into a season-high four double plays in the first eight.

Vladimir Guerrero Jr. had his first four-hit game since Sept. 5 for the Blue Jays, whose winning streak was halted at four.

RANGERS 7, ROYALS 6

ARLINGTON, Texas — Ezequiel Duran hit an opposite field RBI single to cap a three-run ninth inning as Texas walked off Kansas City.

Joc Pederson hit a home run to start a string of five consecutive hits off closer Lucas Erceg. Josh Jung then singled to shortstop, Brandon Nimmo singled off Erceg's glove, Jake Burger hit an opposite field liner to right to tie the score, before Duran's hit to right.

Texas' rally made a first-time major league winner of Peyton Gray, a 30-year-old rookie who made his big league debut in late April.

NATIONALS 9, PADRES 4

WASHINGTON — Luis Garcia Jr.'s two-run single highlighted a six-run seventh inning as Washington rallied to a win over San Diego.

Washington hit only two balls out of the infield during its big inning, but the Nationals sent 10 men to the plate in a frame that included the first ejection for Padres rookie manager Craig Stammen. The first six Washington batters came around to score.

Fernando Tatis Jr. finally hit his first homer of the season for San Diego, and Xander Bogaerts and Manny Machado also went deep.

ASTROS 9, BREWERS 2

HOUSTON — Christian Walker hit a three-run homer and Jeremy Peña had a home run among his three hits to help Houston roll to a win over Milwaukee.

Peña's two-run shot made it 3-1 in the second and the Astros added three runs in the fifth to pull away after the Brewers got within 1. Walker's shot to the seats in right field made it 9-2 with two outs in the eighth.

It's the seventh win in nine games for the Astros and snaps Milwaukee's four-game winning streak.

WHITE SOX 7, TIGERS 1

CHICAGO — Edgar Quero, Colson Montgomery and Andrew Benintendi each homered, and Chicago topped Detroit without injured slugger Munetaka Murakami.

Montgomery and Benintendi doubled, and Quero added a hit and sac fly as the White Sox won their fourth straight and climbed to four games above .500 for the first time since Sept. 20, 2022.

INDICATORS 2026

Regional economy persists after change

By Bill O'Boyle
boboyle@timesleader.com

WILKES-BARRE — The past 15 years have marked a period of significant economic transition in Northeast Pennsylvania, shaped by the housing market collapse, the ensuing Great Recession, an uneven recovery, and the lasting economic impacts of the pandemic. According to The Institute's Annual Indicators Report, measures such as GDP, income, and unemployment demonstrate notable resilience and growth despite these disruptions. As a result, Jill Avery-Stoss, President & CEO at The Institute, said the region approached full employment in 2025, reflecting a tightening labor market. Even with this progress, Avery-Stoss said persistent challenges remain — particularly in sectors like health care, where workforce shortages continue to strain the system. Avery-Stoss said that many strategies are needed to address workforce needs. These strategies involve talent recruitment and retention, developing career pathways starting in middle school, and removing barriers to participation in the workforce. “Issues such as limited access to childcare and transportation, as well as housing insecurity, interfere with the ability to secure a job and keep a job,” Avery-Stoss said. Historically, Avery-Stoss said NEPA has had higher unemployment and slower economic growth compared to state and national averages, despite the strength of some sectors locally. Though wage levels are beginning to climb, Avery-Stoss said rising living costs — particularly for housing and food — continue to put pressure on households. Avery-Stoss said poverty remains a pressing concern in the region, even though numbers have decreased slightly in the last two years. She said approximately one-in-five households in the region report incomes below $25,000 — an amount insufficient to cover basic living expenses. “Even those who live above the official poverty line may struggle to meet basic needs, increasing the demand on

About The Institute

The Institute is a community-based organization, offering data and analytics to support informed decision-making and improved quality of life throughout Northeastern Pennsylvania. The organization has released the 2025 Indicators Report, which contains approximately 150 trended metrics. These metrics are organized into 14 general focus areas, beginning with population demographics. Population shifts in Lackawanna, Luzerne and Wayne Counties reveal continued growth.

social services and charitable organizations,” Avery-Stoss said. More specifically: • Over 70% of households in Lackawanna, Luzerne, and Wyoming counties rely on wages, with Wayne County slightly lower at 65.9%. Households also rely on Social Security and retirement income, with small percentages depending on cash assistance. • Per capita income is growing, but remains lower than the state average across all four counties. Luzerne County saw an increase in aggregate personal income that matched that of the Commonwealth between 2023 and 2024. • Job growth has outpaced population growth, which signals economic expansion. Avery-Stoss said this growth can only continue if the region maintains a sufficient working-age population, and if the region can accommodate the workforce in terms of housing, health care, and other needs. • Health care and social assistance are the largest employment sectors in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties. In Wayne County, government jobs are most prevalent, while manufacturing is the most dominant industry in Wyoming County.

“NEPA's economy is in a state of moderate growth, but structural challenges persist,” said Avery-Stoss. “Wages are increasing, but not enough to offset living costs for many residents. Future economic resilience will depend on coordinated workforce development, social infrastructure investment, and proactive responses to broader economic shifts.”

Independent bookstores multiplying

Although many people still think they're dying out

By Hillel Italie
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Allison Hill, CEO of the American Booksellers Association, is used to strangers expressing sympathy when they learn what she does for a living. “It's all so funny,” she says. “When I tell them I run the trade association for independent stores, they'll say, ‘It's just so sad that they're disappearing.’ I don't think they're really keeping track, or they just know about a store that closed or heard about one closing.” The decline of physical bookstores remains so embedded in popular culture that the man dating Anne Hathaway's character in “The Devil Wears Prada 2” laments that bookstores are “getting downsized and consolidated.” But the decline actually ended years ago, and the latest numbers from the American Booksellers Association show independent stores expanding at a pace not seen

ONE TECH TIP

Your next job interview could be with an AI bot

By Kelvin Chan
The Associated Press

Have you applied for a new job? If you've been shortlisted, get ready to be interviewed by artificial intelligence. Deluged by a flood of AI-generated job applications from easy-apply job boards, recruiters are turning to AI to cope. Companies are using chatbots to interview candidates, typically at the screening stage, through phone calls, text messaging or video chats with on-screen avatars. Recruiters have been using AI-powered hiring tools for years to assess job applicants, and their use has been expanding in step with technology advances. Many people find AI job interviews unsettling, though the trend seems here to stay. According to recent research by hiring platform Greenhouse, more jobseekers are reporting they've faced AI job interviews. But many applicants have walked away from the hiring process because of it, which could be a sign that they're either creeped out, or they could be fraudulent or were not serious candidates, depending on who you ask.

Here's what to expect from an AI job interview and how to do your best: Do your homework Whatever the interview format, the fundamentals still apply, said Amanda Augustine, a career coach at CareerMinds, which helps companies support laid-off workers with resume writing and job search services. Ahead of the interview, review the job description, research the organization, and understand what it's looking for. “The more prepared you are, the easier it

US stocks gain ground as Dell soars

By Damian J. Troise And Alex Veiga
The Associated Press

Wall Street pushed further into the record books Friday, as the major stock indexes extended the market's recent winning streak and closed out a solid month of gains.

The S&P 500 rose 0.2%, notching its seventh consecutive gain and ninth straight winning week — the longest such streak since 2023. The benchmark index set an all-time high for the fourth day in a row.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average gained 0.7% and the Nasdaq composite added 0.2%. The Dow and Nasdaq also reached new heights after posting record highs earlier in the week.

Big technology stocks have been behind much of the market's record-breaking streak. Their pricey stock values give them more influence in directing the market higher or lower. In May alone, technology stocks within the S&P 500 rose more than 15%, while most of the sectors in the benchmark index actually lost ground.

“The rally has been largely tech-led and supported by resilient earnings, but the key question is whether it can be sustained,” wrote Angelo Kourkafas, senior global strategist at Edward Jones, in a research note.

Tech stocks also powered the market higher Friday. Microsoft rose 5.4% and Broadcom gained 4.7%.

Dell Technologies surged 32.8% to lead all stocks in the S&P 500 after delivering profits that blew past expectations. The company also raised its outlook, citing powerful demand for AI computing.

Most other sectors in the S&P 500 lost ground Friday. Among the decliners: Paramount Skydance fell 1.9%, Amazon.com dropped 1.2%, and Costco Wholesale closed 3.9% lower.

worries that the U.S. war with Iran is worsening inflation and jeopardizing economic growth.

The U.S. and Iran are reportedly working toward a deal to extend a ceasefire. That eased pressure on oil prices. The price for August delivery of Brent crude, the international standard, fell 1.7% to settle at $91.12 per barrel. It is still well above the $70 per barrel level in late February before the war began. The price for a barrel of benchmark U.S. crude oil for July delivery fell 1.7% to settle at $87.36.

Treasury yields held relatively steady as oil prices fell. The yield on the 10-year Treasury slipped to 4.44% from 4.45% late Thursday.

Still, high oil prices remain a key concern for Wall Street. The war has stifled the flow of oil shipments through the Strait of Hormuz. Roughly a fifth of the world's oil and natural gas is shipped through the waterway.

That has pushed up prices for gasoline and a wide range of goods, feeding inflation and squeezing consumers and businesses. Prices were already rising before the war began from the ongoing impact of tariffs.

Several reports this week reflected inflation's rise and impact on consumers. A measure of inflation preferred by the Federal Reserve accelerated in April to its highest level in three years. Consumer confidence is slipping amid the squeeze from rising inflation.

Wall Street's worries about rising inflation have been somewhat muted by the latest round of corporate profit reports. Companies in the S&P 500 have reported profit growth of 28% overall for the most recent quarter, according to FactSet. The overwhelming majority of companies in the S&P 500 have already reported their latest results. That could mean investors' focus may shift back toward inflation, consumers' behavior and the Fed's path ahead for interest rates.

The Fed has been holding its benchmark interest rate steady as it closely watches rising inflation. It is expected to continue holding rates steady at its next meeting in June and through the year, according to CME's FedWatch tool. Cutting interest rates could help lower borrowing costs and give the economy a jolt, but it could also worsen inflation at time when prices are already high and rising.

Despite the market turbulence caused by the conflict in the Middle East, stocks notched further gains in May. The S&P 500 closed out the month with a 5.1% gain. It's up 10.7% so far this year.

All told, the S&P 500 rose 16.43 points to 7,580.06 on Friday. The Dow gained 363.49 points to 51,032.46, and the Nasdaq added 55.15 points to finish at 26,972.62.

Markets in Europe and Asia mostly rose.

this century.

Membership in the ABA grew by more than 500 over the past year, to a total of 3,417 (at 3,783 locations), nearly triple what it was a decade ago and the highest level since the late 1990s. The surge included stores of various kinds — general interest shops like Hey Books! in San Diego; mobile stores like the Wandering Quills Bookshop in Westerville, Ohio; pop-up stores like Banyan Books in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Many of the new members reflect the current boom in romance, fantasy and their hybrid, romantasy, whether the Spicy Librarian in Denver or the Flutter Romance Bookstore in Austin, Texas: “Where butterflies begin. And every story ends in happily-ever-after,” according to its website.

Both a business and a calling

Independent bookselling, rarely a way to get rich, is a meeting ground for idealists — for young people with a sense of mission, retirees embarking on a new life or middle-aged people no longer satisfied with their careers. “I think people want to realign their lives with their values,” Hill says.

In Wentzville, Missouri, 55-year-old Kelley Hartnett is a marketing consultant and copywriter who had always wanted to run a bookstore. Her husband’s concerns included competing against Amazon, but Hartnett went ahead and opened Double Dog Bookshop in 2025 as a mobile store. She rode about the area in a converted cargo trailer, joined by two Australian Cattle Dog mutts, and has since opened a storefront downtown.

“For me, Double Dog is about maybe 50% books and 50% community,” says Hartnett, who hopes to find a larger space that would make it easier for customers to gather and “just be.” “People are craving connection, especially in-person connection,” she said. “People are over the internet and virtual meetings and algorithms. They’re not the same as having a human to human connection. It feels really healing.”

Hill can joke about the mistaken elegies for book-selling, while expressing concern that the state of independent stores is healthy but “precarious.” Costs are high, and schools and libraries face budget cuts that limit their purchases from local stores.

Is there room for indies and giants?

Independent owners also find themselves worrying about a onetime competitor which itself had seemed endangered, Barnes & Noble.

The superstore chain was the dominant seller in the 1980s and 1990s, and was widely seen as the leading cause for hundreds — maybe thousands — of independent stores shutting down. But by the 2010s, Barnes &

Noble had been surpassed by Amazon. It began shutting down stores instead of opening new ones and struggled for years to find a new owner before the hedge fund Elliott Management Corp. bought it in 2019.

Under the leadership of CEO James Daunt, Barnes & Noble is expanding again, adding more than 100 stores over the past two years. In Chicago, the owner of the decade-old Volume Books has blamed a new Barnes & Noble for putting her out of business, while Hill added that “even a small decrease in sales can make or break a bookstore’s year in an industry with paper-thin margins.”

Daunt denies any intent to take business from independent sellers, saying it’s not in his “DNA.”

“I’m an independent seller myself,” he says, noting that he founded Daunt Books in London. Daunt says he has customers who shop at his store and the British chain Waterstones (where he’s also managing director). “I never thought of the market as finite.”

The owners of The Book Loft Oak Park, another Chicago-area store that opened last summer, acknowledge some nerves about a nearby Barnes & Noble coming soon. But Heather Nelson and Sophie Schauer Eldred hope the stores ultimately complement each other.

“We’re hoping people whose curiosity is piqued by the new Barnes and Noble will walk down the street,” Schauer Eldred said, “and pop into our bookstore.”

AI

will be to tailor your responses, even when you’re interacting with AI instead of a person,” she advised.

Get used to the format

If you’ve never done an AI job interview before, the first time could be unnerving or unsettling.

I did a demo AI interview set up by Netherlands-based TestGorilla, one of numerous platforms providing recruitment tools for companies. First came two sets of questions, one that tested problem-solving skills and another gauging work experience. Then I faced an AI-generated female face.

“My goal is to learn more about you and the experiences, skills and competencies that you might bring to this role,” it said, adding that I should plan to spend about two minutes to answer each of three questions.

Unlike a human interview, there was no warm-up chit-chat, no chance to build a rapport. There was no point in smiling or trying to break the ice.

Experts say the best way to get over that is preparation.

“You need to practice out loud,” said Priya Rathod, workplace trends editor at online job board Indeed. “And when I say practice out loud, I mean, say the actual answers out loud,” because the chatbot needs to record what you’re saying, she said.

Also keep in mind you’re providing information about yourself to a machine, not having a conversation.

“You have to be particularly descriptive and a very clear communicator in your language so that they can pick up on things that a regular interviewer might pick up through your facial expressions and tone,” Rathod said.

An AI interviewer “cares less about my tone and more about what it is that I’m saying,” she added.

Use an online interview simulator to prep — there are many available. They can record your answers and provide instant feedback on your content, delivery or pacing. They’ll also help you get used to speaking into a camera, manage time limits and give your answers in a structured way without the natural back-and-forth of a live conversation, Augustine said.

Get ready for behavioral questions

For my demo interview, the AI grilled me for a communications professional role.

One question it asked was how I use AI in my “workflow,” including examples of both success and failure. When I replied that I saved lots of time with an AI transcription tool for interviews and other recordings, it summarized my answer and then asked me if I wanted to add anything else. I wasn’t sure whether I had answered satisfactorily.

I scored “below average” on this question, according to TestGorilla’s assessment, which said I provided “no concrete metric” such as minutes saved. “The improvement claim is therefore vague,” it said.

AI interviewers are asking these “behavioral questions” because they want candidates to provide examples of how they handled specific work situations, complete with numbers and metrics, Rathod said.

“Those are the kinds of questions that AI relies heavily on. And the trap that we see a lot of people falling into is giving really vague answers,” she said.

Candidates should still rely on tried and tested tactics like the STAR method — short for situation, task, action, result.

So be prepared to talk about a specific work situation and the task assigned to you, the action that you took, and the result, Rathod said.

“You want to use numbers as much as possible. Even if you’re not in a revenue driving role, there are ways in which you can say (how) you influenced something or impacted something within a group,” she said.

Setup still matters

Don’t neglect the physical setup of your desk and computer — it’s still important even if the video-based interview is with AI, and not a person.

Test your audio and video in advance. Make sure the lighting is bright enough and is on your face. Raise your laptop to eye level so that you’re not looking down at the camera.

“Small adjustments, such as using a stack of books or a ring light, can make a noticeable difference in how polished and professional you present,” Augustine said.

Don’t be tempted to use AI shortcuts

Jobseekers might be tempted to use AI to help come up with answers. After all, they’re so easy to use and if you’re not talking to a human, no one will be able to tell, right?

“That’s a big no-no because it’s pretty obvious” to both the AI interviewing tool and anyone who might review the recording, said Rathod. Using AI for your answers “can sometimes immediately disqualify you.”

If you’re having difficulty answering, you can always ask it to clarify or repeat the question.

The question might even be designed to figure out if you’re using AI to cheat. TestGorilla’s head of marketing, Mehak Chowdhary, said it sometimes poses simple questions worded in a very convoluted way.

Community Champion of the Week: Catholic Social Services

Every day of the year – including weekends and holidays – Catholic Social Services of the Diocese of Scranton is quietly at work across northeastern Pennsylvania helping our neighbors who are hungry, homeless, struggling or alone.

Last year alone, Saint Vincent de Paul Kitchen in Wilkes-Barre served 122,079 meals to individuals and families in need. Saint Joseph’s Food Pantry in Hazleton distributed 5,510 food boxes, assisting 6,738 people facing food insecurity. And 12,573 nights of shelter were provided to individuals of our region’s largest cities through our three emergency shelters, providing our brothers and sisters help when they have nowhere else to turn.

Behind every number is a person – a mother trying to feed her children, a senior choosing between medication and groceries, or someone simply searching for hope.

That hope is often found through programs like Bridge to Independence, a transitional housing program in Hazleton, which supports young adults ages 18 to 26 living with mental health challenges. Many participants arrive carrying burdens most people could hardly imagine. Recently, one young man entered the program with only a third-grade education after years of homelessness and constant moving disrupted his childhood. With guidance, encouragement, and stability from Catholic Social Services staff, he earned his GED and is now attending Lackawanna College while building a future that once seemed impossible.

Stories like his unfold every day through the work of Catholic Social Services. They happen because staff members, volunteers, donors, and community partners believe every person deserves dignity, compassion, and the opportunity to move forward.

This mission of hope and human dignity will take center stage on Wednesday, June 10, when Catholic Social Services welcomes the national People of Hope Museum to Nay Aug Park in Scranton. The free traveling exhibit, presented by Catholic Charities USA, invites visitors to encounter powerful stories of poverty, service, and transformation from communities across the country. Through immersive exhibits and firsthand testimonies, the experience challenges visitors not only to see the struggles many people face, but also to recognize the difference compassion can make. We invite you to learn more about our work – and even get involved in making northeastern Pennsylvania a better place – between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. that day!

Because for Catholic Social Services, our work is not occasional – it is a 365-day commitment to serving our brothers and sisters in need and reminding people they are never forgotten. In every meal served, every shelter bed provided, and every life restored, hope continues to grow throughout our communities. To learn more about volunteer opportunities or ways to support the organization through donations, please contact Catholic Social Services at 570-455-1521.

Working together makes our community stronger. If you have a cause near to your heart and want to make a difference here in Northeastern Pennsylvania and beyond, please call us at the Luzerne Foundation or visit www.luzfdn.org for more information.

Do you want to make our community better? So do we. Let’s do it together.

Gamification and memes lure young people to sports wagering apps, prediction markets

By Kaitlyn Huamani
AP Technology Writer

When Rory McIlroy won the Masters for the second year in a row, Kalshi shared a photo of him on Instagram with the words, “Wait he’s goated.” When a video of NBA player Damian Lillard recovering from an injury circulated online, Kalshi’s main competitor Polymarket posted, “The league is cooked.”

If you don’t know what either of those phrases mean, it’s because you may not be the target audience.

The posts and hundreds of others like it are exposing younger people to prediction market platforms, where users can put money on the line for the outcomes of real-world events — or absurd ones like when the U.S. will confirm that aliens exist or whether Jesus Christ will return before 2027.

Once on the platforms, companies keep users hooked with what they market as low-stakes, casual opportunities to make an easy buck, creating an environment that some say feels more like a game and less like a risky financial transaction with potentially harmful consequences. Indeed, recent academic research looking at 588 million trades on Polymarket found that profits were concentrated to just a very small group of top traders while the majority of users — 69% — lost money.

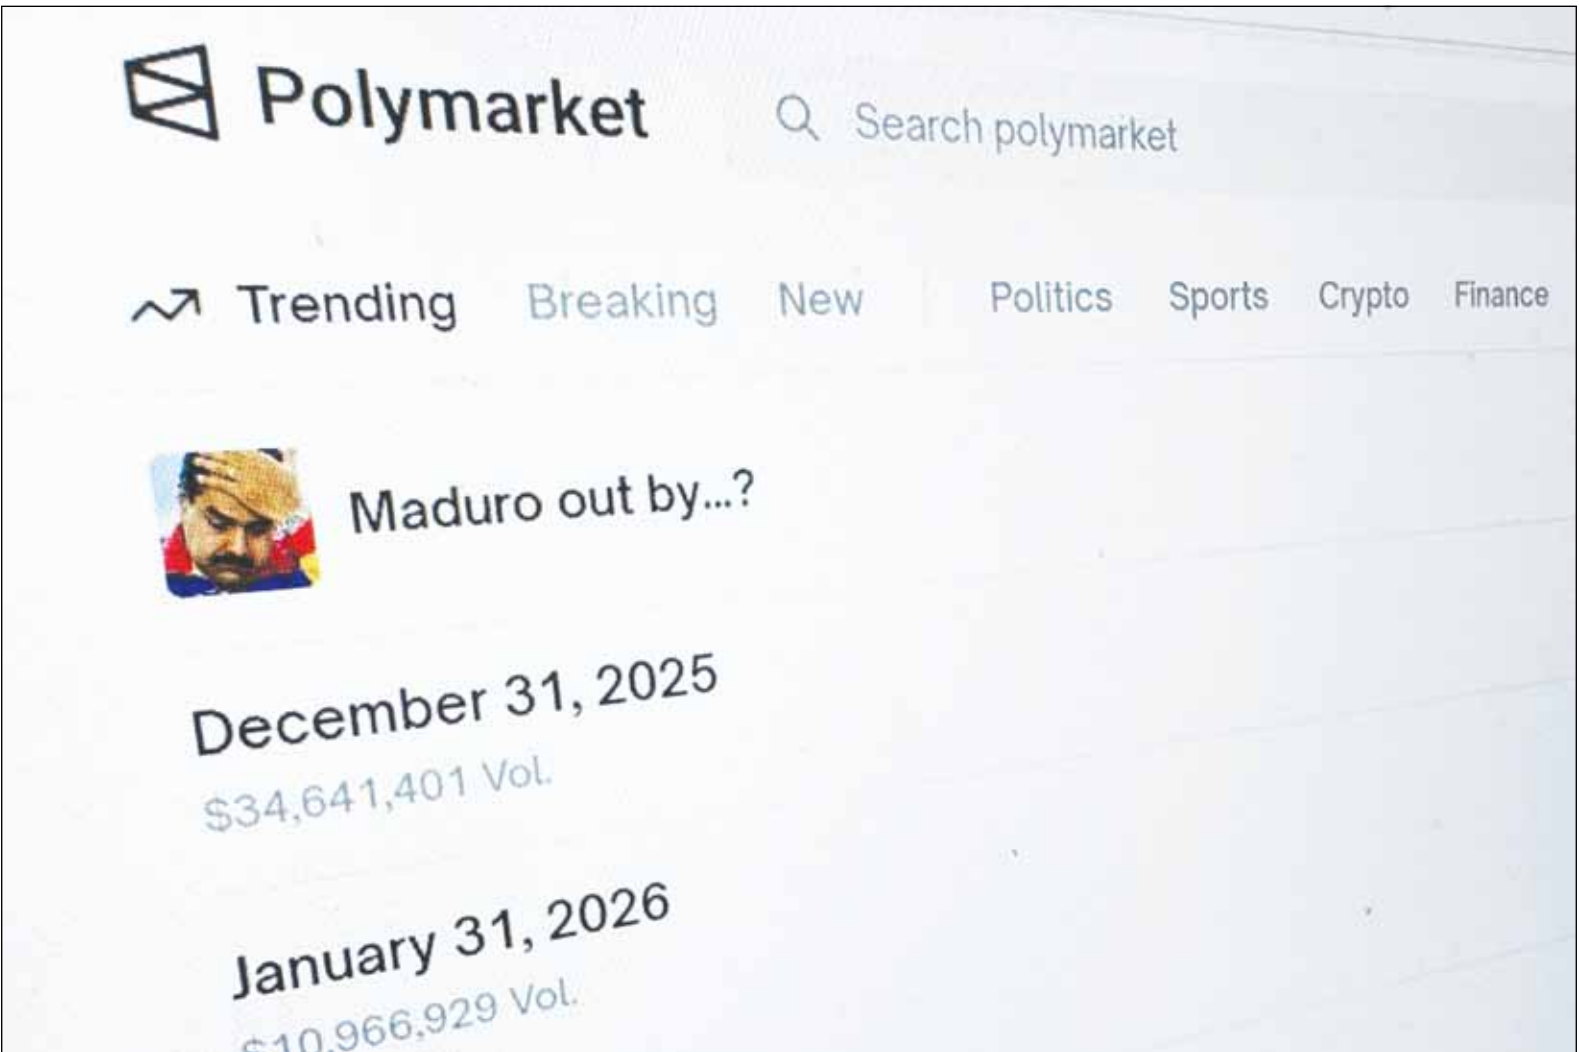

Kalshi, Polymarket and some sports wagering platforms are available to users starting at 18, mirroring the minimum age requirement for investing in the stock market but younger than the age limit of 21 for gambling in most U.S. states. That three-year window is critical to cognitive development, according to some experts, who note that teens and young adults are more vulnerable to developing problematic gambling behavior and addiction than older adults.

“The adults in the room are not taking the fact this is meant to be an adult activity seriously, so when adults don’t take it seriously, why would the kids?” said Dr. Timothy Fong, an addiction psychiatrist and the co-director of the UCLA Gambling Studies Program, who notes that the “velocity of gambling” combined with the “frictionless” access to it creates a dangerous slope for young people.

Sen. Katie Britt, R-Ala., introduced legislation last week with Sen. Richard Blumenthal, D-Conn., that would bar social media companies and advertisers from showing sports betting ads to minors. Blumenthal said sportsbooks and prediction markets are “treating young people like a gold rush, flooding the internet with advertisements and promotions to hook them on gambling when they’re young.”

Hot air balloon diving, chimps and memes

The humorous, meme-driven approach by both prediction markets and sports wagering platforms is not simply in pursuit of social media clout but a deliberate, carefully curated strategy to reach young people, says Jason Levin, the founder of Memelord Technologies. His company offers marketing tools like meme templates he says both Polymarket and Kalshi have used.

“If you want to attract a younger audience, you’re going to use memes. You’re going to use unhinged humor,” Levin said. “You’re going to try to get in front of them by any means necessary.”

One recent Polymarket ad on Meta’s social media platforms shows an influencer hanging off a hot air balloon before letting go and plummeting. Another from Kalshi shows chimpanzees wearing suits in party settings. And Fliff — a free-to-play platform that calls itself a “social sportsbook” — uses a common meme template of a car dashing to make an exit on the highway. Ads for these platforms also appear on mobile games and in several other places online where they can reach young people.

Kalshi spokesperson Jack Such told The Associated Press memes are “just a part of corporate branding nowadays” and their usage isn’t necessarily related to the age of potential viewers. The average age of a Kalshi user is 33, Such said. Polymarket declined to comment.

‘The hardest wager to get is the first wager’

About 3 in 10 of American adults under 30 said they placed a sports bet in the past year, according to a Pew Research Center survey conducted in summer 2025. About 2 in 10 Americans under 30 — including 21% of men and 16% of women in that age group — said they wagered online in that period, up from 7% three years earlier.

Prediction markets have tried to distinguish themselves from gambling by emphasizing that their users aren’t placing bets; they’re making a prediction on the probable outcome of an event. And because the platforms are regulated by the federal government via the the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, they are not subject to state-level restrictions or bans in place for traditional gambling and sports betting, including higher age limits.

But even some online sports wagering platforms are open to users starting at 18, including Fliff, which doesn’t require users to pay to participate, emphasizing the entertainment value instead. Many of these platforms operate on a sweepstakes-based model, making them accessible to users 18 and older in many U.S. states. Users are not technically required to pay to use these platforms but are often incentivized to do so if they want to see a real-money payout.

Stephen Findeisen, a YouTuber with more than 4 million subscribers who goes by Coffeezilla online and investigates internet scams, said the motivation behind appealing to young users is the possibility of gaining loyal, long-term customers.

“If you’re one of these platforms, you are incentivized to try to target them as soon as you can get them as a customer, so you can be the first kind of business they engage with in that space,” Findeisen said. Many platforms also offer a low monetary entry point for placing bets or making predictions to “lower the friction of getting involved” since “the hardest wager to get is the first wager,” he said.

For young people, that can come with big downsides. Paris Woods, an author and financial educator, said that around age 18 is the most important time to start becoming financially stable and building long-term wealth. But gambling and trading on prediction markets can create a “cycle of addiction and debt.”

“It’s not just eroding the present and sort of taking their hard-earned money out of their hands at 18 or 19, but it’s actually taking money out of that 40 or 50-year-old version of themselves,” Woods said.

Borrowing from video game features

Risky financial behaviors like sports wagering are reinforced by the rush of a win, or simply if they’re fun. Gamified features such as leaderboards, challenges and rewards, and other video game-like tools are built into some sports wagering platforms. Those, in turn, keep people on platforms longer and more intensely engaged, said Adrian Hon, a game designer and author of

“You’ve Been Played.”

“They tighten the loop of setting a bet and getting the feedback,” Hon said. “And so it does make it more visceral. It makes it more exciting. It makes it more real-time.”

Fliff, for instance, is designed with bright colors and engaging art. Users can customize an avatar to represent themselves and write a bio on their account page where their statistics are displayed. They can gain followers, chat with others, move up the leaderboard and earn achievement badges.

Fliff said in a statement that it provides a “fun, social and rewarding experience” for users to compete in free-to-play games, while also “taking measures to ensure this activity is done responsibly.” The average age of a user who makes a purchase is 26, the company said.

The “social gaming experience” on Fliff has many “no-cost avenues for users to participate in predictions and engage in friendly competition,” the statement continued. “Our in-app social features are similar to those that exist more broadly within many consumer applications.”

Kalshi and Polymarket

each have leaderboards on their platforms as well as comment sections where users can interact with each other through text and even GIFs. Kalshi’s Such said those functions help users make trades with as much information as possible and called them “core elements” of the platform.

The company has rejected proposals to include more gamified features like confetti appearing on screen when a user confirms a trade, Such said. Kalshi has also put in safeguards to prevent kids from accessing the platform, including asking some new users for a live selfie before they are approved for an account and using facial recognition when signing in.

Intentional or not, wagering platforms and prediction markets expose young users to “highly stimulating, highly novel, highly intense things,” said Fong of the UCLA Gambling Studies Program — and that carries consequences.

“A young brain that’s not fully formed — that’s going to leave a significant mark,” he said. “And that brain is going to want it again.”

THEIR VIEW — POINT

Suspending federal gas tax will worsen transportation

With gas prices up to $4.50 a gallon and inflation approaching 4%, Americans are justifiably anxious over

Marc Goldwein
Guest Columnist

growing affordability challenges. Politicians in both political parties have suggested a “gas tax holiday” to ease the burden. Unfortunately, suspending the federal gas tax will do little if anything to lower cost-of-living expenses. Instead, it will add to an already out-of-control national debt and put vital infrastructure projects at risk.

Currently, Americans pay an 18.4 cents per gallon tax on gasoline at the pump (24.4 cents for diesel). That money helps to fund the Highway Trust Fund, which pays for the construction and repair of interstate highways, bridges, railways and other transportation infrastructure.

As Americans face rising prices at the pump, a gas tax holiday certainly has some political appeal, but its bark is far bigger than its bite. By my estimate, a yearlong gas tax holiday would reduce household costs less than $1 per week. These savings would only reverse one-twentieth of the cost of higher gas prices and one-fortieth of total price growth. Total costs would fall by less than 0.1%.

Americans spend $40 billion annually on federal gasoline and diesel taxes. Were we to eliminate those taxes, evidence from state-level holidays shows suppliers would respond in part by raising their prices to capture some of the gain. The remaining consumer savings would juice demand in a supply-constrained economy, leading other prices to rise. All told, the holiday would probably reduce the total cost of goods and services this year from $22 trillion to something closer to $21.99 trillion.

Perhaps even this minuscule improvement in cost-of-living would be better than nothing if it came free, but in reality, it comes with immense costs.

Even as it stands, the gas tax isn’t bringing in enough revenue to fund our infrastructure, and the Highway Trust Fund is 27 months from insolvency. A one-year gas tax suspension would pull $40 billion out of the trust fund, advancing that insolvency date to June 2027 — one year from now.

As the gas tax holiday ends, a construction and repair holiday would need to begin— projects would have to be halted and funding slashed in half. If the gas tax holiday were extended, federal spending would need to be cut by almost 90 %. Meanwhile, the federal debt, already approaching record levels as a share of the economy, would grow even further.

Congress has never suspended fuel taxes before, and with good reason. Barack Obama once called the idea “a gimmick that would save you half a tank of gas over the course of the entire summer.” Senate Majority Leader John Thune once described the idea as “just a flimsy Band-Aid.” And economists from the left, right, and center have warned that such a holiday would increase pre-tax prices and expand deficits without providing meaningful relief.

To lower energy prices, policymakers need to pursue policies to lower energy prices — subsidizing their demand won’t help. If politicians really want to address affordability, the best thing they can do is begin reducing budget deficits, which would put downward pressure on inflation and interest rates.

Meanwhile, our transportation infrastructure is already dangerously underfunded. We should be working to supplement or perhaps replace the gas tax with a more steady source of revenue, such as a weight-based registration fee or vehicle miles tax. And we need to make sure we’re spending in an efficient and cost-effective manner.

Cutting the gas tax will only expand the deficit and worsen long-term affordability challenges.

Gas tax suspension would provide welcome relief broad range of critical needs, from schools, parks, libraries and police to public health and scientific research.

One specific levy, the federal gas tax, funds highway and bridge construction, plus public transit, with projected revenues of $37 billion this year. As a native of Detroit who learned to drive on the nation’s first highway, I’m a big fan of our amazing interstate system and the U.S. routes that feed into it. I’m even a bigger fan of the road and bridge maintenance that helps make driving safe for the country’s 280 million motor vehicles, which the federal gas tax also funds.

So I’m loath to suspend such a vital levy, which has been 18.4 cents per gallon since October 1993. I’m also loath to support President Donald Trump’s misguided war in Iran. Suspending the federal fuel tax would ease gas prices that have increased by an average of $1.52 per gallon nationwide since the war started, largely because Iran has blocked the Strait of Hormuz, through which one-fifth of the world’s crude-oil supply passes.

There’s also some irony in Trump asking Congress for a gas-tax “holiday.” When President Joe Biden made the same request in June 2022, after Russia’s invasion of Ukraine had spiked oil and gas prices, Republican lawmakers rebuffed him, and even his most reliable ally, then-House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, declined to endorse the plan.

Now, a motley mixture of Democrats and Republicans is backing a gas-tax suspension. Republican Sens. Josh Hawley of Missouri and Rick Scott of Florida, along with Democratic Sens. Mark Kelly of Arizona and Richard Blumenthal of Connecticut, are among the lawmakers who have voiced support. Democrat Alex Vindman, running for the Senate in Florida, is also on board.

“I’m hearing from Democrats, independents and Republicans alike about how surging gas prices are putting the squeeze on families’ budgets,” Vindman said in a May 12 statement.

While still a bit lower than the national average, the average gas price in Florida has surged from $2.88 to $4.34 a gallon since the start of the Iran war. With the national average hitting $4.53 per gallon, as of May 20, suspending the gas tax would provide only mild relief, about 4%.

State gas taxes are higher in every state except Alaska, and in some states much higher, from California’s levy of 70.92 cents per gallon to 58.7 cents in Pennsylvania and 54.50 cents in Indiana. California drivers pay $6.16 per gallon on average, the highest price in the country.

“It’s a small percentage, but it’s, you know, it’s still money,” Trump said on May 11.

Congress first imposed the federal gas tax in 1932 as the Great Depression drained federal coffers. It started at 1 cent per gallon. Had it merely kept up with inflation since then, the tax would be 24.4 cents today. And inflation since 1993, when Congress last raised the tax, would put it at 42.43 cents. So, if anything, the gas tax is overdue for an increase.

However mild the relief might be, it would be welcome at the start of the summer vacation season, when Americans take to the roads in large numbers, and their fuel costs rise regardless of the price at the pump.

With the growing bipartisan support, Congress should pass a six-month suspension of the federal gas tax. To prevent a big hit to the Highway Trust Fund, which relies on revenue from the tax, lawmakers should adopt a plan by Kelly and Blumenthal to offset the loss of highway funds with temporary transfers of general-purpose funds from discretionary programs.

If Congress wanted to get creative, it could pair indexing the gas tax to inflation in order to meet future road needs with automatic, short-term suspensions in the event of price spikes caused by war, economic shocks or other special circumstances.

Calling for a ‘new approach’

CBS News leader Bari Weiss replaces executive producer at ‘60 Minutes’

By Jocelyn Noveck
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Saying it was time for a new approach and a new chapter, CBS News Editor-in-Chief Bari Weiss has replaced the executive producer of “60 Minutes,” naming outsider Nick Bilton, a longtime technology journalist and documentarian, as the show’s new leader. Executive producer Tanya Simon will be leaving about a year after being named to the job following 30 years at the venerable Sunday evening program. The moves cap a period of turmoil for the venerable newsmagazine that premiered in 1968 and is known for its ticking stopwatch. In a memo to staff Thursday, Weiss and CBS News President Tom Cibrowski said their goal was “building a show that thrives in the 21st century.”

“That requires a new approach,” Weiss and Cibrowski wrote, defining it as “expanding ‘60 Minutes’ beyond a one-hour television broadcast, deepening its role across CBS News, and holding everything we produce to the ambition, fairness, and fearlessness that have defined ‘60 Minutes’ at its best.” Bilton, they said, “embodies the energy and ambition that animated the founders of the show. We cannot imagine a better fit.” Bilton is also a former New York Times technology columnist.

Others let go as well
Also let go, according to a person familiar with the situation who spoke on anonymity: correspondents Sharyn Alfonsi, whose segment about Trump administration deportees in a Salvadoran prison was abruptly pulled by Weiss, running a month later; and Cecilia Vega.
Sweeping actions like those announced Thursday had been widely expected from Weiss, founder of the Free Press website. Since she was hired in October by CBS parent company Paramount Global’s new management, she has fast become a headline-maker and polarizing figure in journalism.

In his own lengthy memo to staff, Bilton, who comes to his new post without traditional broadcast experience, said “60 Minutes” was “without exaggeration, the most important television journalism brand this country has ever produced.”
“The fact that this show has remained a fixed point in a culture is part of why this show still matters as much as it does,” he wrote. “I don’t want to lose that. But the world we are reporting on, and the world we are reporting to, where people consume their news, has moved. And if we don’t move with it, in the ways that matter, we won’t be here for the next sixty years. I want to do everything humanly possible to ensure that we are.”

A bumpy period for ‘60 Minutes’
In July of last year, to the dismay of many at the show, Paramount settled with President Donald Trump out-of-court after he sued “60 Minutes” for how it had handled an interview with Kamala Harris, his 2024 election opponent.

In December, the show, at Weiss’ direction, held off at the last minute showing Alfonsi’s report about the deportees, saying greater effort was needed to secure an interview with administration officials. Alfonsi complained privately that the decision was political. The story aired a month later with additional administration comments, but no on-camera interviews with officials.

Times Leader
The Times Leader would like to inform you about the Home Improvement Consumer Protection Act, 53 P.S.
517.1, et seq., goes into effect July 1, 2009. The law applies to contractors who perform at least $5,000 worth of home improvements a year.
Contractors are required to submit an application to the Pennsylvania Attorney General's in order to obtain a registration number.

The registration number must appear in all advertisements circulated within the Commonwealth.

The Law defines advertisements as any statement promoting home improvement services in a newspaper, periodical, pamphlet, circular,
billboard, sign, letterhead, business card or other printed materials.

All contractors currently advertising in the Times Leader should contact their representative to include their registration number in their ads.

The law allows consumers to verify a contractors registration with the Attorney General's Office by visiting the Attorney General's website or by calling the toll free hotline, 1-888-520-6680. You can learn more about the law and its requirements by visiting the Attorney General's website

DON'T LET BIG TECH CANCEL LOCAL NEWS

ESSENTIAL CONTENT | WATCHDOG JOURNALISM

Local news organizations are under pressure.

Local news strengthens our community, but local papers across the country are under threat. Big Tech takes advantage of the news and information created by local publishers, but they won't pay for it.

The Journalism Competition and Preservation Act (JCPA) is a bipartisan bill that allows local news companies like this one to negotiate with Big Tech to ensure that they are treated fairly and compensated justly. If Congress doesn't pass the JCPA, communities across America will continue to lose quality local, fact-based news coverage.

Contact your member of Congress to support the JCPA and ensure Big Tech doesn't cancel local news:

Late Laughs

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

Over the weekend, Iran submitted a 14-point plan to end the war. It's pretty one-sided. They proposed that both sides lift their blockades of the Strait of Hormuz. Israel completely ends the war in Lebanon. The U.S. release Iran's frozen assets, requires the U.S. to pay compensation and lift all sanctions against Iran. In addition, Iran would get the new Grand Theft Auto, free guacamole at participating Chipotles and a hall pass to sleep with Lady Liberty's sister, Tammy. Tammy's fun. Tammy's way more fun.

Jimmy Kimmel Live!

Trump has a particular affinity for the royal family and so in Washington they pulled out all the stops to welcome the king and queen. The Department of Transportation lined up the streets with what they thought was the Union Jack, the British flag turned out to be the Australian flag. So, they had to take them all down and swap them out. Somehow, they managed to screw everything up. It was a literal false flag operation going on there.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

During an Oval Office event last week, President Trump promoted the TrumpRx, a platform where consumers can purchase prescription drugs at a reduced cost, and added, "Now I have my name on medication." Buddy, you're 79. You've had your name on medication for quite a while now.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon

Some more news from Washington today [April 29]. Trump spoke on the phone with Vladimir Putin for an hour and a half. ... Yeah, there was a cute moment during the call when they both said, "How's your unwinnable war going? Jinx!"

Forget the microwave: Rachael Ray shares quick and easy recipes in 'Meals in Minutes'

By Caroline Collacutt
TV Media

Television personality, author and philanthropist Rachael Ray ("Rachael Ray") showcases her culinary expertise on a global stage, adding a dash of creativity and a sprinkle of flair as she shares quick and easy meals in "Rachael Ray's Meals in Minutes" — now airing its third season on FYI, with a new episode airing Monday, June 3.

Known for her bubbly personality on the "Rachael Ray" talk show, and for her delicious recipes — most found in her countless cookbooks, released over the past two decades — Ray has previously shared some of her countless tips and tricks in series such as "Rachael Ray in Tuscany" and "Rachael Ray's Holidays." But here, the glitz, glamour and gourmet ingredients are all left on the back burner, as Ray prioritizes recipes that can be completed in minutes — no matter the cook's level of expertise.

Previously, "Meals in Minutes" has featured recipes for salsa verde chicken tortilla soup, chicken parm patty melts, fried shrimp poppers, Thai green curry, lamb chops, beef stew and more, but this latest season promises even more flavor, as it "features dishes from comfort food to sophisticated entertaining fare, including lamb and beef chorizo chili, Italian brisket, shrimp salad stuffed shells and white bean soup," according to its synopsis.

"Meals in Minutes" is one of the many projects that Ray has launched from her latest venture, Free Food Studios. Founded in 2023, this joint venture between Ray, International Content and A+E Global Media began a partnership between Free Food Studios and A+E Global Media's Home.Made.Nation — a partnership that promised more than 300 new episodes from Free Food Studios, spread across various culinary-related series.

"I'm thrilled to continue growing our partnership with A+E and to keep sharing the kind of food and storytelling that feels like home," Ray said in a statement. "Together with Free Food Studios, we've built a creative space where cooks and viewers can connect through comfort, curiosity and real-life inspiration — and I can't wait to bring even more of that to audiences everywhere."

Streaming goes NSFW: New Kaling comedy takes on the workplace

Avantika and Ella Hunt in "Not Suitable for Work"

By Dana Simpson
TV Media

Mindy Kaling ("The Office") has been labelled many things throughout her career. While some of these tags have been kind, others have been, shall we say, less than favorable. But no matter your personal opinion about Kaling and her work, there is no denying Hulu's most recent description of the multi-hyphenate star: Kaling is, in fact, a "comedy hitmaker."

Best known on-screen for her role as Kelly Kapoor in the American sitcom "The Office" (for which she also wrote and produced a number of episodes), Kaling has made at least as big a name for herself behind the scenes as she has on-screen. A few of her most recognizable endeavors since "The Office" include "The Mindy Project," which ran from 2012-17 and in which she played Dr. Mindy Lahiri, as well as "Champions," "Never Have I Ever," "The Sex Lives of College Girls" and the Kate Hudson-led ("How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days," 2003) sports dramedy "Running Point," which released its second season this past April on Netflix.

Now, Kaling dons her writer/producer cap once more to lead the charge on a new Hulu project. "Not Suitable for Work," a new sitcom in association with Warner Bros. Television, premieres with three 30-minute episodes Tuesday, June 2, on Hulu.

According to Hulu Press, the eight-episode comedy series "centers on five work-obsessed 20-somethings striving for professional success and, if they have time, personal happiness in Manhattan's most glamorous neighborhood, Murray Hill."

A simple structure that has been used time and again, Kaling brings her own flavor to the storyline with plenty of witty banter, pop culture references and relatable — if somewhat haywire — leading characters. Additionally, if the trailer gives any indication of the plot beats to come, there will also be plenty of will-they-won't-they romantic shenanigans along the way up the corporate ladder.

The woman at the center of this particular point of intrigue is AJ, played by "Anna and the Apocalypse" (2017) leading lady Ella Hunt.

Also known for portraying Emily Dickinson's (Hailee Steinfeld, "Sinners," 2025) sister-in-law Sue Gilbert in the Apple TV series "Dickinson," Hunt plays AJ as a driven-but-bumbling young first-year analyst at an investment bank. Eager to make a good first impression and please her new boss, Bill Gibson (played by "Insecure" and "Running Point" actor Jay Ellis), things turn awkward for AJ when she discovers how attractive Gibson is. Now it looks as though staying focused at work could be more difficult than she originally anticipated.

Thankfully for AJ, she has her best friend, Abby, at her side to help her hash things out before they get too out of control.

Abhinaya Chilukuri, known to her friends as Abby and played by "Mean Girls" (2024) and "Tarot" (2024) actress Avantika, has herself recently secured a new job. As the assistant to Vanessa Hsu (Constance Wu, "Crazy Rich Asians," 2018), a high-powered celebrity stylist, Abby must learn to curb her enthusiasm for the opposite sex — even when it comes to a hot celebrity client who began the flirting himself.

"This is your sexual harassment training: hands off your co-workers," says Hsu in the trailer, quickly adding, "Now sign this saying that I trained you, or you're fired."

As both women settle into their new roles — and resulting crushes — roommates Davis (Will Angus, "Almost Friday TV") and Kel (Nicholas Duvernay, "The White Lotus") struggle with their own budding professional lives and romances; Davis struggles particularly hard, given his crippling inability to talk to women with anything resembling suave nonchalance.

And while Kel tries to do away with his sensitivities in favour of a more clinical approach in medical school, Davis, like AJ and Abby, has taken on a new professional endeavor. In fact, his situation is very much akin to AJ's as the two have begun working on the same team under Gibson at the investment bank. However, Davis's proximity to AJ doesn't help to stifle his burgeoning crush on her — nor does getting pepper-sprayed by her, as seen in the official trailer.

The fifth young adult to round out the group is Josh (Jack Martin, "La Brea"), whose desire to succeed on his own merit means very little under the imposing shadow of his father, media tycoon David Teitelbaum (Greg Germann, "Grey's Anatomy"). With Josh eager to fill a role at one of his father's networks, his girlfriend, Vivian (Stella Everett, "Running Point"), proposes that perhaps he should simply ask. That entitlement is not Josh's style, though; something which is bound to deepen the rift between Josh and the more shallow, aloof people in his life.

Victor Garber ("Titanic," 1997), Ego Nwodim ("Saturday Night Live"), Laura Bell Bundy ("How I Met Your Mother"), Judy Gold ("All-American Girl"), Emilia Suarez ("Dexter: Resurrection"), May Hong ("KPop Demon Hunters"), Bhavesh Patel ("The Good Wife") and Michael Benjamin Washington ("American Auto") also appear in recurring roles throughout the freshman season of the series.

"Office Romance" (2026)

She's the most powerful woman in the room until love becomes her biggest liability in "Office Romance," premiering this Friday, June 5, only on Netflix. Jackie Cruz (Jennifer Lopez, "The Backup Plan," 2010) is not a boss you want to disappoint. A perfectionist CEO of Air Cruz, she runs a tight ship in her business — which includes a rigid anti-fraternization policy for all her employees, and that same policy is put to the test when Daniel Blanchflower walks through her door. The company's new lawyer, played by "Ted Lasso's" Brett Goldstein — who co-wrote the script alongside "Ted Lasso" collaborator Joe Kelly — is exactly the kind of complication Jackie cannot afford. But longing boardroom glances have a way of becoming raunchy island romps, and soon, everything Jackie's worked for is at risk. Directed by Ol Parker ("Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again," 2018), "Office Romance" features a scene-stealing ensemble cast that includes Betty Gilpin ("Isn't It Romantic," 2019), Amy Sedaris ("Jennifer's Body," 2009), Tony Hale ("Arrested Development") and Bradley Whitford ("The West Wing").

"Being Eddie" (2025)

Axel Foley, Billy Ray Valentine, Prince Akeem Joffer and Donkey ... these are just a few of the iconic characters Eddie Murphy ("Shrek," 2001) has brought to life over his five-decade career. From two-time Oscar-winning director Angus Wall ("Game of Thrones"), the 2025 documentary "Being Eddie" revisits his past work, and is available now on Netflix. At 17, he was already sharing a stage with Jerry Seinfeld ("Seinfeld") and by 18, he was on "Saturday Night Live." Few performers have ever moved through Hollywood with such range — playing cops, doctors and love interests, all while leaving a mark on every genre he entered. In "Being Eddie," Murphy opens his home to revisit these pivotal moments in his career. The film gathers comedy and Hollywood legends including Dave Chappelle ("A Star Is Born," 2018), Tracee Ellis Ross ("Black-ish") and Jamie Foxx ("Dreamgirls," 2006) to reflect on the Oscar-nominated star whose talent and ambition have inspired generations. And the celebrations don't stop there — Murphy was recently honored with the 51st AFI Life Achievement Award and the tribute special premieres on Netflix this Sunday, May 31.

Documenting Hope

By Raye Smith
TV Media

Documenting Hope: After sweeping through the Cannes Film Festival earlier this month, the documentary "Groundswell" makes its streaming premiere on Prime Video Friday, June 5. The final installment of the documentary trilogy from filmmakers Josh Tickell and Rebecca Harrell Tickell — which includes "Kiss the Ground" (2020) and "Common Ground" (2023), also available on Prime Video — the film looks to the future of human interaction with the planet, aiming for a more harmonious relationship. A decade in the making, "Groundswell" takes an expansive trip around the world, working its way through five continents to look at the ways innovative leaders are adapting modern agricultural practices to work with the climate and the land. "At the forefront of a global movement bridging climate and regenerative agriculture ... the film encounters farmers, scientists and Indigenous leaders reshaping humanity's relationship to land" says the Cannes Film Festival about the documentary. "It reframes global agriculture not as a driver of collapse but as means to balance the Earth's climate before it is too late. Through intimate portraits and striking imagery, 'Groundswell' reveals how regenerative practices draw down carbon, revive biodiversity and improve the lives of poor farmers," the description continues. "As droughts, floods and food insecurity intensify, the film invites us to see the very Earth under our feet as a vital and overlooked solution to humanity's greatest crisis." "Groundswell" is narrated by Demi Moore ("The Substance," 2024) and Woody Harrelson ("True Detective"), both of whom executive produce the project. "Demi [Moore] brought a level of mastery, presence and care that is rare. Fully Embodied. Utterly precise. Talent pouring out of her pores. Every line landed effortlessly and then, at the very end, she offered a few lines of her own that will bring the house down. She is doing this because she believes soil is the solution. Because she believes in the future ... for her children and her granddaughter," Rebecca Harrell Tickell commented on working with Moore, via a post on the film's official Instagram account (@groundswell_film).

"The Legend of Vox Machina" - Season 4

Supernatural villains, cultists and dark enemies ... welcome to Season 4 of "The Legend of Vox Machina," premiering this Wednesday, June 3, on Prime Video. This season is set a year after the Chroma Conclave, as Exandria's most lovable band of misfits return when a long-slumbering evil awakens and threatens everything they hold dear. Now, the crew must reunite to face their darkest and most formidable foe yet. The series stars Laura Bailey ("Critical Role"), Taliesin Jaffe ("Age of Umbra"), Ashley Johnson ("Blindspot"), Matthew Mercer ("Thundercats"), Liam O'Brien ("The Mighty Nein"), Marisha Ray ("Tomb Raider: The Legend of Lara Croft"), Sam Riegel ("Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles") and Travis Willingham ("Firebuds"). Chris Prynosi ("Strip Law"), Shannon Prynosi ("Kevin") and showrunner Brandon Auman ("Sleepwalker," 2026) serve as executive producers.

"The Wrecking Crew" (2026)

Available now on Prime Video, family secrets erupt in "The Wrecking Crew." The 2026 film follows two estranged half-brothers, Jonny (Jason Momoa, "Game of Thrones") and James (Dave Bautista, "Guardians of the Galaxy," 2014), as they're forced to reunite after their father's mysterious death. As they dig for the truth, long-buried secrets reveal a conspiracy that threatens to tear their family apart. Set in the streets of Hawaii, the film is directed by Angel Manuel Soto ("Blue Beetle," 2023) and stars Claes Bang ("The Girl in the Spider's Web," 2018), Temuera Morrison ("Chief of War"), Jacob Batalon ("Spider-Man: Homecoming," 2017), Frankie Adams ("The Lost Flowers of Alice Hart"), Miyavi ("Maleficent: Mistress of Evil," 2019), Stephen Root ("Barry"), Morena Baccarin ("Deadpool," 2016) and more. "The Wrecking Crew" is written by Jonathan Tropper ("Banshee") and produced by Momoa, Bautista, Jeffrey Fierson ("Atlas," 2024), Matt Reeves ("The Batman," 2022) and Lynn Harris ("About a Boy," 2002).

"Tom Clancy's Jack Ryan: Ghost War" (2026)

Available now on Prime Video, Jack Ryan (John Krasinski, "A Quiet Place," 2018) is reluctantly thrust back into the world of espionage in "Tom Clancy's Jack Ryan: Ghost War." After stepping away from the CIA, Jack Ryan thought the shadows were behind him — they weren't. Set three years after the events of "Jack Ryan" Season 4, "Ghost War" finds a reluctant Jack dragged back into the cold, unforgiving world of espionage when a covert international mission cracks open something far darker — a deadly conspiracy at the heart of the intelligence community, and a rogue black-ops unit that shouldn't exist. With the clock running and lives hanging in the balance, Jack falls back on the only people he truly trusts. He reunites with battle-tested CIA operative Mike November (Michael Kelly, "Dawn of the Dead," 2004) and former CIA boss James Greer (Wendell Pierce, "Superman," 2025), and their combined experience is the only edge against an enemy who seems to know their every move. But this time, the team has a new ally: MI6 officer Emma Marlowe (Sienna Miller, "G.I. Joe: The Rise of Cobra," 2009), whose instincts prove as sharp as her secrets. From director Andrew Bernstein ("The Nevers") and executive producers John J. Kelly ("Deadpool," 2016) and Tom Clancy ("The Hunt for Red October," 1990), "Tom Clancy's Jack Ryan: Ghost War" also stars Max Beesley ("Hijack"), Betty Gabriel ("Get Out," 2017) and JJ Feild ("Captain America: The First Avenger," 2011).

Hannah Berner in her special "Hannah Berner: None of My Business"

By Kimberly Tremblay
TV Media

"Hannah Berner: None of My Business" (2026)

From the "Summer House" to touring around the world, Hannah Berner's ("After Midnight") all-new comedy special "Hannah Berner: None of My Business" premieres Friday, June 5, on Hulu. Captured live at Toronto's Bluma Appel Theatre while performing a 70-show tour, this sensational sophomore special finds Berner doing what she does best as she riffs on her unorthodox career path and gets bracingly honest about marriage, kids and an uncertain future. From social media to reality television, the special sees Berner dishing out all her dating secrets while proudly owning her self-declared "part-time hot" identity. Written, performed and executive produced by Berner alongside executive producers Matthew Vaughan ("Reasons I Don't Have a Boyfriend") and director Jeff Tomsic

("This Is Not Happening"), "None of My Business" is the sophomore special from the Brooklyn-born comedian, whose debut "We Ride at Dawn" released in 2024. This special, however, is one Berner is especially proud of. "I can't wait for people to see it," says Berner ahead of its release. "It feels like you've been painting something for a long time — I don't know why I'm using paint as an example, but the masterpiece is finally dotted and I'm ready to show it to the world."

"Brokeback Mountain" (2005)

One of cinema's most enduring love stories, 2005's "Brokeback Mountain" arrives on Hulu Monday, June 1. Set in 1960s Wyoming, "Brokeback Mountain" follows Ennis Del Mar (Heath Ledger, "A Knight's Tale," 2001) and Jack Twist (Jake Gyllenhaal, "Nightcrawler," 2014) — two young men who meet in the summer of 1963 while hired to herd sheep. What begins as a close friendship quietly becomes something far deeper, igniting a connection neither fully understands nor knows how to leave behind. Held back by the times they live in, both return to separate lives — Ennis to his wife Alma (Michelle Williams, "Blue Valentine," 2010) and Jack to the rodeo circuit and a marriage of his own. Yet over the span of two decades, the pull between them proves impossible to ignore, drawing them back together again and again in stolen moments that are equal parts tender and heart-breaking. Starring Anne Hathaway ("The Princess Diaries," 2001), Randy Quaid ("Independence Day," 1996), Linda Cardellini ("Scooby-Doo," 2002), Anna Faris ("Scary Movie," 2000), David Harbour ("Stranger Things") and Kate Mara ("Fantastic Four," 2015). Directed by Ang Lee ("Life of Pi," 2012), Larry McMurtry ("Streets of Laredo") wrote the script alongside Diana Ossana ("Dead Man's Walk").

“Disney Jr.’s Ariel” – Season 2

With new songs to sing and bigger waves to make, new episodes from Season 2 of “Disney Jr.’s Ariel” makes a splash Monday, June 1, on Disney+, following a young princess Ariel (Mykal-Michelle Harris, “Cheaper by the Dozen,” 2022) and her friends Lucia (Elizabeth Phoenix Caro, “Encanto,” 2021) and Fernie (Cruz Flateau, “SuperKitties: Su-Purr Adventures”) as they dive into exciting, fun-filled adventures across their vibrant, Caribbean-inspired fairy tale kingdom of Atlantica. Inspired by Disney’s “The Little Mermaid” (1989), “Disney Jr.’s Ariel” also voice stars Hunter Phillip Corleto (“Robogobo”) as Cal, Gracen Newton (“Danger Force”) as Flounder, Kai Zen (“Feel the Beat,” 2020) as Akiko, Martin Wichmann Andersen (“Urban Nightmares”) as Axyl, Taye Diggs (“House on Haunted Hill,” 1999) as King Triton, Amber Riley (“Glee”) as Ursula and Kevin Michael Richardson (“Lilo & Stitch,” 2002) as Sebastian. With episodes directed by Kuni Tomita (“Dora the Explorer”) and written by Keith Wagner (“Big Time Rush”), “Disney Jr.’s Ariel” is created by Lynne Southerland (“Happily Ever After: Fairy Tales for Every Child”).

“Zootopia 2” (2025)
Judy Hopps and Nick Wilde find themselves at odds in “Zootopia 2” (2025), now available to stream on Disney+. In this Oscar-nominated sequel to 2016’s “Zootopia,” rabbit Judy and fox

Nick struggle to see eye-to-eye while working as partners at the Zootopia Police Department. Their constant bickering makes Chief Bogo (Idris Elba, “Thor: Ragnarok,” 2017) threaten to separate them — but not before offering the pair one last chance to put their differences aside while working a new case. Nick and Judy hop into action and begin their investigation, only to be pulled into a world of smugglers, vipers, conspiracy theorists and fugitives. Seeing the return of Jason Bateman (“Arrested Development”) and Ginnifer Goodwin (“Once Upon a Time”) as Nick and Judy, respectively, “Zootopia 2” introduces characters voiced by Ke Huy Quan (“Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom,” 1984), Fortune Feimster (“The Mindy Project”), Andy Samberg (“Brooklyn Nine-Nine”),

David Strathairn (“A Man on the Inside”), Patrick Warburton (“The Emperor’s New Groove,” 2000), Quinta Brunson (“Abbott Elementary”), Danny Trejo (“Spy Kids,” 2001), Brenda Song (“The Suite Life of Zack & Cody”) and Macaulay Culkin (“Home Alone,” 1990), among others.

“Lilo & Stitch” (2025)
Bringing an out-of-this-world story to life two decades after its initial, animated release, 2025’s “Lilo & Stitch” is available now to stream on Disney+. In this live-action iteration of the 2003 classic, a lonely young Hawaiian girl, Lilo (newcomer Maia Kealoha), finds herself in desperate need of some company. Hoping to adopt a dog from the local shelter, Lilo instead winds up bringing home Stitch (voiced by Chris Sanders, “Lilo & Stitch,” 2002) — an extraterrestrial entity that crash landed on Earth after escaping an outer space prison. Much to her sister Nani’s (Sydney Agudong, “At Her Feet,” 2024) chagrin, Lilo quickly grows attached to her alien companion despite his otherworldly behavior. From director Dean Fleischer Camp (“Marcel the Shell with Shoes On,” 2021), and with a screenplay developed by Chris Kekaniokalani Bright (“Moana,” 2016), Mike Van Waes (“Dear David,” 2023), Sanders and Dean DeBlois (“How to Train Your Dragon,” 2010), “Lilo & Stitch” also stars Zach Galifianakis (“Tooned Out”), Billy Magnussen (“Game Night,” 2018), Courtney B. Vance (“The Hunt for Red October,” 1990), Amy Hill (“The Cat in the Hat,” 2003), Tia Carrere (“Paradise,” 2024), Kaipo Dudoit (“Rescue: HI-Surf”), Hannah Waddingham (“Ted Lasso”) and more.

YOUR COMFORT IS OUR BUSINESS!

Plunging into the various types of pools

Many homeowners aspire to have sun-drenched backyards they can enjoy for hours on end. But being in full sun all the time can affect the functionality of an outdoor living space. As global temperatures continue to rise, the comfort of private yards depends heavily on how homeowners can mitigate sun and heat. A pool can make time outdoors more comfortable.

Swimming cools you down primarily through conduction and convection. Water conducts heat away from the body 25 times faster than air. When a person enters the water, heat is immediately transferred from the warmer body to the cooler water.

Homeowners can choose among various types of pools, weighing the pros and cons of each before settling on a decision.

• Kiddie pool: A kiddie pool is a way to test the waters of having a pool in the yard. It's a portable play feature for children and typically is inexpensive. Although it can be fun for kids, the small size and the need for frequent emptying and refilling can be a chore. There's also no filtration, so kiddie pools can get dirty quickly.

• Above-ground pool: An above-ground swimming pool is functional and affordable. Angi says the average cost of an above-ground pool ranges from $1,000 to more than $10,000, with most homeowners spending around $4,000 for the pool and professional installation. Soft-sided, smaller pools can suit smaller budgets. An advantage to an above-ground pool is that it's not a permanent structure, which means that property taxes may not be affected.

• In-ground pool: Active families who like a multi-use swimming pool often turn to in-ground pools. These pools can be built into the landscape to form a seamless aesthetic. However, that luxury comes at a cost. The Spruce notes in-ground swimming pools average about $55,000 to install, and it's easy to spend upwards of $100,000. Unlimited shapes and larger sizes for entertaining attract many to the in-ground option.

• Lap pool: Those who want a pool for exercise purposes can consider a lap pool. It's a shallow and narrow pool designed for swimming laps. Since they're rectangular and narrow, these pools can be good for narrow lots.

• Pool club: Individuals who do not want to worry about pool maintenance can join a swim club or purchase day passes when it's time to take a plunge.

Homeowners have different options to consider when thinking about adding a pool to their property.

Repurpose rooms and breathe new life into a home

Homeowners do not need to get hung up on room labels as they explore ways to reinvent their spaces. Just because a floor plan labels a space as a formal dining room doesn't mean the area has to remain that way.

Repurposing rooms in a home comes down to aligning the space a person has with their lifestyle needs. Here are a few ways to rethink interior spaces and make a switch to improve utility.

- Identify unused or under-used rooms. Take note of spaces that are cleaned but rarely used. For many people, this is a dining room or a guest suite. Either of these rooms can be transformed into something new.

- Invest in multipurpose furniture. Even people short on space can transform their homes. Replacing a traditional bed with a murphy bed or a daybed can make a room more suitable for a home office or yoga studio, but still provide a space for the occasional houseguest to sleep. A pull-down shelf desk in a bedroom or even a walk-in closet can turn an area into a compact home workstation.

- Claim dead space. The area under the stairs or another small spot often is used to collect junk. Instead, it can be turned into a built-in wine rack, a reading nook for kids or even a pet sanctuary with just a few modifications. Analyze areas around the home that seem like they don't serve a purpose, and then figure out a way to make them more functional.

- Establish room zones. Some people simply cannot transform an entire room into something else. Visual partitioning makes it possible to create rooms within rooms. An area rug can be used to define a border of a space. Open bookshelves can serve as a wall to separate a sleeping area from a lounging spot. Lighting can add dimension to areas in a space. A pendant light over a crafting or work table can be used to define the space.

- Look at utility areas. Unless you are a do-it-yourselfer or have a hobby that takes up much of the garage or basement, utility areas are major spots in a home to consider repurposing. A garage can be turned into a home gym, kids' play area or even a hobby shop. Modular flooring and insulated walls can make the room comfortable. Attic lofts are the ultimate quiet zones, and can be serene spots for reading, meditating or doing homework. An unfinished basement can be converted into a finished space to serve many different purposes. From media rooms to a teen lounge to a hobby cave, the opportunities are endless.

A good rule of thumb before converting any room is to give it a test run. Move in a piece of furniture and test how it works with its intended function. Assess lighting, noise and foot traffic for a week, and then move ahead with changes if the result is positive.

Low maintenance landscape features

Outdoor entertaining spaces have come a long way over the last several decades. While a simple deck or patio might once have been the norm, outdoor entertaining spaces have now evolved into multi-purpose spaces featuring full kitchens, living rooms equipped with televisions, and areas to gather around a fireplace or built-in firepit.

The right choice of plant when mapping out a landscape can save homeowners lots of maintenance down the road.

While hardscaping garners considerable attention when planning an outdoor entertaining space, landscaping should not be overlooked. Many homeowners want to enjoy their outdoor entertaining spaces without having to spend too much time tending to the surrounding grounds, which can make these low-maintenance landscape features the perfect fit.

• Native plants: Native plants are low maintenance because they are naturally adapted to the local climate. That means homeowners won't have to expend extra effort and energy watering plants or amending the soil. Non-native species may provide some bold colors, but that comes at the cost of additional maintenance. There's also an environmental cost when planting non-native species, as the United States Environmental Protection Agency warns that non-native species typically displace natives, which can adversely affect the local ecosystem.

• Perennials: Homeowners looking to accent their outdoor entertaining areas with flowers can choose perennials over annuals. Perennials live for three or more years, and some species can even live for a decade or more. While they might require some seasonal pruning, perennials will not need to be replanted each year like annuals.

• Tolerant plants: Plants that can tolerate the local climate generally fall under the native category. But it's especially important that homeowners who don't want to expend much effort on landscape maintenance look for plants that can tolerate drought. A recent study from researchers at UCLA, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Association, and CIRES predict drought conditions will last longer, cover wider areas, and become more severe as the climate continues to warm. Drought-resistant plants may still require some watering if such predictions hold true. However, such plants will not require as much maintenance as those that are less equipped to handle drought. Homeowners who choose plants with drought-tolerance in mind won't have to spend as much time watering and also can protect their financial investment.

Outdoor entertaining spaces are meant to be enjoyed. And homeowners may enjoy such spaces a lot more if they opt for low-maintenance landscape solutions.

When to consider duct cleaning

Homeowners know that maintenance is vital to protecting their home and their investment in it. A well-maintained home is both a point of pride and a sound investment.

Home maintenance can improve the look of a home, and such efforts also may help to make spaces healthier for residents and guests. Duct cleaning is a home maintenance task that homeowners look to with the intention of making interior spaces healthier. The United States Environmental Protection Agency notes that duct cleaning has never been shown to prevent health problems, but the EPA nonetheless advises homeowners to consider duct cleaning if certain conditions are present.

• Mold growth: The EPA notes a duct cleaning may be necessary if there is substantial and visible mold growth inside hard surface ducts or on other components of a heating and cooling system. Mold growth can be difficult to confirm, as much of the heating and cooling system will not be visible. If an HVAC technician reports the presence of mold, ask that a sample be analyzed at a lab, which the EPA notes is the only way to confirm the presence of mold. The EPA estimates the cost to analyze a sample is roughly $50.

• Presence of vermin: Rodents and insects in the ducts are a notable problem that needs to be remedied. A duct cleaning should be a component of vermin remediation, as rodents can leave feces in ducts, which may look like small brown pellets.

• Dust and debris accumulation: The EPA notes that dust and debris that accumulates in the ducts can clog them. This also can lead to dust, debris and particles being released into the home through the vents.

Duct cleaning can be part of the solution when homeowners are confronting certain conditions, including mold growth, vermin infestation, and excessive accumulation of dirt and debris. But the EPA notes it's important that the underlying cause is addressed to prevent future issues.

Shade options to make life outside more comfortable

Life outside is all about enjoying the beauty of nature. When warm weather beckons, it's comforting to know there's an accessible outdoor space to relax and soak up some sun.

While the chance to enjoy some time in the sun is a great reason to get outdoors, sometimes the sun can compromise comfort when enjoying exterior living spaces. No one wants to melt while spending time outdoors, and al fresco dining with the sun in your eyes can make dinnertime less enjoyable. Thankfully, these shade options can help ensure days out back on the patio or deck are more comfortable.

• Structures: Various structures can be constructed to keep outdoor living spaces shaded from the sun. Structures are an expensive yet effective option. The final cost of a structure such as a pavilion will be affected by numerous variables, include the size and footprint of the space, the materials chosen (including the roof of the structure), and any customizations buyers go for. The online renovation resource HomeGuide notes that structure costs vary considerably by type. For example, HomeGuide notes a pergola may cost as little as $15 per square foot, while a gazebo could cost as much as $100 per square foot. While this is likely the most expensive shade option, a structure with a roof is a sure bet when looking to shade a space.

• Canopy: If structures are the most expensive option to shade an outdoor living space, a canopy might be the least expensive. But canopies can be effective. The size of the canopy will determine the final cost, but this option likely won't burn too big a hole in homeowners' wallets, as canopies can be had for anywhere from $50 to a few hundred dollars. Many modern canopies provide UV protection and can be erected in as little as 10 minutes. If you're considering a canopy, be sure to confirm if a product comes with posts or if those must be purchased separately.

• Retractable awning: The sun hits different areas of a property at different times of day. The flexibility of a retractable awning can make sure an outdoor space has the sun protection residents and guests need when the sun is hitting areas where everyone tends to gather to eat, relax and hang out. A retractable awning must be mounted to a structure like a home, a shed or a pool house, so this won't be an option for people looking to shade spaces that are not near such structures. A motorized awning can provide instant and effective shade when the sun hits areas where people are hanging out.

• Trees: Of course, shade need not be man-made. Strategically positioned shade trees provide lots of cooling shade during times of day when the sun is at its hottest. The shorter a tree is at the time of purchase the less it will cost. However, if instant shade is necessary, homeowners may want to splurge on taller trees to ensure immediate comfort.

The hot sun can quickly spoil an otherwise perfect day in an outdoor living space. Fortunately, there are many ways to shade such spaces from the hot sun.

Opening lead — jack of clubs.

The secret of good declarer play lies in the ability to determine how the unseen cards are divided. If you could see all four hands, you'd almost always achieve the best possible result.

The knack of placing the opponents' cards is available to anyone willing to analyze the clues and shape them into a composite picture that is consistent with the bidding and plays already made.

For example, consider declarer's problem in today's deal after West leads a club against five diamonds doubled. South ruffs and plays a trump to the ten, losing to East's ace. Back comes another club, ruffed by declarer. South then cashes the king of trump, bringing him to the crucial point of the play.

To make the contract, he must avoid losing two heart tricks. This can be accomplished very easily, if West has the missing ace, by leading hearts twice toward dummy's K-Q. But if East has the ace, this approach is almost certain to fail, since a second heart trick must eventually be lost to the jack or ten.

The first thing South does at this point is to try to work out who has the ace. This is not a difficult task, since East could not sensibly double five clubs without the ace of hearts.

South therefore has only one real hope — that West has both the jack and ten of hearts. So at trick five, he leads a heart, and instead of playing the king or queen, he finesses the nine. When the nine forces East's ace, the contract is home.

The nine is clearly the right play — even though it requires a good bit of luck for it to succeed (the chance that West would have the jack and ten is about one in four). But once East is assumed to have the ace of hearts, South has no other choice but to rely on the deep finesse.

SLYLOCK FOX By Bob Weber Jr.

Bonobo Bill claimed Shady Shrew snatched his sunglasses from his beach blanket. Bill said he had just picked up the expensive glasses for his astigmatism that morning. Shady insisted the stylish glasses belonged to him. What did Slylock Fox ask the shrew to do that helped determine the truth?

Solution -- Slylock asked Shady to read from the book he was holding while wearing the sunglasses. Shady was unable to read. Because the lenses were prescribed for Bonobo Bill's astigmatism, they distorted the words for Shady.
